The Spalding Policy

DIRECT FROM FACTORY TO CONSUMER THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF THE RETAIL DEALER

SPALDING ATHLETIC GOODS are on sale in stores located in practically every town of any size in the United States, and at our various stores, listed above. We prefer that you patronize your local dealer, but we will furnish our goods direct to consumers where they cannot be obtained or will not be furnished by the local dealer under the conditions named below.

PRICES ON SPALDING TRADE MARKED GOODS are based entirely upon the cost of manufacture, with a reasonable manufacturer's profit, and a reasonable profit to the retail dealer added. Sales are made at catalogue prices, except that for special orders by express or distant points, the retail dealer is justified in making a reasonable amount in excess of our catalogue prices to cover express and other charges.

THE SPALDING TRADE-MARK IS REGISTERED IN THE UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE, AND WE HAVE ALSO PROTECTED OUR INTERESTS BY 39 REGISTRATIONS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES. INFRINGERS ARE WARNED.

The Spalding Guarantee

WE GUARANTEE TO EACH PURCHASER OF an article bearing the SPALDING TRADE-MARK that such article will give satisfaction and a reasonable amount of service when used for the purpose for which it was intended and under ordinary conditions and fair treatment.

WE AGREE to repair or replace, free of charge, any such article which proves defective in material or workmanship where subjected to fair treatment. Provided, each defective article is returned to us, transportation prepaid, within thirty days after purchase (except where otherwise stipulated on special guarantee tag attached to certain articles) and accompanied by a letter from the user giving his name and address, and explaining the claim.

THE FAMOUS CUP PRESENTED BY DWIGHT F. DAVIS FOR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION.

Resumé of the Tennis Season of 1914

BY F. B. ALEXANDER.

In many ways the lawn tennis season of 1914 was the most remarkable in the history of the game in the United States. Undoubtedly it produced the highest grade of tennis among the experts, both native and foreign, that the game has ever seen.

The early spring season started off in the East by an invasion of two young Pacific Coast players—R. Lindley Murray and Herbert Hahn—two heretofore unknown men East of the Rockies, and both college boys. In the dual meets with the two representative best players in the different Eastern universities, they swept all before them, capping the climax when they defeated the strong Harvard team, composed of Watson F. Washburn and Edward H. Whitney. In singles, Murray quickly rounded into form and showed one of the strongest games that any Western man has ever played on Eastern courts in his first season.

In his first tournament, the Sleepy Hollow Invitation, Murray defeated consecutively, in one day, Frederick B. Alexander, Karl Behr and William M. Hall, a feat which the experts and authorities of the game would have declared even impossible for the great McLoughlin himself to do.

Later he won the Metropolitan Championship at the West Side Tennis Club in New York City, defeating Washburn and Church in the earlier rounds, and then Alexander in a hard five-set match in the finals. These two tournaments naturally placed him in a position to be considered seriously for the next International team.

Interest centered after this in the trials for the International team. The committee, composed of Messrs. R. D. Wrenn, George T. Adey and Harry Slocum, watched carefully every movement of the twelve or fourteen men who had a "look in." They had no easy task in choosing them, there being wealth of material.

The Westchester invitation tournament witnessed the arrival of more of the Western contingent. W. M. Johnston in his first tournament in the East showed excellent possibilities by winning all of his matches and defeating Karl Behr in the semi-finals, though later he fell off considerably in his game.

The Seabright tournament showed the Western contingent complete, McLoughlin, the national champion, and Bundy, his partner, arriving on the scene and winning the doubles after a hard five-set match against Pell and Behr. Williams, having defeated Behr in one of the earlier rounds, won the singles after a five-set match in the challenge round against Theodore Pell.

The scene then shifted to Longwood, and the committee announced its choice for the International team, namely, M. E. McLoughlin, R. N. Williams, 2d, K. H. Behr and T. C. Bundy. McLoughlin played his first singles for the Longwood Cup and romped through the tournament without the loss of a set, disposing of such men as R. N. Williams, 2d, W. M. Johnston, R. L. Murray, N. W. Niles and T. C. Bundy with almost ridiculous ease—a truly wonderful performance. The doubles for the Eastern Sectional Championship provided more excellent tennis, Pell and Behr eventually winning. In the finals they defeated the old team of Hackett and Alexander in straight sets.

From then on all eyes were turned towards New York City, where the challenge round for the International championship and Davis Cup was scheduled for the courts of the West Side Club, at Forest Hills. The Australasian team—N. E. Brookes, A. F. Wilding, A. W. Dunlop and S. N. Doust—upheld prediction. They defeated the Canadian team, composed of R. B. Powell and B. P. Schwengers, with ease, on the courts of the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Ill. They then traveled to Pittsburgh and defeated O. Froitzheim and O. Kreuzer, the German team, without the loss of a match.

Just previous to the Davis Cup matches some good tennis was shown in the New York State Championship, McLoughlin winning it also with ease. Hackett and Alexander won the doubles, after being nearly defeated at the hands of Wayne and Browne of the Pacific Coast.

The "piece de resistance" of the season occurred when the United States and Australasia clashed for the "blue ribbon" event of the tennis world. The scene at the West Side Lawn Tennis Club grounds at Forest Hills, has undoubtedly never been surpassed in the annals of the game. A crowd of 14,000 people each day, from all over the world, gathered to witness the four greatest experts of the game show their prowess; nor were the lovers of tennis disappointed.

The first match, staged on the first day of play, between Williams and Wilding, was a bitter disappointment and shock to America. After a brilliant start, Williams was never in the running, and though he made a plucky fight in the last few games, he was undoubtedly defeated by a better man. Wilding, in this match, showed the tremendous value of percentage in lawn tennis. After the first few games his percentage of errors was almost too small to be believable. True, he was not as brilliant or aggressive as he might have been, but he played an ideal game against Williams, and an absolutely safe game.

The second match, between Brookes and McLoughlin, was a revelation to lawn tennis players, and their skill, headwork, change of pace—in fact, all round tennis—has never been equalled. The first set was not only a record breaker in the history of international matches, but also was probably the hardest played set, on both sides, that has ever been witnessed, both men exerting themselves to their utmost. The young American won not so much through playing better tennis than his older opponent but through stamina and wonderful headwork.

The doubles match, on the second day, considered by many a lost cause even before it was played, proved undoubtedly the superiority of the Australasian team, although Bundy and McLoughlin put up a game fight. Bundy especially played at the top of his form. Brookes and Wilding did not appear to be as good as they had been in practice the week before, probably because they held the match safe all the way through.

The third day again was a treat for lovers of the game. Brookes defeated Williams in the first match, after Williams had made one of the pluckiest fights ever seen on the tennis court. With two sets against him, he pulled the third set out of the fire when it looked hopeless. This match gave Australasia the Davis Cup.

Though the Cup was lost to the United States, the Wilding-McLoughlin match was played, however, and in that match McLoughlin at times undoubtedly played the greatest tennis that has ever been seen. Wilding took one set, the third.

One game in the fourth set, of which particular mention should be made, was on Wilding's service. The ball was hit exactly eight times in the game, four times by each player, each of Wilding's four first services being good and, in return, each one being driven with great speed for a clean earned point by McLoughlin.

Following the Davis Cup matches, the Southampton invitation tournament was held. Particular mention might be made that Norman E. Brookes teamed up with W. A. Larned and won the doubles.

The National Championships at Newport were robbed of an international flavor by the fact that none of the foreign visitors took part, mainly on account of the fact of the European war. Upsets occurred throughout the tournament. Williams disposed of W. M. Johnston in the first round in a well played match, and showed excellent form throughout the tournament; in fact, so much better than his form in the Davis Cup matches that all the tennis contingent marvelled at it. McLoughlin, towards the end of the tourney, showed signs of going stale, and dropped a set to Clarence Griffin. The final match, between McLoughlin and Williams, was won by the latter in three straight sets, all of them well played. Williams was undoubtedly at the very tip-top of his brilliant game and, in the opinion of many, Williams at his top is unbeatable. McLoughlin showed up poorly in comparison to his form in the internationals. Whether McLoughlin suffered from the effects of his hard contests during the summer, or whether Williams' wonderful game did not permit him to pull off his customary shots, is an argument which may be waged pro and con to the end of time. Nevertheless, Williams undoubtedly earned his victory and title on that day.

The Challenge match in the doubles championship between George M. Church and Dean Mathey, challengers, and M. E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy, holders, resolved itself into a procession for the Pacific Coast team. After a good stand in the first set, Church and Mathey weakened and lost three straight. This practically ended the important competitions of the season, with the exception of the Intercollegiate Championships, held at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, where, much to the surprise of everyone, George M. Church of Princeton defeated the national champion in four hard sets.

From the standpoint of the United States, it was a wonderful season, with the one drawback of once more seeing the Davis Cup start on its way round the world, but the fact that in McLoughlin America undoubtedly has the greatest tennis player of all time, will do much to heal that wound.

Davis Cup Preliminaries of 1914

BY "AUSTRAL," OF THE SYDNEY REFEREE.

[Previous to the departure of the Australasian players from home, the publishers of the Annual arranged with Mr. R. M. Kidston ("Austral") of the Sydney Referee to furnish the account of the Davis Cup matches of 1914, including the preliminaries in Europe and America. Mr. Kidston is the author of a book on "Davis Cup Matches in Australasia" and his acquaintanceship with the leading players of the Antipodes and familiarity with their individual styles of play, render him in a position to write authoritatively on the subject. Mr. Kidston is considered throughout the world as an expert authority on the game.]

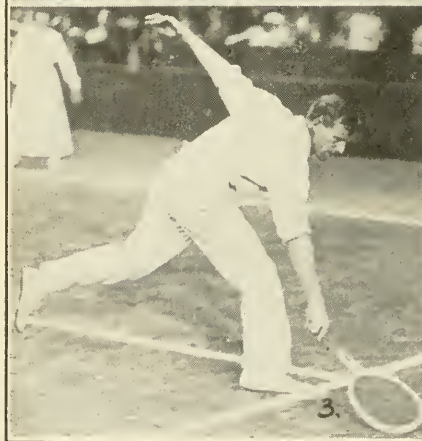

The first contest in the eliminating matches for the Davis Cup was played at Folkestone, England. The British team, composed of James Cecil Parke (captain), Herbert Roper Barrett, Theodore Michel Mavrogordato and A. R. F. Kingscote, had for opponents Belgium's representatives, Chevalier Paul de Borman (captain), A. G. Watson, L. Trassenster and W. H. Duvivier. The result was anticipated, of course, although the Belgians put up a sturdy fight and Watson, in particular, fairly extended Parke and showed the right way to meet his terrific drives.

The British team next met the team from France and had it not been for the mercurial temperament of the French players, it is quite possible that victory would have gone to her players, Max Decugis and M. Germot. These two fairly beat the British pair, Barrett and Mavrogordato, by play of the greatest brilliancy, and each in turn went very close to winning his first match. Germot was only beaten by Mavrogordato, after playing the better tennis all through, by lack of physique; and it was the same lack that spoiled the chance of Decugis against Parke in a contest that might have tried the staying power of any athlete. These two wins entitled the team of the British Isles to contest the final round at Boston against the team that should win its matches in the other half of the draw.

By the luck of the draw the first match in the other half was between Australasia and Canada, and the conditions of the Davis Cup are such that as these two nations could not agree on a place in the country of either for the contest it must be played in the country of the champion nation. That necessitated the Australasian team coming to America to play its first match, and the further natural consequence of this was that each of the other nations would have to come to America to play the subsequent rounds against the winners of Canada and Australasia. Thus, for the first time, America was assured of a fine series of contests for the cup that has done most to make the game famous. Previously it had only had one match, at the most, played in its country in any year.

The winner of the Australasia-Canada tie was to meet Germany in the second round, and almost up to the last moment it was thought that the German Association would not persist in its challenge. Accordingly after, in fact, it had withdrawn from the contest—it was arranged that the first tie should be played at Chicago and the final at Boston. But at the last moment—or after it—the German Association asked to be allowed to renew its challenge and, with the consent of the Australasian Association, this request was granted. The arrangements already made for the first tie, however, could not be altered, and to avoid as much traveling as was possible under these circumstances for the Australasian team Pittsburgh was chosen for the second round. Had it been known that Germany intended to play, all the matches would have been played nearer to the common center, New York, where the challenge round was of course to be played.

As was expected, the Australasian team very easily disposed of the Canadian representatives at the Onwentsia Club, near Chicago, for the two champions of the world of 1913 and 1914, N. E. Brookes and A. F. Wilding, were in the former's team and Canada's best men were R. B. Powell and B. P. Schwengers, players of good class, but nowhere near the superlative excellence of the world-beaters from the Antipodes. But the Canadians fought a plucky fight.

By this time the German team had arrived at Pittsburgh and had settled down to the short practice that was possible. Their men were the famous Otto Froitzheim, who a few weeks before had almost beaten the mighty Brookes himself in the final of the English and world's championship at Wimbledon, and Otto Kreuzer, a left-handed colt of great promise, who a year before had reached the semi-final of the same event, and had then been unexpectedly beaten by Stanley N. Doust, who with Alfred W. Dunlop formed the reserves of the Australasian team for the 1914 struggle. Great expectations for a fine contest were centered on the meetings of Froitzheim with Brookes and Wilding, but it was not anticipated that the German team would be able to seriously imperil the chances of the Australasian team of reaching the final round. But apart from that first rubber between Brookes and Froitzheim, in which the German captain came very close to taking the first set and which Brookes won by the fine grit he showed after being several times within a point of losing, the Germans never approached victory in any rubber, although Kreuzer joined the few who have succeeded in taking a set from the great Victorian.

Then the conquering Australasian team journeyed on to Boston, where on the famous Longwood courts they met the team of the British Isles, and again emerged victorious. But this time the two champions each had a narrow escape from defeat. Parke showed once more that his strokes are the ones that touch Brookes at his most vital spot, or rather, perhaps, that against the tactics of Brookes, Parke is at his best. Brookes led all through to the middle of the fifth set. Then the famous Irishman came with a determined run that took him to within a stroke of victory at 5/3, and again at 5/4. But each time the grit and skill of the Victorian enabled him to keep the Irishman on the defensive until he had won the point, and then Brookes ran out, while the Irishman seemed to be regretting his miss of a great chance. Wilding was outstayed by that fine driver, Arthur H. Lowe, but by the greatest good luck in the world managed to hold the Englishman off from taking the third set when it appeared fairly clear that if the latter succeeded in taking that set he would win the remainder. After that the Australasian team had no difficulty in winning the remaining rubber necessary to ensure success, and defaulted then in the remaining two, so as to get as much rest as possible. Brookes and Wilding entirely overwhelmed Parke and Mavrogordato in the doubles, and the play of the Australasian pair in this contest was of a far higher standard than they had previously shown.

In the doubles Decugis and Germot were in brilliant form and defeated the British team. Barrett was not in a brilliant vein, but the French pair were too good and are a superior combination. Germot was quite the best of the four and in several rallies successfully fought the two opponents at close range in volleying interchanges. And the teaming of the French pair was a very strong factor in their success. When Germot would run across to recover a toss that had surprised Decugis, and cleared his racket, Decugis would run across like a flash to cover the side left so unguarded by Germot and instantly the unbroken front of the correct parallel formation was again presented to the foe. And if a chance came to smash Germot was always ready to drop aside, or stoop for his partner to step in and kill with his more deadly skill overhead. And in his best form overhead Decugis has no superior—not even McLoughlin in the challenge round. When he got the match point which came on his own service Decugis took a huge deep breath. Then he delivered a mighty service to Barrett. The latter skied it from the very canvas and the ball would have landed almost on the base line. But it never landed. The Frenchman flung himself up again and smote the ball even harder than he had done before. The ball flew like a bullet from a rifle straight down the center and the last sight was the Englishmen scurrying like rabbits to reach it. But in vain, and it hit the canvas with a resounding smack that announced the French victory in the rubber.

Britain led by two rubbers to one and France still had a chance. But a bare fighting one, for Germot had to beat Parke. One expected Decugis to defeat Mavrogordato after the way he had played against Parke. But that expectation was never realized.

1, A. H. Gobert (France), one of the best players in Europe; 2, Max Decugis (France) and, 3, Miss Ryan (America), champions of the world in mixed doubles on hard courts; 4, M. Germot (France), member Davis Cup team; 5, P. de Borman, captain, and, 6, W. H. Duvivier, members of Davis Cup team representing Belgium.

GROUP OF FRENCH AND BELGIAN PLAYERS.

In the Germot-Parke match the former for the whole of the first set held the upper hand by his all-round skill. He avoided any attempt to outdrive Parke by pace, but he placed with the greatest nicety, and stayed back till he got a chance to get in to the net, which he was always aiming for. When he got to the net he did what every volleyer must do to succeed—attacked on every shot that was possible. He is like Brookes, an artist in every stroke and in all his methods.

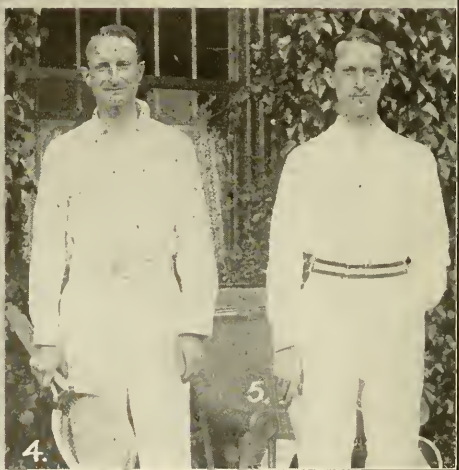

Parke was in fine form and gradually wore the Frenchman down, but the latter's skill and dash kept the spectators in thrills of admiration. Drive after drive of great severity he sent at his opponent, first on one side and then on the other, and though Germot's activity and dash enabled him to take them at first, he gradually lost his activity and failed both to reach as close to the net as was necessary and to take the ball early enough in its flight, and also to play with his initial severity and accuracy. He was simply worn down after the first set, and once he had to stay back it was all over. He often beat Parke by his sudden placing of the ball on the forehand line, the stroke scoring by its audacity as well as by its speed and skill.

THE CHALLENGE TO AMERICA.

And now all the preliminaries had been disposed of. The gladiators of the two great nations were arrayed for battle. The veterans of Australasia had thrown down the gage and the colts of America were certainly ready to lift it up. Immense had been the travels of the visitors from the Antipodes. Their captain, when he started from Australia's shores to prepare for the mighty struggle, was in the opinion of many right past his best. He was a dead star in the reckoning of those who put him at the worst. In the opinion of those who thought best of him, save one or two whose confidence was never one whit shaken in his abilities, he was at the most a second string who might perhaps with luck achieve success. But the present writer was one of those who could not see why he should not with good practice regain his superb form of 1907, which had caused the world's critics to call him the "Mighty" Brookes. Personally I had put his defeat by Parke in 1912 to lack of consistent practice, though quite realizing the fine play of Parke, and Brookes' undue disregard of the possibilities of the backline game.

The practice he needed he obtained in Europe on the hard courts of the Riviera, where he pluckily exposed himself to almost certain defeat by Wilding for the sake of obtaining the best practice possible. But no one else was able to stop his triumphal progress. In each tournament he was apparently practising for his heavy programme, which included not only the winning of the Davis Cup—its chief purpose—but also the repetition of all his successes of 1907; that is, the singles championship of All-England, carrying with it now the title of Champion of the World; the doubles championship of All-England again, with Wilding, and all the lesser titles. He went through them all unbeaten, and though he had slight variations of form he was never defeated or in serious danger of defeat save, as stated, by Wilding, until he entered on the contest for the Championship of the World at Wimbledon. There he met and defeated in turn all the best players in Europe who survived their contests until they met him, having beaten other fine players. Notably Parke was defeated by Froitzheim in decisive fashion, the German so placing himself definitely in the world's best five players. Then Brookes met Froitzheim in the final and a heroic contest ensued.

For two sets and well into the third the Victorian's skill was simply dazzling, and Froitzheim appeared utterly rattled by the strokes with which Brookes met his best efforts. Many times have I seen Brookes play, but never once did I see him use some of the devices by which he turned almost sure defeat into success. He half-volleyed drives after the ball had passed him, and in doing so brought the ball back to the right direction by having his wrist arched back at the moment of impact. One of these he cut so severely that the ball almost bounced backwards after it struck the ground within about three yards of the net, having been half-volleyed from about the service line and near the side line.

GROUP OF ENGLISH PLAYERS.

He scored with many hook volleys, and one he varied by chopping heavily as he struck the ball. Had this burst of skill continued the match would have been soon over. But I had anticipated a "bad time" for Brookes owing to the intense and muggy heat. Every one of his reverses for the last five years has been in such weather. He faltered in the third set. For a moment the German did not realize that he still had a chance, but as he did, he rose pluckily to the occasion. Once more he was against a mere human being, and not a wizard. He took the next two sets and led at 3/2 in the fifth set by taking Brookes' service, and he had won all his own for some time.

But just here the grit of the Victorian, and a "second wind," enabled him to resume the offensive. He took the German's service, and by winning all his own led by a game to 7/6. Then the German had the service. But Brookes had waited for this game so as to have the sun behind him. He is always a great general. Getting to 30-all Brookes went for a finish. Three times he drove the returns with all the immense speed of his early career, when he was a player who went for pace alone, and hit as hard as any of the mere speed merchants of the present day.

But though not exhausted, he was like Froitzheim tired, and he put his backhand returns rather feebly over the base line till on his third 'vantage' he gained the net, and then by a marvellous anticipation he intercepted an attempt at an alley backhand pass and scored with a splendid backhand volley deep to the center and clean. But it was a narrow shave and Froitzheim more greatly deserved success than did Parke at Longwood, though he was not so close to achieving it. Brookes won, 6/2, 6/1, 5/7, 4/6, 8/6.

Davis Cup Matches

BY "AUSTRAL," OF THE SYDNEY REFEREE.

This splendid contest, which will rank with that of 1907 and 1908 as the three most closely fought of the whole series, was favored by fine but very hot weather, far too oppressive for tournament play. It was hot and muggy to a most unpleasant degree. The crowd exceeded all records and totaled on the third day well over fourteen thousand persons, all comfortably seated on the huge stands on three sides. The west side was taken up by a smaller stand for the officials and members. Practically every seat was paid for and the total receipts were in excess of £10,000. Even after paying for the huge stands, there was a good surplus to return to the associations that sent their teams, which sum will be devoted to the improvement of the game in both countries.

Three courts had been marked out within the arena. The side ones were for the singles matches and the center one for the doubles, and by this arrangement it was possible to avoid using the same court twice on the same day, and as the space was necessary to enable so vast a crowd to see the games, it was an excellent idea, though it did entail the crowd being rather far away.

At the back and all round the sides was a green baize fence, ten feet high, which gave the players a most perfect sight of the ball. The ball boys were a special class of young fellows, who all play the game themselves and knew that they should move quickly and unobtrusively in removing the balls from the courts. They did their work splendidly. The line umpires were all foremost players in the game and amongst them I noticed R. L. Murray, W. M. Johnston, F. B. Alexander, L. W. Glazebrook, Dean Mathey, George M. Church, T. R. Pell, Clarence Griffin, G. F. Touchard, Bernon Prentice. W. A. Larned was footfault judge. He had the unpleasant task of "calling" on several occasions, and did his work impartially. The following took turns in the umpire's chair: A. L. Hoskins, E. F. Torrey, George T. Adee, W. J. Clothier and E. C. Conlin, and called the score loudly and promptly, yet waiting for the applause to cease, so that the call could be heard. These are little things, but they count greatly in lessening the tension on the player.

The result of the draw was to throw the strain of the most important crises on the colt Williams, and it speaks well for his fineness of grit that he stood that strain well, yet not without showing it. He is a wonderful boy, but he is still only a boy, and any man would feel the strain. But he showed none at all in his wonderful outburst of brilliancy at the opening against Wilding, though he was opposed by the player who three months before was considered unbeatable.

Williams won the service and Wilding sent him to the southern end to commence. Wilding had his usual wide-brimmed, green-lined white hat. Williams, unwisely I think, wore no hat to shield his head from the fierce sun. Play commenced at 2.20 and the stands were quite full.

Wilding made a weak return of the first service and Williams killed with a severe drive. A service scored clean, another was just tipped as it flew past, and a second service of great pace was left alone by Wilding, who looked up for a decision that it was a fault. The services were of great speed and almost unplayable.

Wilding served and netted a half volley of the return, the depth of the next return beat him, but Williams outed a wild drive of the return and mulled a backhand return. Then a fierce return scored by depth and speed and a severe drive of a short length ball from Wilding gave Williams the second game. Then Williams faulted, but scored with his next service. Wilding held the lead for four points in this third game by gauging the length of his drives, so as to take advantage of the bad position of Williams, who stood a little behind the service line to hold Wilding at the back court. That is the position he always volleys from. (I shall ask my readers to remember that all through, for it is the novelty and the weakness of his tactics, and yet, if he could justify it, a formidable proposition to answer. I also want them to realize that this account is from shorthand notes made at the instant, and so speaks mostly of what was to happen then as still in the future. It does not treat it all as part of an account written after months.)

Then, after a 'vantage against him Williams got ahead, but threw away two 'vantages by double faults. He scored as often by the severity of his second services and the keeping of Wilding on the defensive. You cannot make omelettes without breaking eggs, nor serve severe second services without double faults. Williams won the last point by two fine volleys to Wilding's backhand, which was weak. He led, 3/0. The crowds were justly delighted at his fine lead. I was not perturbed for I know Wilding to be a slow starter.

But here he did start and took his own service to 15. His services were well placed and caused Williams to hit out three times with weak backhand strokes. He netted one weak backhand drive of a return. He won the game by attacking Williams' backhand which is stylish but not strong. Williams held his lead by taking his own service to 15. Two fine services, an out by himself, a clean second volley, and a successful attack on Wilding's backhand scored the game to 15—4/1: Williams leads. Williams led against the service to 40/30 by drives of great power, two scoring, and Wilding netting a third with a forehand volley. Then, as Wilding ran in, Williams aimed to drop short and netted deuce. Then he mulled a return and a cruel service made him net, 4/2.

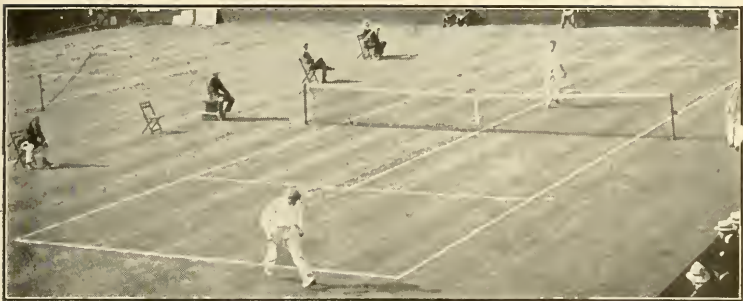

Wilding ran the score to 15/40 by a deep return, a slow drop to Williams' feet of return, and an error by Williams, after Williams had won the first by a fine service and drive of return. A good smash after a rally, and a good service deuced, and then Williams mulled a drive and netted a good drive by Wilding. At last Wilding had a chance to pull level on his service. Wilding's whole play was now marked by the most extreme care. He was playing patiently for Williams' weak spots and taking no risks.

Williams' best shots were coming back safely, and his weak ones were punished with exact justice for their element of error. This was throwing a strain on the boy under which he was to later break.

But not yet. Williams took Wilding's service at 15 by a fault, a fine volley and an error 0/40. Then he just outed a fine volley, but scored with a deep return that Wilding netted. Wilding was too safe in this game and lacked attack; score, 5/3; Williams leads and to serve. It looked serious, but Wilding was playing well within himself. He netted his first return weakly. Then Williams faulted and Wilding outed his next return. The crowd was tense with excitement. They almost groaned as he served another double fault, 30-all. Wilding got in to the net and scored a fine smash and then the colt netted a smash of a weak toss of the return, 4/5.

Wilding served and Williams scored twice with fine volleying as Wilding stayed back. But the colt netted one and outed three returns, 5-all.

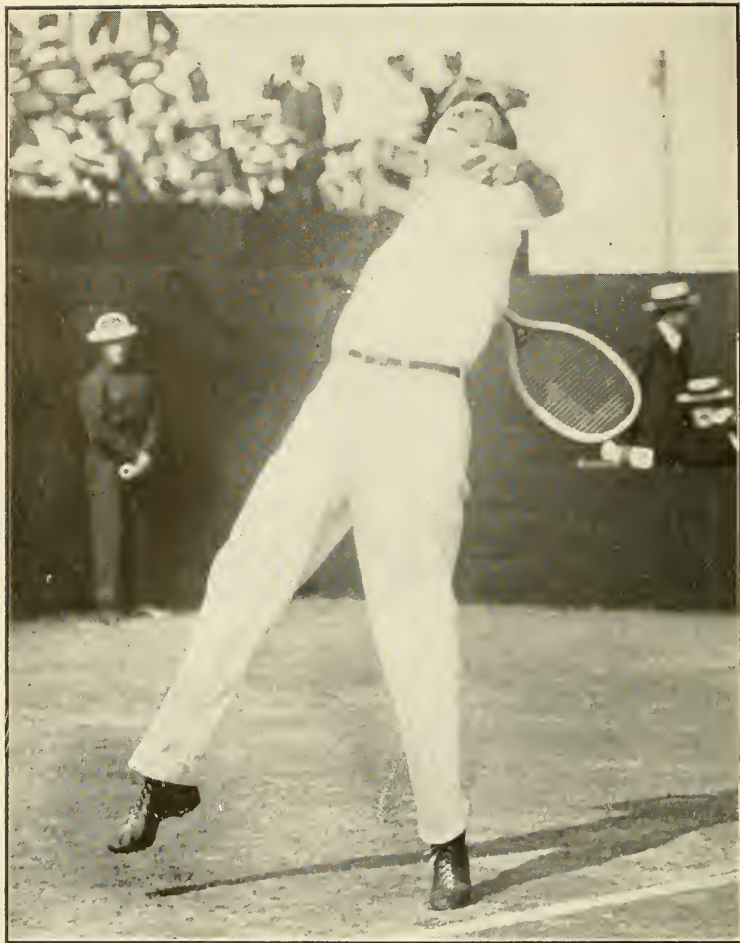

Williams was evidently aware of the loss of a chance and hurried his strokes in the next game. Wilding led at 0/30 on Williams' errors, but two services scored. Then Williams faulted twice, with two good rallies in between, one to each. A fine save of a net ball gave Wilding a 'vantage, and a double gave him the game. Even an Australian could feel for the boy's and the crowd's disappointment. He was feeling the pressure of Wilding's skill, and was trying to force his play. Wilding now led, 6/5, and to serve, and he carved the game out with deadly accuracy. A fine serve was outed, he took the net, and compelled Williams into a net after a good rally. Then Williams out-volleyed him. Again Wilding got in and forced an error, 40/15, and a fine service was put out. First set to Australasia. Wilding's precision was too much for the colt.

And he got more precise as the game went on and gradually introduced a lot of volleying into his game, always splendidly timed and rarely on any risky position. It was the play of a man who knew the value of every stroke as against the opponent before him.

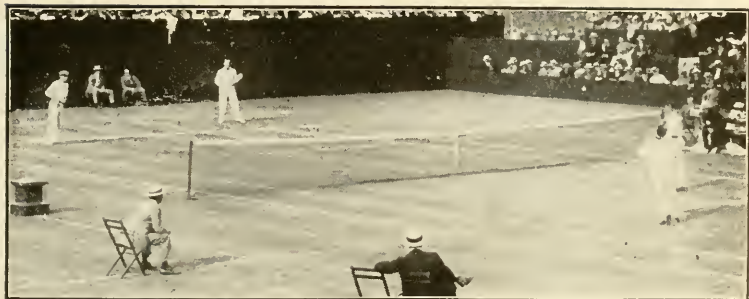

Williams scored the first game by fine services and volleying, but here he was halted by the play of a master who scarcely ever played a loose ball. Do what Williams might, the ball came back, and he tried harder and harder and played too hurriedly. Wilding met him by finely judged returns that just gave Williams too much to do, and he netted and outed in a run of seven points. His faulty position was responsible for most of his errors. He lost four games in succession, in which he only scored five points, and only one of these five was the result of his own good play. He made two doubles in the fifth game. At this stage he was trying clearly to eliminate his errors by elaborately correct strokes—4/1; Wilding leads.

A long game followed, on Wilding's service, and Williams pulled up from 15/40 to 'vantage. Williams was better, but not good enough to take the game, nor to answer Wilding's solid services and all-round excellence; score, 5/1.

Another long game followed. Wilding got in once to volley, but Williams held the net all through, and scored some fine volleys, one splendid back-hand to toss off. He finished, after a double, with a fine service ace, and then a stiff-wristed low drive volley across court of the return. It is the ability to continually make these strokes from the service line that could alone justify Williams' position; score, 5/2.

Wilding made short work of the next game. He passed Williams as the latter closed in on his return. Then he banged a weak return to Williams' backhand and closed in, compelling Williams to net a weak return. Two sets to none; Australasia leads.

A long game opened the third set, and it came to Wilding mainly through the continued errors of Williams. Two double faults, the second after being foot-faulted, and three losses through faulty position and other weak strokes, spoiled the result of two fine services and two outs by Wilding. The next game went to Wilding by catching Williams out of position almost wholly. The strokes Wilding had to make were easy; score, 2/0.

Again Wilding won Williams' service in spite of three services that he could only tip, and all but one of his five points he won on the same error by Williams. The last point was a bad smash of an easy ball by Williams after he had worked up a good position by fine volleying; score, 3/0. Again Wilding took his own service easily. Williams' play was at its worst and Wilding was just paddling home. Pushy backhands, bad positions and a feeble attempt to pass and a weak toss were the errors; score, 4/0.

Then Williams suddenly started a new attempt. He gave up the idea of steadiness, and tried desperately to find his game by hard hitting. He took a game to love on his own service, and led at 15/40 on Wilding's. One volley of a ball was scored clean, in which he hit the ball after it had almost got past him, bringing it back by the angle of his wrist. Wilding then took the net and denced, but Williams took the game, 4/2.

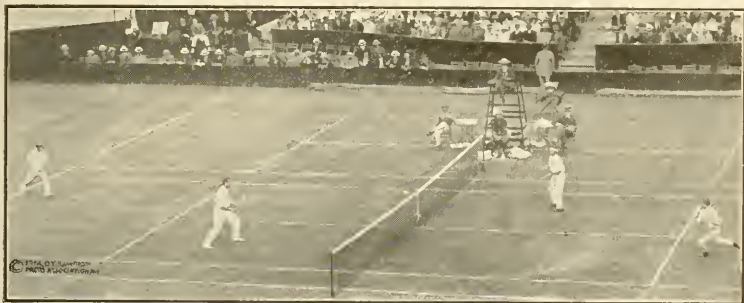

Three bad shots from a bad position and a double fault finished this effort, and when Wilding, on his own service, ran to 40/0, from two errors, and his own fine drives to pass Williams, it looked all over. Then Williams made a splendid effort and by fine volleying evened up that game, and after several splendid rallies, in which the colt played the most brilliant series of strokes from all over the court, he took the game to wild cheering. But Wilding must here be debited with an error in tactics, for at 40/0 he had given up the steady back-line game that had succeeded for a series of rushes to the net in the hurry to finish and was beaten in the volleying rallies that ensued. It is always best to keep to a winning game.

Australasia had scored first blood.

"Lay on MacDuff, and damned be he, who first cries: Hold! Enough!" Then came the battle on which the hopes of America were centered. Clearly on the prior results, and by the play in the first match Williams could not be expected to beat Brookes, and America, therefore, had to rely on McLoughlin winning all his three rubbers. And the majority of your enthusiasts expected him to beat both Brookes and Wilding. They could not imagine how either of them could hope to answer their champion's speed.

Brookes and Wilding vs. McLoughlin and Bundy—McLoughlin running in.

Americans are too fond of speed. But they admit now that it is not the speed of the Californian Comet that won for him, except in service smashing. It was the subtlety of his volleying and his ability to hold the net by these features. He won—that is, by adopting Brookes' methods—a tribute to the Victorian of the highest.

Brookes served first and won the first game by finely placed services to Mac's backhand. McLoughlin followed and evened by the combined excellence of his services, and the volleys of the returns. But right away Brookes showed an ability to handle the services that was a surprise to the "fans." Brookes took his next service to 15, the last two beating Mac utterly. But the Comet responded to love by fine volleying to 30/0, and then two service aces. Brookes took the next to 15 by a fine series of strokes from close-in volleying, stepping back a-chopping, blocking tosses, and a fine service.

Brookes got the services into play next game, but was beaten by the American's network, and a service that battered his racket aside; score, 3-all. Each was winning his own service with such certainty that a long duel was clearly to be expected. A finely concealed toss scored the first point for Mac, but he netted two, and Brookes held a lead to deuce, and then got in two stinging services. By this time it was evident that both were at the top of their game and the play was superb. "Who will break through first?" is my note of the instant. Brookes took the next game by volleys of the returns, and Mac was clearly learning to get the ball back, but he could not gain command. He led, 40/15, and then double-faulted. Then Brookes, in a long rally, showed his wonderful capacities at the back of the court, passing Mac close in on his fifth stroke. Deuce and two service aces finished the game.

At this stage it looked as if Brookes would be the one to break through. He was returning better than Mac was, but Mac carried the next game to deuce, and one of Brookes' points was a very doubtful decision. Mac evened with a superb drive, but then Brookes took the next two points with the most superb volleying even he is capable of. The last was a low forehand volley of one of Mac's absolutely fiercest drives taken at full stretch within a foot of the ground. It scored clean down Mac's forehand line.

Mac evened by six hits, i. e., two volleys of returns, and two services of great power. He tried lobs in the next game, but Brookes was equal to any scheme, and scored a wonderful rally; two service aces, and then each outed once. So the superb duel went on. Tremendous services were returned to start splendid rallies, but the advantage of the service was too closely pressed to allow the striker-out to get a chance to win. At 7/8, 15/30, Mac double-faulted, but rang in two severe services that scored, though one looked like a fault. A fine effort was a splendid recovery of a landed toss by Brookes, and a terrific smash of a deep toss by Mac. He never lets any toss land.

T. C. BUNDY,

Brookes and Wilding vs. McLoughlin and Bundy—McLoughlin ready to smash.

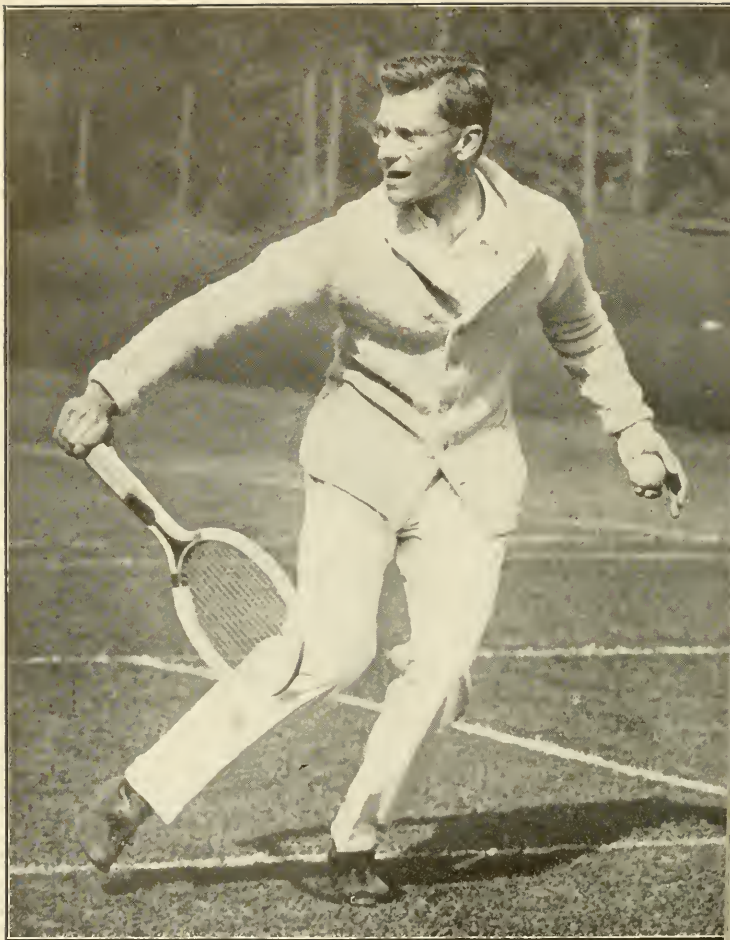

At 7-all Mac started to toss with fine judgment and concealment, and fairly bothered Brookes by the mixture. He got within a point of taking Brookes' service after a fine rally in which he gained command by a toss, and then finished with a deep smash. But Brookes scored with a volley of return and Mac netted three returns, and scored with one slow drop as Brookes ran in. But he went close to taking this game and was only held off by the two fine finishing services.

And then Brookes responded in the most critical game of the rubber. A good return was followed by two fine low, slow drives, and the third a backhand cross scored clean. Mac missed an easy volley of the next return, and the next return was so low that Mac outed it in the attempt to volley; score, 6/40—three set points!

Bang! came a service like a shot out of a gun. Another was just tipped. The Comet was a blaze of furious energy. A third was rammed in, but Brookes took it with surpassing skill and slipped the ball slowly back to Mac's feet as he ran in. Mac spooned it up weakly and rushed closer in a cat-like attitude. Cooly, and yet with equal activity, Brookes stepped quickly round and got the easy kill off the ground on his forehand. He could put it where he liked. He chose to drive like a bullet to the off. And with a marvelous anticipation, or perchance a bit of luck, Mac had jumped that way, volleyed the ball with a superb effort and sent it back to Brookes' feet, and he in surprise half volleyed out. There was a deep sigh of relief from all the vast crowd, and a burst of applause when the Comet volleyed the next return and scored the game with a service. But it was a close shave, and a superb save.

In quick succession, 11-all and 12-all followed, though Brookes pushed against each service. He served his first double fault at 11-all, and evened after 40/0 at 12/11. He scored the twenty-fifth game to love, and then gave the crowd a thrill as he ran to 15/40 against the service by a fine pass and a brilliant smash. But again the Comet flashed brilliantly, and at the end Brookes played several weak backhands and was clearly tiring. Small wonder. But equally Mac's service was weaker and he was not getting the tremendous pace and he only saved those set points by careful volleying, not as before by ferocious services. Brookes again led at 14/13 and 15/14, the play being still of almost perfect skill by both, save for the signs of fatigue. The twenty-ninth game was an awful struggle, and ran to five 'vanages before Brookes could score it. Mac's youth was allowing him to stand the strain, and he scored three points by fine drives sent suddenly to Brookes' forehand. And Brookes was moving in more slowly, and only held the game by sheer grit. Then Mac ("as fresh as ever" is my note made at the opening stroke of this game) scored his next service to love, Brookes only getting one ball into play and that was promptly smashed.

Brookes led, 40/15, in the next game, but, moving in slowly, was passed by two severe drives of the returns. He handled four short lobs in the next rally, but he netted the next low return, was beaten by a hard drive of return, and then running in well on his next service, netted a low backhand volley of a good return, but he had volleyed all like it before. Weariness I think.

Now Mac led for the first time and had the service, but Brookes responded pluckily, and by skilful, slow drop returns caused Mac to net two, and at 40/30 closed in on his return and beat Mac with a fine volley, but he tried that again and failed and with a fast deep service to Brookes' backhand the Comet had won the finest set ever played in the history of the game. And it was clearly the match also, for youth had already told, and would tell to the end.

The first game in the second set was all brilliant strokes. Mac scored two fine drives, but the game went to Brookes. Then Mac scored his own service by fine serving to 30, and leading all through the next by severe drives, which either scored or made Brookes net or out, and one toss. Brookes was tiring more visibly. His backhand strokes are not followed through and he is slow in, so giving room for the fast drives that Mac is now using. Mac took his service to 15 by close net work that drove Brookes into errors. Each then won his service to love, practically by their fine deliveries, and Mac led, 4/2. In the next game Mac pulled up from 0/40 to 30/40, but missed in trying for a hard drive past Brookes; score, 4/3.

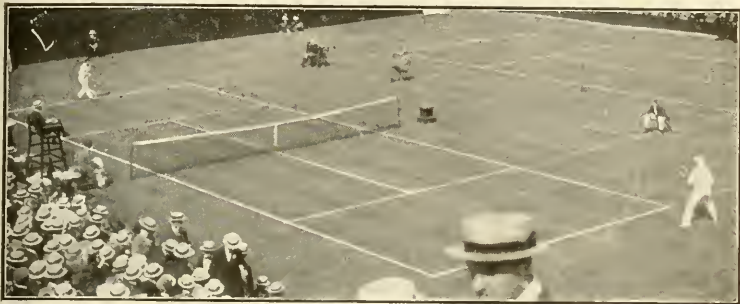

Brookes now made a gallant attempt to save the set, and a series of fine low drives gave him the first two points. But Mac then got in and scored with a delicate short drop volley with an out and a volley of the return, and after a long rally scored with a toss volley that Brookes let fall, and it appeared to him to be out. So it did to me, looking along the line, but the line umpire did not think so, and Williams and many alongside me agreed with him. Brookes played badly in the next, and, coming in slowly, Mac drove for aces and scored the second set.

It was all over now, and I expressed to Williams a hope that Brookes would not try for the third set, so as to leave himself fit for the double next day! Mac took his first service to love by pure speed, only having to volley one return. Brookes led at 40/15 in the next game, but again came in slowly, and Mac scored by the pace and droop of his returns, catching him far back. So McLoughlin gained a 'vantage and then Brookes made a weak, high volley with every sign of weariness. It was as much mental as physical fatigue, and the long strain of tournaments possibly had their share in causing it; score, 2/0. Mac leads.

The lead against him waked Brookes up, and at last he scored against Mac's service, and to 15! But two of the points were bad smashes by Mac, and one came from a net ball. It was in the early part of the rallies that Brookes showed his effort.

Williams vs. Wilding—Wilding in foreground.

Revived by the success, Brookes served hard and rushed in. "Nice volley," said Mac, pleasantly, to one humming volley of his return as he watched it score clean. Now 2-all, and the crowd cheered heartily at Brookes' pull-up. Each won his service easily, but the rallies on Brookes' service were longer fought. Brookes took the last by solid overhead play of tosses. And he held Mac to duce in the next service, 4/3.

Brookes led to 40/30 in spite of a double fault. "Good service," said Mac, when Brookes took the fifth point clean. And then Mac rushed the game, and having a 'vantage by a fine save scored by a mis-hit, 5/3, and the crowd got up to leave, amid cries of "Sit down" from all the officials, but it took quite three minutes for them to allow the game to proceed. And then Mac ran out to love, Brookes offering but a half-hearted opposition. Only the last rally of all was contested, and that was finished by a fine smash by McLoughlin which scored decisively.

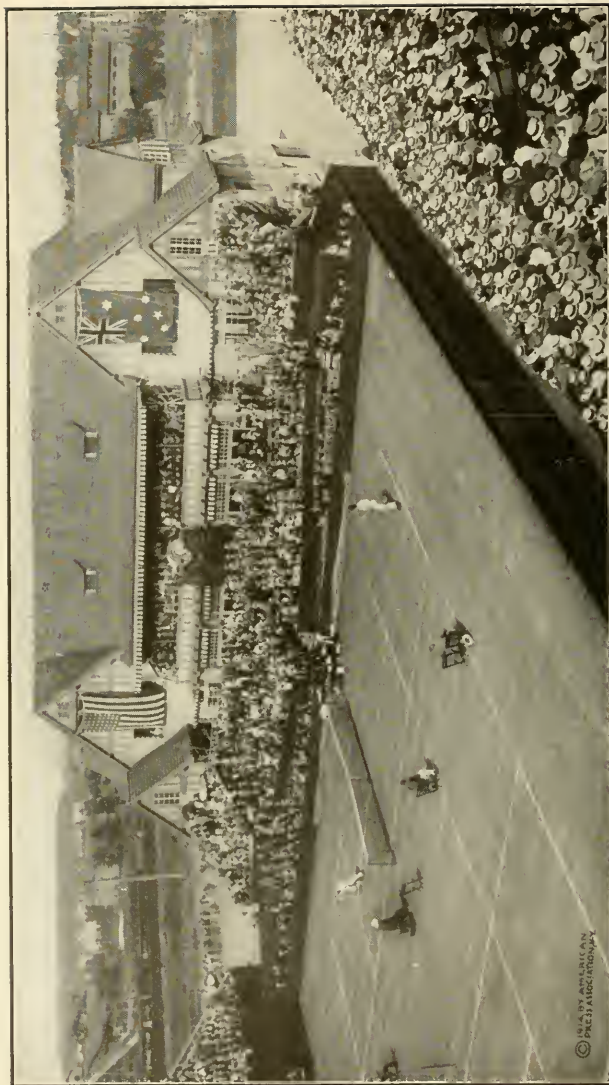

Every player and ex-champion I spoke to had the same answer to my question "What did you think of that?" "It is," said W. A. Larned, "the finest set I ever saw played. I never saw two players at the same time preserve such a high standard of play." So said R. D. Wrenn, F. B. Alexander and H. H. Hackett, and so said every single man I spoke to. The answer was almost stereotyped. T. C. Bundy in answer to my question spun an imaginary comment: "The first set," I mean, he added, "whoever won that took the match."

THE DOUBLES.

Up to the very last moment the American Selection Committee were in doubt as to who they would pick of Bundy and Behr to partner McLoughlin. Actually, I am told on fairly reliable authority that McLoughlin was trying up to ten o'clock the night before to find out who would be chosen. He made no bones about his own preference for Bundy, but at the same time said it was for the Committee to do the choosing. "It is up to you fellows," is what I am told he said. Before and after the match I agreed with him. He and Bundy are a pair. He and Behr are two clashing mentalities on the court. I saw that clearly in practice.

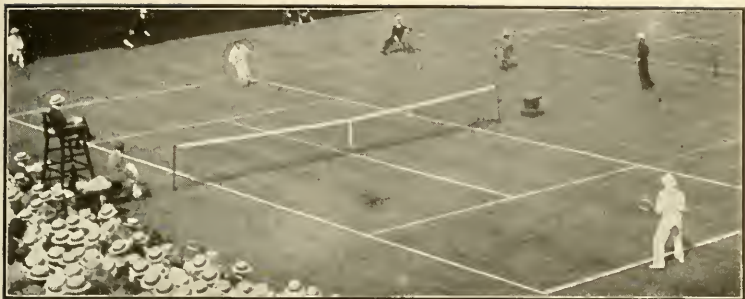

But whose was the mind that ran the tactics with which they opened I do not know. Directly the game opened they commenced tossing, and that was clearly a mistake. It put them on the defensive, and that is not Mac's game. He had shown he could return Brookes' service low and clean and hard and he should have stuck to that.

And I am in entire disagreement with all the opinions I have heard as to the relative merits of the play of Mac and Bundy. I do not think Bundy was class enough for the match, although I think he was a better partner for Mac than Behr and that Mac and Behr would not have done so well. His network is not good enough, and Mac knew this and so, when he saw their defeat certain in the middle of the match, he valiantly tried to rise to such a height as to carry the game off by his own play, and went to pieces, largely no doubt through the feeling that he was to blame for Bundy's inclusion.

Bundy, it is said, only lost one service; McLoughlin lost three. That is surely hasty criticism. Very often it is the man at the net who wins the service games and, in my opinion, this was so in this match. Mac was always threatening to jump in to nip off the return of Bundy's service, while the latter hardly ever did so. Mac was certainly wild, even at the first, but if he had had a stronger partner he would not have gone cold for a share in the play. I am not overlooking Bundy's fine tossing of deep smashes, nor his pluck and grit. But his low volleying was the weak point that drove them to the back court. America is actually without a strong pair.

Wilding was the best of the four. His smashes were splendid. His nerve was equal to any crisis, and his low volleying sound and forcible. In short, he played a splendid game right through. Brookes at stages rose above him, and at one time played absolutely wonderful tennis, even for him. But he was patchy at times and did not handle the tosses as well as Wilding. He served better than Wilding did, but lost one service, while Wilding lost none. But he was more assistance to Wilding in threatening a poach than Wilding was to him.

THE PLAY.

Brookes had the first service and started from the northern end. He was met with a weak toss by McLoughlin and netted. He did the same to Bundy's toss of the return. Mac then went for a wild bluff—"out," and the crowd applauded wildly, thinking it was in. Bundy outed his return, and then Mac got a fine return hard to Brookes' feet, 30/40. Wilding killed the next return with a fine backhand smash, and finished the next rally with a fine volley. Bundy then outed his next return. The first game was to Australasia, but its supremacy did not look too assured.

The players must have been a bit nervous at the greatness of the issue, for there was a similar hesitation about the attack of McLoughlin and Bundy on McLoughlin's service, for mostly the servers win at first till the players warm up. McLoughlin served severely and led, 40/15, but the next two returns beat him, and Australasia gained a 'vantage before he took the game by good volleying. But it was a good sign, from the Australian point of view, that both Australians were taking his services well, and he got the last point by a lucky volley when beaten by a severe drive by Brookes. Bundy played well in the next game, scoring a fine drive and nearly scoring with a clever interception. Wilding served well and led, 40/15. Then Brookes netted an interception of the return, but Bundy mulled an easy volley, 2/1. Australasia leads.

M. E. McLoughlin.

Bundy started off with a "double," and then Wilding made a fine drive to finish the next point, and after Brookes had outed, Wilding got another return to Bundy's feet, and the latter netted. After a long rally America scored and then McLoughlin intercepted Brookes' return, and deuced, and gaining the next point had a 'vantage. But Brookes scored by a fine lift-drive-volley from deep, and then went very close with a fine smash. Bundy was then sent back with a landed toss, and from the stop netting lobbed several times, but Australasia scored and finally, after another deuce, took the game. Bundy's play in this game was below class; score, 3/1; Australasia leads.

Brookes then won his service to love by good service, the returns being promptly killed. McLoughlin served and also won to love, and in the first rally the crowd showed the strain by "applauding a mere error" (my note at the instant) by Australasia, 3/2. Wilding served and an exceedingly in-and-out tussle ensued. Wilding actually won after serving three double faults, and on the first of them, which gave America a 'vantage, the crowd applauded loudly when he was footfaulted on his second service. Granted, it may have been at the score, but at least it was ill-timed and regrettable. Three times the Americans had the 'vantage, but each time Wilding got in a splendid service and saved coolly. He double faulted again. Next stroke Wilding let a ball fall in, giving another 'vantage. But after sixteen points the Australasian pair won, 5/3. In Bundy's next service Mac was very threatening at the net and, Bundy serving well, Australasia only scored one point by the fine play of Brookes. Brookes then served and led, 40/15, having his services tossed, and he and Wilding smashing well. But Mac scored with a fine driving return, and Bundy's tosses took the next point. Then Brookes got in two stinging services, one being netted, the other outed, 1/0.

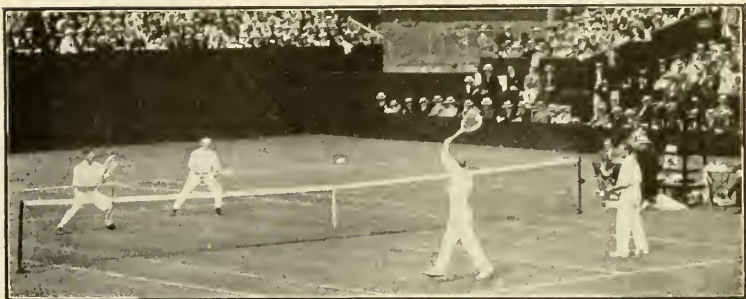

McLoughlin served next, and smashed for the first point, winning three more by his fine services being outed. But he missed an easy backhand smash. Brookes followed and was beaten by a slow drop return by Mac. Then Brookes went for a fine backhand smash, and was evidently astonished by the decision that the ball went out, and also not a little upset. He had no right to be so upset. A long tossing series by Bundy was at last ended by Wilding bouncing the ball into the grand stand, and he did the same in the next rally. But Mac's severe return beat Brookes clean, and Bundy's toss landed, and Brookes netted in trying to cut his recovery. At this stage Mac was driving with great pace and Bundy tossing. It scored by the variety, but it showed the different methods of the two Americans. 2/0; America leads.

And when Bundy scored his service to 30 the crowd were very delighted. Mac was threatening to poach and our men scored two points by tosses of the returns, but Bundy's services were good. The crowd roared with delight at the finish. Wilding then won his service to 15, smashing finely. The rallies were long, mostly smashes of Bundy's tosses. Then McLoughlin served and Wilding scored the first point by a hard drive. Mac jumped in to intercept in the next rally and outed, but won the next stroke. Then Wilding returned low and, the volley coming up, killed with a smash. A service beat Wilding clean. But sending another as good to Brookes, the latter sent it back low and Mac netted. 3/2; America leads. Brookes scored his next service to 15, two points with smashes, and two returns were outed. But Mac scored with one hard return.

Bundy served and led, 40/15, by his own fine play. In one rally he volleyed three difficult balls and scored at last and he placed his services splendidly. Brookes beat him with one return, but he scored the last point after a close rally. The crowd cheered heartily, 4/3. Wilding served and both Americans centered a series of tosses to Brookes facing the sun and at last he outed. At 30-all Mac scored a splendid forehand alley drive, when seemingly beaten, and a long rally ensued, which Australasia saved and so probably saved the set. Then Wilding double-faulted, but evened with a mighty service, and finally scored the game 4-all. It was a very close shave, indeed, for Australasia.

Mac won his next service in spite of both he and Bundy missing easy smashes. His services scored on their own merits. Brookes served and was again met with tosses, one easy one being missed by him. But at 30-all he sent down two fine services which won. Bundy served and Brookes won the first two points with fine, speedy drives, but Mac then intercepted well and killed two returns. Brookes' next return was outed, but again Mac scored three strokes by his interceptions, and the threat of them. This is where Mac was doing fine work by winning Bundy's service game at a critical stage. Once more Wilding cut things fine in the next game. At 15/30 he served a double, 15/40 (two set points). Mac netted his return and then there was a splendid rally from which the Americans emerged with an easy chance to Mac. He mullied it in the silliest way and we breathed again. The next service was netted and also Bundy's return, 6-all. Here was seen the effect of the heavy pressure on Mac. The previous game shows how he was forcing himself. Here he broke badly it is true, but one must recognize the strain on him through Bundy's weakness.

Mac served again and led, 40/15; tosses by Brookes and Wilding, after rallies, going out, and Wilding netting a return, and our point coming from a smash by Brookes. Then Brookes beat Bundy with a diving forehand return straight at him by its sheer audacity. Again Brookes rose to the occasion and commanded the rally, which he finished with a smash, and the Americans left to each other in the next point. Brookes tried to finish the game with a lift drive, but netted. But he secured the net with a fine toss volley in the next rally, and the Americans outed. But Mac smashed the next ball hard at Wilding's feet and there was a roar as Wilding, by a most lucky fluke half-volley scooped the ball high in the air, and Mac netted an easy smash in his surprise and in trying for a kill of a very deep ball.

Bundy and McLoughlin vs. Brookes and Wilding.
DAVIS CUP DOUBLES.

"Good luck, Australasia," called some one in the crowd. It was good luck, as well as good play. Mac broke down in trying too much, but I admire him for that, as he saw he had to do something. Brookes' play at this crisis rose to the highest of the four during the match.

Brookes made short work of his next service, three points coming from smashes. Brookes' last smash hit the net and rolled over too short for Mac's desperate attempt to reach it. Australasia certainly had a lot of luck at the end of that set. Wilding's toss and Mac's misses and his net ball. Two sets to none; Australasia leads.

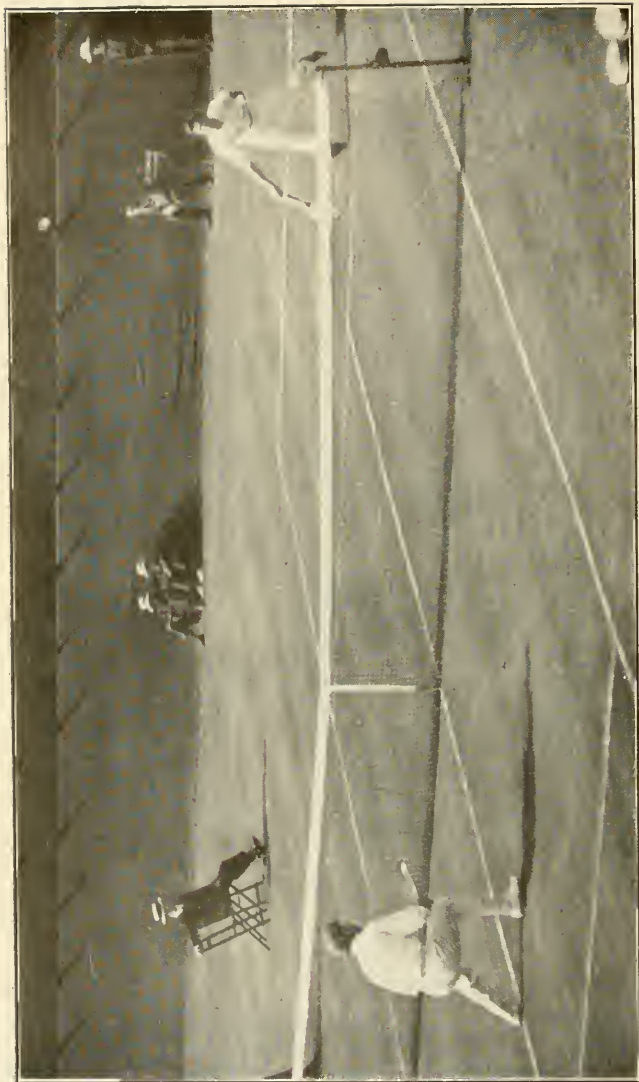

Mac was gradually going wild in his endeavor to save the match and was worrying over his misses. After leading, 40/0, Mac just missed a lovely volley, but Brookes had the same bad luck in just outing an attempt to toss a half-volley of a ball banked to his feet.

Wilding followed and led, 40/15, by two smashes and a net by Mac. Then Mac returned hard and drove Wilding's weak answer for an ace. Bundy got his return over Brookes' head. "Can't reach it," said Brookes. At the third deuce Wilding got in two fine services, and killed a toss with another fine smash. Mac had some trouble in winning his next service, and served a double fault. Brookes was again assailed with a run of tosses in the opening rally, but America outed, and Bundy was beaten by a curly second service which he outed. He was finding great trouble in handling the slower but more twisted second services of both Australasiaus. Wilding won the last point by a fine smash. 2-all. Bundy served and Mac again scored by good interception, missing one easy one, but the last two services were good and scored themselves. 3/2. Bundy scored the only point for America against Wilding's next service with a fine drive down the center from outside the lines. Mac missed the last point with a wild drive, and his wildness at this stage in the attempt to save the match was very noticeable. He won his next service after 30/0 and 30/40. There was one superb volleying rally between Brookes and Mac, which Brookes won. It must be realized also that Mac had to force his way into the rallies. Leading at 30/40, Brookes played a most perfect rally, in which he showed all his wonderful skill in every stroke. The ball crossed the net about sixteen times, and at last Mac scored with a rather lucky half volley. Then Mac scored with a smash and a service ace. 4/3; America leads. Brookes served, and a long game followed. The Americans scored with a toss and then Wilding killed two after patient tosses from the stop-netting by Bundy. That sort of tossing was the main part of the closing games, but Wilding was always too severe and Brookes too steady. Mac beat Brookes with a forehand return to make the score 30-all, and a rally followed. "Outside," roared a youthful line umpire, with delight too evident in his voice. 'Vantage to America! But Brookes beat Bundy with the service and after a couple more 'vantages to Australasia Wilding scored with a severe smash, and once again Brookes beat Bundy with his service. 4-all. Bundy served and led, 40/0, but Wilding scored three fine drives for deuce. Then Bundy scored a fine volley, and Brookes netted a half volley. 4/5; America leads. Wilding took his service to love, hardly a ball being returned effectively. 5-all. Again Mac went close to losing his service, the Australasians having a 'vantage after 40/15. Wilding's fine play was mainly responsible in tossing and volleying. At the 'vantage Brookes and Bundy had a fine tussle and Brookes just failed to win. Then Mac got in two fine services and won, 6/5.

Brookes served and led, 40/15, by three fine deliveries. Then he missed a smash weakly, but a curly service was utterly too much for Bundy. 6-all. Bundy served and a featureless though good game went to the Americans, who played well, and Mac scored one fine interception.

Wilding served and won a point. Then he let a ball fall in, and a net ball beat Brookes by hopping over his racket close in. Wilding, Brookes, and Wilding again scored by smashes after long duels between them and Bundy. In one rally Bundy sent up five tosses. 6-all.

Then came the startling end. Mac served. Both Americans let a lob after a long rally fall untouched. Mac netted Wilding's return. He volleyed Brookes' return to Wilding. Again the latter beat him with a hard drive and Brookes caused him to net in the next rally. 7/6; Australasia leads, and Brookes to serve Mac.

It looked all over. But Mac's eyes glared and at the end of a rally he killed a fine toss volley by Brookes with a deep smash. Brookes netted Bundy's return. Wilding outed an easy smash. 0/40. The fans dared to hope? But, in turn, Brookes rose to the occasion. His service was outed by Bundy. Mac got a chance to kill and made a rotten smash of an easy ball, rushing at it overeagerly as he saw the chance to even the score and save the set and match.

Again Bundy was beaten by Brookes' service, screwing it weakly out through the great break. Deuce. Brookes got in a fine service and a good smash of the lob of it. Match point. Then he sent down a most horribly curly service to Bundy and the latter, doing his utmost, could only get it back to the net. Australasia had won, and no one doubted that this was the end. No one, least of all the American papers, gave Williams a sporting chance of beating Brookes. In fact, if he had read the papers he would have been entirely daunted by the way they wrote down his chances of success—and his fine recovery afterwards showed how wrong they were.

BROOKES VS. WILLIAMS—AUSTRALASIA IN SIGHT OF VICTORY.

Brookes won the toss and served first from the northern end. Right away the boy was beaten by the strangeness of Brookes' service. He has met left-handed servers before, notably Fottrell, whose service appears to be swifter than that of Brookes, but it is the command of various breaks and the change of pace that makes Brookes' service so difficult. From what I had seen of the method of Wilding's game against Williams I had anticipated that Brookes would do as he did—attack Williams' backhand, and go to the net. But Brookes won the first game, to love, and only one ball came back, once. Against the first service Brookes returned to the backhand, and followed the return to the net and Williams netted. But the colt passed finely in the second rally. Then he double-faulted, outed a backhand attempt to pass, and faulted again. 2/0. Brookes scored the third game with greater ease. Two absolute service aces, and two outs of returns in attempts to pass, in reply to services he did not understand better than a mere beginner, were the items. 3/0. In that game the colt was scarcely able to put his racket on the ball. In the next game a good service gave him a point, then erred twice in attempting to pass Brookes, and again scored a service. He was caught out of position as against Wilding in the next point; but after alternately being beaten by the return or winning with the service he at last took a game, 3/1.

He actually, in the fifth game, got the first two points against Brookes' service, but then the veteran overwhelmed him with another series of services, not one of which he got into play. He led 30/0 in his next service, but threw the game away by two double faults, an out of a backhand toss, and Brookes' drive to his feet in bad position. 5/1; Brookes leads.

He took another service, without a ball being returned to play. Actually in this set Williams only returned three of Brookes' four services into play. It was sheer slaughter. And it continued in the next set. Williams led, 30/0, in the first game, but netted the next return, and position spoiled him in the next. Then he netted a chance to score, and double-faulted. Again Brookes scored his service to love, but Williams got two returns weakly into play. One of Brookes' services was an uncalled let. The crowd at this stage were very fair with their applause, in spite of the annihilation of all their hopes.

Again Brookes got in on the returns and Williams was unable to handle the balls to his backhand, and lost one chance by a weak volley. I had said to a prominent American that on the game Williams played against Wilding I did not expect him to get six games in the three sets against Brookes. It looked as if I had overestimated him. 3/0; Brookes leads. Again Brookes served, and was foot-faulted on the American interpretation on his first service.

Brookes won the game to love, and only had to finish two returns. After leading 30/0 in first game the colt had only won one point in four games.

Then he pulled himself together and by desperate play took the game to 15, three points by fine services. Again, however, Brookes won his service to love, but had to do a lot of close volleying for the first point. The second last service had the off-break, and entirely beat Williams by breaking into his body. 5/1.

Again Williams made a fine effort, and won the service to love after good rallies. But he could not stop Brookes from winning another service to love, and the colt only got one ball into play.

In the third set he again won his service to 15, Brookes only succeeding in returning one, when a net ball spoiled his volley. Again Brookes won his service easily; but the colt was now clearly handling it better, and got several into play, and he won his own service just as easily, giving Brookes quite a tussle for the latter's next service, although he only won one point. He did not seem so utterly helpless against the service, and he had played really finely in the previous game. I commenced to realize his possibilities. 2-all. He led, 40/15, in the next game, and scored to 30, passing Brookes for almost the first time as he went in on a return to the backhand. He got two services back in the next game, but could not win a point, and Brookes was sending down a greater variety of twists. But he won his own service again and then, with a series of fine strokes, took a 'vantage against Brookes' service, making a passing stroke of a low volley and scoring with a neat toss after a rally. His next return was let go by Brookes, and it dropped only two inches out. Then he outed an attempt to pass, and was beaten by Brookes' close volleying. Again he won his own service to 15, and held Brookes for a long time on his. Brookes was not now following his returns to the net.

Brookes took the first point in this game by the best stroke I saw him play in America. He was seemingly passed, but stretched out his racket, and, with a perfect hook volley, tossed the ball right into the last square foot of Williams' backhand corner, and latter netted his recovery. The crowd applauded generously. Brookes won the game after three deuces, 5-all. Brookes made an effort to finish here, and led at 0/30 and 15/40, and looked hard at the line umpire for a fault on the third point. But that line umpire was Alexander, and he could not have been wrong. Then Williams won four points; three returns going into the net. Was it "mental storm" on Brookes' part or the fine services? The last rally ended in Brookes tossing out. Again Brookes had difficulty in winning his service.

Each then won his own service to 15 without incident, but with fine play by both. 7-all.

Then Williams served a double fault and netted an easy volley. He drew level in spite of two good saves by Brookes; but then he netted an attempt to pass, and Brookes seized the chance and returned deep to his backhand and closed in, and Williams netted. The crowd very fairly applauded Brookes as he went to serve, or else it was to encourage Williams.

Brookes led, 30/15, and sent down a severe service. The colt fought him back, and made him net and then, with two fine series of low slow drives, finally caused him to net twice more. Brookes' play lacked sting at this stage. The crowd was uproarious in their delight, and stopped play for quite a while. The colt seemed to suddenly find new abilities at this escape, and with a most magnificent series of passing strokes made from every part of the court off the ground, and with his peculiar skill off volleys, had Brookes jumping from side to side like an acrobat till he finally passed him, or caused him to net. Brookes' anticipations were seldom at fault, but he could not handle the passes effectively, perhaps because he was a shade too far back.

Williams won his own service to 30, and that of Brookes' to 15, and in the last game every one of his points was scored after Brookes had gained the net. Williams' command of slow drop passes at this stage excels anything I have ever seen, and twice he passed Brookes clean by the skill with which he concealed his direction.

The cheers of the crowd rose and fell and rose again. There was a lull and then they broke out in echo after echo. To a certain stage they were thoroughly justified, but they went beyond that stage, and Brookes fell into the regrettable error of shutting up his ears to shut out the clamor. To suggest, as many did, that he did this because he did not like to hear Williams applauded is only to add another error. That would be too unthinkable.

Then the players went in for the seven minutes' intermission allowed in America, which at the moment came as a surprise to Brookes. He and Parke had not taken it at Longwood as far as I remember. It is never taken outside America.

That intermission possibly gave Australasia the cup. When the players returned, Williams had in some unaccountable way entirely forgotten the way to play Brookes' service, and never had a chance. He foozled his backhand in just the same way as Brookes returned the services there, and closed in to the net. But just as probably Brookes was rested by the interval, and helped by the kindly advice from Alf Dunlop to "go in and win" as he re-entered the arena. He gained confidence from the evident conviction he saw in Dunlop that he had only to attack to win.

He won Williams' first service to 15 by two returns to the backhand, and taking the net on them, so causing Williams to hit out. He scored by a hard drive after a rally, and then with a fine volley of a weak backhand. He won his own service to 15. A double fault, and Williams looked as feeble as in the first set. But the colt held his own then for two of his own services by the fineness of his deliveries, and the following volleys. But he was finding the services breaking all ways and could not handle them, and at 3/2 Brookes took his service to love, only two balls coming back to be finished.

In the next game Brookes showed fine back court play, winning a long rally, and led, 0/30, by his next return. But the colt came back with a rush, and took four points, one a perfect clean half-volley of a fine return. But Brookes was too severe in the next game, in spite of fine attempts to pass by Williams. He was closing in better. The last service, at 40/30, was a curly one and was netted. 5/3; Brookes leads.

Williams netted a fine volley of a ball going out and then netted an easy high backhand volley of the return. Brookes netted in the next rally and sent a high return which Williams might have scored. But he let it go—to fall just in. 15/40.

TWO DAVIS CUP POINTS.

A fine service was returned, but Williams with rare courage again let it pass—to go just out. Then he served, and hesitated whether to go in or not. He was lost, for Brookes seized the chance with remarkable quickness of thought and execution. He returned, deep to the backhand, and rushed right into the net. There he stood with the keenness of an eagle ready to pounce on any return. Too late Williams had started to go in to the net himself. He was caught half way in, made a gallant attempt at a backhand half-volley and failed to get the ball near the top of the net.

The Davis Cup was again in the custody of Australasia. America's long quest was again commenced.

But there was still another match to play. One might with a feeling of purest sportsmanship have wished that the match between Wilding and McLoughlin might have been left to determine the issue so that their merits in an actual fight on which the cup depended could have been determined.

McLoughlin served first and with such pace on every stroke that Wilding had no chance to get going, or to score a point. He rushed Wilding's services with equal impetuosity in the next game and there was no attempt now to use his backhand. Right through Mac ran round to get the ball on his forehand, and then hit with all his might. Wilding only got two points. And he got none in the next game, for again he had a whirlwind of energy against him.

But Wilding is notably a slow starter and never worried an atom. He got going himself in the next game, taking his own service to love. In the next game he stood in close to the base line, and took Mac's services on the rise, as he had in the doubles, steadily and well. His backhand strokes were splendidly placed. 3/2; McLoughlin leads.

But the latter rose at the resistance to a still more furious burst of energy.

He served and drove and volleyed with the fury of a tiger. It is almost impossible to understand how any human being can hurl himself at every ball so furiously and for so long without collapsing. So he took two games, and led, 5/2, Wilding only scoring three points in these two games. But Wilding made a fine effort in the last game of the set, in which there were six deuces, and in which he answered the impetuosity of the colt with play of the utmost steadiness.

McLoughlin kept up his rush in the second set, and the contrast between the game he was now playing and that he had played against Brookes was most noticeable. One was all fury. The other all delicacy and finesse till the moment came for energy. And the earlier method, used against Brookes, is the higher class, though not so attractive, nor so easily understood.

But Wilding held his own services to 2-all. He was compelled to do an immense amount of chasing to recover Mac's volleys, which were sharply angled, but Wilding recovered finely and several times scored clean from hard drives right past Mac close in. Mac took his third service to 15, but Wilding took his to love.

But the "Comet" was only three games off the set and that was close enough for him to go for a finish. He actually scored those three games to three points, one in each game, and they were over so quickly that Wilding was left no time to work out a scheme. A terrific service and a fierce volley was all there was to Mac's service games. On Wilding's service it was a catlike jump, a rush at the ball, and if it came back it was killed by another drive or a furious volley, made as he rushed across the court at full speed. I rather wondered, though, why Wilding did not notice that Mac was starting to run to take the ball on his backhand before the ball was struck, and why he did not therefore serve wide on Mac's forehand. Mac won three service aces running in one game.

In the third set even Mac had to call a halt, and he looked quite tired and drawn. It seemed to us who looked on—Brookes, Williams, myself and others clustered together—that he was all out through the long strain of the whole contest and his disappointment over the doubles. Wilding also was playing more seriously, that is, with more tactics, and was working for openings. He took the first game with a fine toss for the last point and, leading all through, won Mac's service. He scored one fine smash, after having driven Mac back, and then drove hard to Mac's feet, as he followed in on his service, just a shade more slowly through fatigue. Again Wilding won his service by the most steady play at all points. He was now playing like a machine and led, 3/0. He took the next game with finely judged drives. He always was able at this stage to just give Mac too much to do to handle the ball. He finished the next game after deuce by two curly services that Mac spooned out. Earlier he had not used these, and went only for pace, 5/0.

Mac tried hard to save the love set, and led at 30/15. But Wilding scored with a fine backhand pass, and in the next rally his low drive was netted by Mac in attempting to volley. Wilding was within a point of a love set! But Mac could not suffer that indignity and, after a desperate spurt of his seemingly spent energies, took the game with fine services that Wilding netted. He won Wilding's service by a display even more brilliant than ever, scoring with a superb variety of skill the first point, with a drive, a chop, and a volley—all splendid strokes. Then he smote the services four times—once out; three times for aces. But Wilding gave him no rest, and answered by scoring against the service by a superb toss and at last, by a slow pass, and had the third set.

The seven minutes' spell then came, and as the men came out it was clear that Mac had benefited greatly, but he still looked tired. He took Wilding's service by fine volleying, and then dropped his own, serving two doubles. But again he took Wilding's, winning the last point by fine defensive volleying. Then a seeming miracle happened. The tired man suddenly struck a "gusher" of hidden energy. He won the next twelve strokes by actually the most unparalleled burst of pace that I have ever seen. Not only with his services, but even more surely with his ferocious returns, he simply battered Wilding off the court. In the fifth game he won all four points by forehand returns.

Wilding netted the first. In the next it took the return and a drive to beat Wilding aside, and then fired two shots that Wilding had not even time to move before they had struck the forehand corner and had won. Then Mac served again, and only one ball came back into play. But Wilding even then did not falter. He gained a 'vantage. A match point. But two returns beat him. He won his next service to love, not one ball coming back into play, and led at 0/30 in the next game. Mac was again faltering. Would he break? He assembled his scattered forces, and gained three more 'vantages, losing one through Wilding's fine driving, and one by a double fault. But he gained the third with a splendid smash, and then sent down a tremendous serve and Wilding could only net it, and the boy of 1909 had avenged as Champion of America, on both Brookes and Wilding, the two most famous players of the decade, each defeat then inflicted at Sydney in Australia.

Clearly he is the finest player of the Davis Cup Competition of 1914 and he is the player of the future. His sway cannot be long disputed by Brookes or Wilding. But there may be others to come? Who can say?

And R. N. Williams, 2nd, answered in the championship. But that is outside my arena.

AN APPRECIATION OF AMERICAN HOSPITALITY.

It is perhaps outside the scope of this account for me to express the deep appreciation I feel of the many kindnesses extended to me in America, which is I am sure due to no merit on my part but to the innate hospitality of Americans. And it was not so much what was done by your team and officials and Mr. Dwight Davis. I am sure that if the great amount of work that the preparations for the cup entailed in all and the distractions and worries that arose out of the war had not inevitably demanded all the time of your votaries I should have been overwhelmed with kindnesses. I saw that in San Francisco, where Mr. Carl R. Gardner and Dr. Sumner Hardy nearly made me miss my boat with their hospitality. What I appreciated was the kindly spirit. Let me close therefore by saying that all I ask is that any American enthusiast who comes to Sydney will look me up and allow me to return to him some of the courtesies extended to me, which I shall always remember as the most hearty of my trip in any part of the world.

National Championship

BY F. B. ALEXANDER.

The thirty-fourth tournament for the national championship of the United States, in singles, for 1914, witnessed an entry list of 138 experts. Almost all of the experts of the United States took part, but much to the disappointment of the lovers of the game the expected international atmosphere was lacking. N. E. Brookes, the great Victorian, and A. F. Wilding, the equally well known New Zealander, defaulting in the first round. This, in a manner, seemed to take away some of the interest at the start, but the general high standard of play by the home talent throughout and the number of close matches soon revived the enthusiasm.

The first round witnessed the defeat of the old expert and member of the famous Wrenn Brothers' team, G. L. Wrenn, by Basil Wagner, by a score of 7/5, 7/5, 6/1, the old internationalist tiring badly in the last set. In the second round "the class" came through without an upset.

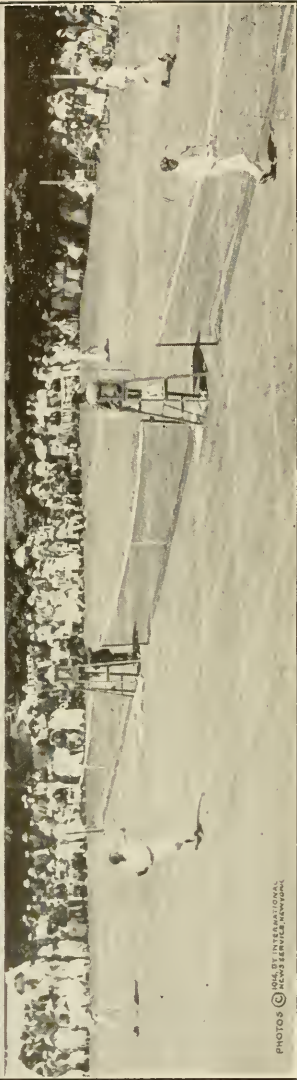

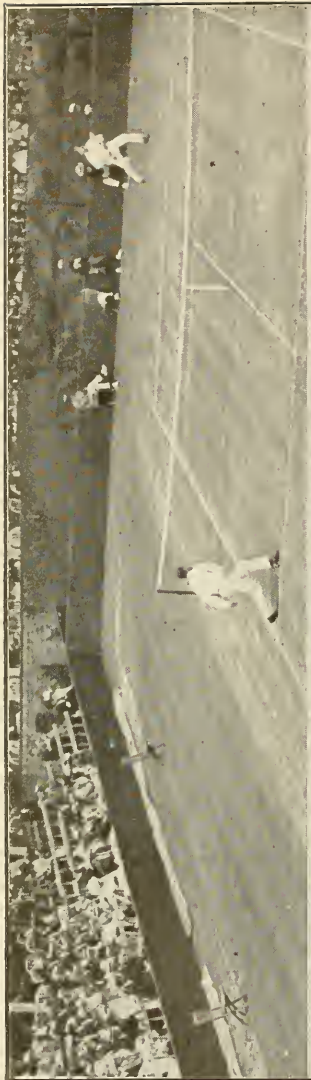

The match between W. M. Hall and I. C. Wright was particularly well played. Hall showed a lack of practice and in consequence was not as steady as usual. This and the fact that Wright's cut strokes bothered him considerably proved his undoing. Hall, after being two sets down, pulled the third set out of the fire, 8/6, only to lose the fourth and match, at 6/4. W. M. Washburn had much trouble with B. C. Law, only defeating him after four sets of fast play. William M. Johnston, the Californian, took C. M. Bull, Jr., into camp in straight sets.

The third round saw the beginning of the really exciting work, the best match being that between R. N. Williams, 2nd, and W. M. Johnston, and though Williams won, with something to spare, Johnston forced him hard all the way. The first set was particularly hard fought, Williams winning at 9/7. The second set had no sooner started than Williams showed his old wildness. His drives, taken from, or even before the top of the bound, were either catching the tape of the net or missing the side lines by inches, and Johnston took the set at 6/3. The last two sets were fairly easy for Williams, he never being in danger.

A. S. Dabney and S. H. Voshell of Boston and New York, respectively, performed a Marathon for the benefit of the spectators. Voshell, after being two sets down, the second one, by the way, going to a score of 16/14, one of the longest on record, pulled out the next two sets, and was several times within an ace of victory before Dabney finally won the fifth at 8/6.

R. L. Murray breezed through Wagner in straight sets, the latter seemingly being unable to handle the terrific service of the Californian "southpaw." W. J. Clothier ran away with R. D. Little, who had entered the tournament with no preparation. Harold Throckmorton, the schoolboy, astonished the natives by defeating the veteran Chauncey Seaver in a hard five-set match. The youngster showed hard hitting ability and stamina. E. C. McCormack, the California interscholastic champion, took a well earned set from G. P. Gardner, Jr.

The fourth round ably upheld the traditions of the national championships, with three hard five-set matches. F. C. Inman of New York defeated Harry Johnson of Boston in five hard sets, the match being a toss-up until the last stroke was played. G. F. Touchard then got into a long winded court argument with E. H. Whitney, the Harvard University captain, which was only settled by a score of 12/10 in favor of the former in the fifth set. N. W. Niles defeated D. Mathey in straight sets with unexpected ease. C. A. Major downed Sidney Thayer, Jr., in five sets. Williams easily settled Dabney's aspirations, allowing him only eight games in three sets. LeRoy put up a good exhibition against Behr and managed to earn a set from "The Orator." Irving Wright was unable to make any impression on the great McLoughlin, getting only three games in the same number of sets. G. P.

Gardner, Jr., also put out the veteran base line expert Richard Stevens in straight sets.

Again, in the fifth round, G. F. Touchard ran into an endurance contest, five sets being required before he had settled with Inman. The Fottrell-Niles match was a hummer, both men excelling in their services and net play, Fottrell finally winning in four sets, two of which went to deuce. The Behr-Murray match was the star event of the day. Behr started off poorly, dropping the first set and seemingly being unable to get control of his ground strokes. A reversal of form took place in the second, which Behr won at 6/2. The third set found both men playing at the top of their game, with Behr breaking through Murray's service at the critical time, and winning the set 7/5. In the fourth set Behr again grew wild and Murray won the set at 1/3, leading all the way. The fifth set was a dogged ding dong affair, both men being undoubtedly weary, but playing excellent tennis, at that. Behr finally won at 8/6.

Clothier defeated Washburn with unexpected ease, and much to the surprise of the knowing ones. Wallace Johnson ran through T. R. Pell, after losing the first set. McLoughlin and Williams won their matches with ease, and Griffin, the Californian, received a walkover from G. I. Gardner, Jr.

In the sixth round the best match was the one between McLoughlin and Griffin. This was practically McLoughlin's first hard match, as he had the easy side of the draw. Griffin ended up by taking the third set, after the champion had breezed through the first two to the tune of 6/1, 6/4. Much to the surprise of all he then forced him to 8/6 in the fourth and deciding set. There is no question that McLoughlin, notwithstanding Griffin's fine play, did not show the keenness of the "wonder of the internationals." There was a marked listlessness about his play, which did not coincide with his usual brilliant and peppery work. Clothier defeated his brother Philadelphian Johnson in straight sets.

Williams showed what a wonderful game his is when at its top by defeating Behr in straight sets, Behr remarking afterward that he had never felt so utterly helpless on a court before. Touchard's two previous five-set matches made him an easy mark for Fottrell, the tall Californian allowing him but five games.

The semi-finals witnessed two straight set victories, in each half the East being opposed to the West. Williams, in the upper half, disposed of Fottrell with unexpected ease. The terrific service of the Californian seemed to have no terrors for the European taught Easterner. Fottrell's service, which had so far held his opponents at bay, had no terrors for the Williams of that day. The fast, high bound seemed to suit him to perfection and he was never in difficulties.

Williams' game throughout the tournament had been showing constant improvement and this match was a worthy predecessor to the greatest match of his career, which was to come the following day.

The other semi-final in the lower half was better fought, though McLoughlin always held the mastery. Clothier, as he always does, fought hard for every point, but was compelled to lower his colors in the end.

The match to decide the championship was played under perfect conditions, and before a record Newport crowd, on the new championship court. Both Williams and McLoughlin were confident of winning. The prevalence of opinion being that McLoughlin would win, but not till after a hard fight. Williams surprised his own admirers from the start by jumping into the lead and after breaking through the "California Comet's" bullet-like service, winning the first set at 6/3. McLoughlin braced in the second set, which was replete with excellent play, but Williams did not falter. His strokes were well nigh perfect in their accuracy and his bad habit of double faulting on his service had disappeared entirely. In fact, he was winning his services with ease, while McLoughlin was fighting desperately to hold his own. The end came when Williams broke through the "Comet's" service and took the second set at 8/6.

To the experts about the court it seemed impossible to believe that anyone could keep up the terrific pace which Williams had set in the first two periods of play, and a let down was freely predicted. Indeed, several times in the third set the coming champion was perilously close to defeat, but each time an added burst of speed, or a beautifully executed stroke would save him. McLoughlin fought against defeat with his usual undaunted courage, but it is safe to say that Williams simply could not be defeated on that day. This set went to twenty games before a new king of the tennis world was crowned and the title returned to the East after an absence of two years.

Many discussions have arisen as to whether McLoughlin's strenuous campaign had not left him stale, but it must be recalled that Williams had had an equally hard, if not harder, season, and not only that, but a harder path through the tournament. Therefore, acknowledgment must be made that on that day Williams was undoubtedly superior.

The Challenge Match for the Doubles Championship of the United States

BY F. B. ALEXANDER.

A perfect day ushered in the blue ribbon event of the United States in doubles. Conditions when the four men took the championship court were well nigh perfect, though the Newport tennis enthusiasts were somewhat slow in arriving and getting seated. A round of applause greeted the four players, McLoughlin and Bundy, the defenders, and Church and Mathey, the challengers, who lost no time in getting warmed up. On account of the excellent showing of the young team, Church and Mathey, in an exhibition match against the second Australasian team, Messrs. Doust and Dunlop, the week preceding, at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., the "wise ones" expected a hard contest with the balance in favor of the holders, due to their greater experience. The match started slowly, all four men feeling their way and each team playing carefully. Church and Mathey warmed up to their work more quickly than the veterans and, showing the same burst of speed which had been noticeable in their matches all season, jumped into the lead at 4/2. This turned out, however, to be a mere flash in the pan, as for some unknown reason the game of the challengers became erratic, the easiest kind of shots being missed. Mathey's usually steady but powerful ground strokes went sadly astray and he repeatedly double faulted. Church was almost as great an offender in his overhead work, usually so consistent, and showed none of the fine volleying of which he is capable. McLoughlin's game was but mediocre and all Bundy did was to play excellent, steady tennis. The second set was a repetition of the latter part of the first, only even more demoralized, McLoughlin showing improvement but getting little of the play.

The third set, up to the last few games, could be put in the same class as the second. Towards the end, however, with the champions leading by a safe margin, Church showed a bit of his fighting spirit and with a corresponding brace on the part of Mathey they crawled up to within striking distance. An excellently served game by McLoughlin put a stop to the eleventh hour rally and gave the championship for the third time in succession to the Pacific Coast team. To summarize the match in a few words it may be said that Church and Mathey undoubtedly played far below form and that McLoughlin and Bundy were compelled at no time to extend themselves.

The scores were 6/4, 6/2, 6/4.

National Preliminary Doubles

The National Preliminary Doubles, an event to select the challengers of M. E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy for the national championship, was decided on the courts of the Onwentsia Club of Lake Forest, Ill., August 4 and 5. The winners of the final round being George M. Church and Dean Mathey.

The drawings brought the Western champions, Church and Mathey, against the Southern champions, Irving C. Wright and J. B. Adoue, Jr., and the Pacific Coast champions, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, against the Eastern winners, Karl H. Behr and T. R. Pell.

The first of the matches was unproductive of highclass tennis. Wright and Adoue battled valiantly throughout to turn the tide in their favor, but Church and Mathey were at the top of their game and never gave the Southerners a look-in. Only once in the entire match did the Southern players lead and that spurt came in the first game of the first set.

Great interest was centered in the contest between the East and Pacific Coast, owing to the fact that it marked the first appearance of Behr and Johnson on Chicago courts. The interest was more than justified, for the most spectacular tennis seen at Onwentsia since Touchard and Little defeated McLoughlin and Bundy was exhibited.

All four men played wonderful tennis at times. Behr, except for his errors overhead, was perhaps the most brilliant. Johnston, however, was very effective with his forehand drive and had Griffin played the tennis of which he is capable the result might easily have been different. The Eastern team finally won after losing the first and third sets.

The final match brought the Eastern and Western teams together, the latter winning in spectacular style. The victory of Church and Mathey was due almost entirely to their brilliant team work. On the other hand, the rather poor showing of Behr and Pell was principally attributed to the nervousness of Behr, who fell down badly at critical times and his lack of condition seemed to spoil his whole game. The summary:

G. M. Church and D. Mathey, Western champions, d. Irving C. Wright and J. B. Adoue, Jr., Southern champions, 6/4, 6/1, 6/2; K. H. Behr and T. R. Pell, Eastern champions, d. W. M. Johnston and C. J. Griffin, Pacific Coast champions, 4/6, 6/2, 1/6, 7/5, 6/3. FINAL ROUND—Church and Mathey d. Behr and Pell, 6/3, 6/4, 4/6, 7/5.

MISS MARY BROWNE,

Miss Browne was the winner in singles and paired with Mrs. Williams was victorious in doubles at the National championships. She also succeeded in annexing the mixed doubles title with W. T. Tilden, Jr., as partner.

MRS. R. H. WILLIAMS,

National Championships for Women

Miss Mary Browne of Los Angeles, Calif., for the third successive year, won three national titles—singles, doubles and mixed doubles—at the national women's championship held at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, St. Martin's, near Philadelphia, from June 8 to 12. This performance equals that of Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, champion in 1909, 1910 and 1911, and gives her permanent possession of the challenge cup, which was placed in competition in 1912. Miss Browne now needs but one more win to equal the record of Miss Elizabeth H. Moore as a four-time winner of the championship.

Miss Browne's challenger was Miss Marie Wagner of New York, who had come through the tournament without great difficulty. The match which ensued was altogether one-sided, Miss Wagner making no effective resistance in the first and third sets, while Miss Browne was just as helpless in the second. The title holder had plenty of speed and played a well judged game throughout, but she did not follow in on her service nor did she go to the net with any consistency.

In the first round of the doubles Mrs. Sullivan's net play and Miss C. B. Neely's steadiness in the back court brought the pair victory in the first set against Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel, but they could get no farther. Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams then removed Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel with surprising ease. Both the semi-final matches were disappointing. Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and Mrs. C. N. Beard were inexplicably weak against the champions, winning only one game in the match.

It was thought that Mrs. Raymond and Miss Edna Wildey might stay the march of Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams, but their lack of aggressiveness and inability to kill all loose balls nullified their efforts. They were defeated in straight but close sets.

The mixed event was full of surprises and upsets. Two strong teams fell by the wayside in the first round—Miss Isabel Pendleton and Wallace F. Johnson and Miss Edna Wildey and H. M. Tilden, their conquerors being Miss Eleanor Carey and J. T. Thayer and Mrs. Willard Sullivan and F. E. Newbold, respectively; both matches required three sets. In the second round Miss Dorothy Disston and Aleck Thayer took the measure of Miss Moore and E. B. Dewhurst, as did Miss Carey and Thayer that of Mrs. Sullivan and Newbold; while Miss Sheafe and C. S. Rogers beat Miss White and J. R. Carpenter, Jr. There was another upset in the third round when Mrs. Smith and A. E. Kennedy won from Miss Sheafe and Rogers; and in the next round the victors lost to Miss Myers and J. R. Rowland. In the final round the latter pair could make no headway against Miss Browne and W. T. Tilden, Jr., losing in straight sets.

In the men's event the finalists were W. T. Tilden, Jr., and J. R. Carpenter, Jr., as in 1913; and the former won in four sets after an interesting match. The summaries:

Fifth Clay Court Championships

BY GORDON E. SMALL.

The fifth annual tournament for the national clay court championship was held by the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association, on the courts of the Cincinnati Tennis Club, July 11 to 18, 1914.

It is safe to say that this tournament was the greatest ever held in Cincinnati. The play was spectacular throughout, and as a result big galleries were attracted throughout the week. The entry list was large, and included four of the renowned California players, as well as many prominent throughout the Middle West. The California contingent, Elia Fottrell, Clarence J. Griffin, Claude Wayne and Nat Browne, made Cincinnati their first stop on what proved to be a successful "Eastern Invasion," and carried off all the honors in sight. In the women's events, Miss Mary Browne, the national champion, and Mrs. Robert Williams of Chicago, divided the honors between them, Miss Browne winning in the finals from Mrs. Williams, and the pair winning the doubles.

In the men's singles there were no matches of prominence until the second round was reached. The feature of this round was the match between R. A. Holden, Jr., and W. A. Horrell of Arizona. Horrell proved to be a "dark horse" and gave Holden the tussle of his life. Holden finally won, 9/7, 9/7, but the match was very close, and hard fought, requiring nearly three hours to complete it. Another interesting match was the defeat of C. Drummond Jones of St. Louis, by J. C. Mackrell, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

In the third round, Clifford Lockhorn of Cincinnati, defeated A. M. Kidder, the Princeton star, in a well played match, while J. J. Armstrong, of Harvard, eliminated Mackrell.

In the fourth round, Lockhorn continued his good work by putting out Roland Hoerr of St. Louis. Fottrell and Griffin eliminated two Cincinnati "Hopes," Hunt and Hopple, while Armstrong and Wayne came through in the lower half of the draw without trouble.

The fifth round saw some good tennis and brought the entire California contingent through to the semi-finals. In the upper half, Nat Browne, brother of Mary Browne, the women's champion, defeated R. A. Holden, Jr., of Cincinnati. Browne does not play with the dash and fire that is considered typical of all California players, but his chops and placing shots are deadly in their accuracy. It took two sets for Holden to solve his game. Holden won the third set at 6/2, and was going strong, when luckily for Browne, rain stopped the match. When play was resumed the next day, Fottrell defeated Lockhorn in a well played match, in which Fottrell's terrific serve proved the undoing of his opponent. With the defeat of H. Truxton Emerson by Griffin, the last of the Cincinnati players was eliminated. The best played and most interesting match of the round was that between Joe Armstrong of Harvard, and Claude Wayne of Los Angeles. Armstrong, though a much improved player, met his match in the wiry Californian. Wayne's play was replete with spectacular dashes to the net, where he made many seemingly impossible kills. He proved unusually steady, despite his vigorous tactics, and won the admiration of the large gallery by his brilliant work.

The semi-finals brought Browne against Fottrell, and Wayne against Griffin. Fottrell won rather easily, as he was too fast for Browne. The Wayne-Griffin match showed Griffin at his very best. His placing shots down the side lines were perfect. His generalship was of a high order, and he repeatedly out-guessed Wayne for clean aces. Wayne was stopped to nothing at the net, which played havoc with his game. Griffin's showing in this match made him an even favorite with Fottrell for the title, who, up to this time, was considered as the sure winner of the tournament.

The final round, which was played before a record crowd, furnished one of the most spectacular and dramatic contests ever seen on a tennis court. Fottrell started out like a whirlwind. His service was under perfect control, and with terrific speed, combined with a great top spin, baffled Griffin's efforts to return it. The latter seemed nettled at his inability to handle Fottrell's serve, and fell off in his general play. He netted many comparatively easy chances and failed to place his shots, as in his match with Wayne. The first two sets went to Fottrell, 6/3, 8/6.

At the beginning of the third set, it was apparent that Fottrell, who was not in the best of condition physically, had staked all on winning in straight sets. As Griffin began to improve, Fottrell played desperately in an effort to bring the match to a close. Griffin was not to be denied, however, and hung on like grim death. With the score at 5/4, and 40/30, in Fottrell's favor, came the turning point of the match. Playing carefully, he worked Griffin from side to side and finally tried for the point with a terrific drive down the side line. The ball struck the tape of the net, bounded high in the air—and fell back. The loss of this point seemed to take the heart out of Fottrell, and although he won the next game, Griffin quickly ran out the set amid great applause.

When the players reappeared on the court after the rest, the condition of Fottrell was pitiable. He was evidently completely exhausted from his terrific efforts in the first three sets, but with grim determination went in for the finish. After the first few points had been played, he determined to try and save his strength for the last set, as he made no effort to "get" balls he could not reach without effort. Griffin made short work of this set, winning 6/0, Fottrell getting only eleven points.

At the start of the fifth set Fottrell made a game effort to "come back," but after getting to 2/3, he was done, and Griffin ran the set out, 6/2.

Aside from Fottrell's play in the first set, the brand of tennis played was not remarkable. As one of the Cincinnati papers said: "It was magnificent, but it was not tennis." As an exhibition of grit, however, and as a heart breaking match, it will live long in the annals of the game.

Fottrell	2	22	154

As John Strahan of San Francisco, the 1913 winner, was unable to make the trip East because of pressure of business, Griffin won the title of national clay court champion by default.

In the final of the men's doubles, Wayne and Browne won rather easily over Fottrell and Griffin, who were in no condition, after their gruelling match, to play championship tennis. The feature of the contest was the playing of Griffin, who, wishing to spare Fottrell, who could hardly walk, played every ball he could possibly reach. His smashing of lobs was the best ever seen in Cincinnati. Wayne and Browne played well together, however, and deserved to win. The scores were, 6/3, 6/4, 6/3.

In the women's singles, Miss Mary Browne, the national champion; Mrs. Robert Williams of Chicago, Miss Mary Shreve Lyons of Louisville, and Miss Ruth Sanders of Cincinnati came through to the semi-finals. Miss Lyons caused a sensation by taking the first set of her match with Miss Browne, but the latter came back strong and won the next two sets without much trouble.

 SCENES AT THE FINALS OF THE FIFTH ANNUAL CLAY COURT CHAMPIONSHIPS, HELD ON THE COURTS OF THE CINCINNATI TENNIS CLUB, JULY 11-18, 1914.

Mrs. Williams defeated Miss Sanders in straight sets, much to the disappointment of the gallery, who had visions of Cincinnati being represented in the finals. Mrs. Williams was at the top of her game, however, and in the final forced Miss Browne to extend herself to the utmost to win. Mrs. Williams took the second set, 6/3, and reached 2-all in the last set, from which point Miss Browne ran out the match.

In the women's doubles, Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams won over all comers, without the loss of a set, defeating Miss Lyons of Louisville, and Miss Dodd of Cincinnati, in the final round, 6/2, 6/1. The summaries:

National Indoor Championships

Gustave F. Touchard, for the third successive time, won the annual National Indoor Lawn Tennis Championship, held on the courts at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, February 12 to 22. By his victory Touchard obtains possession of the Seventh Regiment Cup, placed in competition in 1912. The honors in the doubles were taken by Touchard and Watson M. Washburn.

The meeting produced an entry list of seventy-three men in the singles and thirty-two pairs in the doubles, as against eighty-four and forty-two in 1914. On the closing day, Washington's Birthday, the attendance was probably the largest ever present at any of these events. The weather during the tournament was unusually good. There were a few stormy days in the early part of the meeting, but after that clear skies and bright sun made the light as perfect as it can be indoors. On one stormy day the lights were turned on in the middle of the afternoon and this improved playing conditions.

The final round of the singles brought together Touchard and Arthur M. Lovibond. The latter was, if not outclassed, at least outplayed. Touchard would work him out of position and then hit for the point; or shoot the ball to the line with unerring precision, or come to the net and volley sharply for the point. Occasionally Lovibond would earn a shot, but most of the time it would come to him through Touchard's errors as the latter tried for the most difficult of shots. Coolness, steadiness, and a thoroughly sound game carried Lovibond to the final round, but in Touchard he more than met his match.

The strongest pairs in the tournament, Touchard and Washburn and Karl H. Behr and Theodore Roosevelt Pell, met in the final round of the doubles. A magnificent five-set match ensued, in which the thousand odd spectators were thrilled by the sight of the most brilliant play, some of the rallies being scintillating and evoking prolonged applause. Touchard and Behr were the stars, and the former excelled the latter chiefly because he equalled him in brilliance and surpassed him in steadiness, especially in the pinches. The two men were plainly out to outplay each other, and the way each singled out the other and gave him his most scintillating shots was thrilling in the extreme. Washburn and Pell gave their partners excellent support, and occasionally almost equalled them in brilliance.

In the fifth and deciding set, Washburn served out the first game, and then Behr was broken through in a game brimful of brilliant play. Defeat was stayed for a few minutes by the win of Touchard's service, followed by Pell's. But the end was almost in sight. Behr was again broken through and Touchard and Washburn led at 5/3. With only their service game to win, Touchard and Washburn got to 40/15, and then Behr and Pell made their last stand. They brought the score to deuce and then to advantage, only to have Behr net. Washburn then drove straight to Behr for the point; and then, after a prolonged rally, Behr netted, giving game, set and match to the opposing side. The summaries:

Indoor Championships for Women

Miss Marie Wagner of New York won in singles for the fifth time, at the seventh annual Indoor Championship for Women. The tournament was held as usual at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, from March 14 to 19. In the doubles, Miss Wagner and Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer, formerly Miss Clara Kuttroff, the 1913 champions, were defeated in the third round, and Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver and Miss Clare Cassel, both of New York, became champions of 1914.

The entry list, as in recent years, was more local in character than a national events should be. Miss Wagner's opponent in the final round of the singles was, as in the previous year, Mrs. C. N. Beard, but a much closer and better match resulted. Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, a former holder of the title, and Miss Clare Cassel were the most formidable of the other contenders.

In the doubles the entry was better and the contests were more closely fought and more exciting. Mrs. Weaver and Miss Cassel won in excellent style, defeating Mrs. Schmitz and Mrs. Marshall McLean, the latter making her first appearance in these championships.

In the final of the singles, Miss Wagner had all the better of it in the first set and most of the third. Both played cautiously. The pair placed well, but at times were very erratic. Miss Wagner's good streaks, however, came at the right time and enabled her to win.

The final of the doubles was an exciting match. Mrs. Weaver was a stone-wall at the net, while Miss Cassel was tireless in the back court and drove sharply and effectively. Both Mrs. Schmitz and Mrs. McLean were unsteady at critical times, the former chiefly in her net shots and the latter in the back of the court. The slightest thing, however, would have changed the result. The summaries:

BRITISH ISLES TEAM IN DAVIS CUP MATCHES.

BROOKES VS. WILDING—FOR ENGLISH CHAMPIONSHIP.

All-England Championships

Norman E. Brookes succeeded Anthony F. Wilding as All-England champion in the tournament played at Wimbledon, in June, 1914. He defeated O. Froitzheim of Germany in the final round, and then won from Wilding in the challenge round. The doubles honors were captured by Brookes and Wilding, who easily defeated A. H. Lowe and F. G. Lowe in the final round.

In the final round of the women's singles the issue rested between Mrs. Larcombe and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California, U. S. A. The latter found the net with too many of Mrs. Larcombe's server cuts and was defeated, 6/4, 6/3. In the doubles, Mrs. Larcombe and Mrs. Hannam met the Misses Morton and Ryan in the final round, and won without the loss of a set. The mixed doubles was taken by Mrs. Larcombe and Parke.

There were 102 entries in the championship, but only Brookes, Froitzheim and Parke were considered. Against Brookes' chance to defeat Wilding for the title the chief item was the necessity for him to play through while Wilding stood out.

The progress of Brookes to the final round could not be stayed. Davin, a likely young Scotchman, was unable to win a single game. Ritchie, a famous English player, was defeated, 6/1, 6/0, 6/1. Against A. W. Gore, the veteran, he had a little difficulty in the first set, but after that won as he pleased. Then he met Beamish, another internationalist, and although the latter had the advantage of practising with Wilding, he was defeated quite handsily.

In the upper division Parke disposed of Dixon, 11/9, 6/1, 6/3. Then Parke outclassed F. G. Lowe, 6/1, 6/3, 6/4. Meanwhile Froitzheim had defeated Hope Crisp, 6/2, 3/6, 6/2, 6/2. Then Froitzheim won from A. H. Lowe, 6/3, 6/4, 5/7, 10/8. Parke and Froitzheim now met, and the German fairly and squarely defeated his opponent by greater steadiness and better play all around. The scores were 5/7, 6/2, 9/7, 6/2. Froitzheim's next victim was Mayrogordato, the latter being simply worn down by the German's rallies.

Brookes, in the final round, at first won with great ease, but not in the nature of a runaway. Froitzheim was driving finely, but seemed staggered by the strokes Brookes played. The latter won the first two sets, and led, 3/1, in the third. His ground strokes were quite as good as Froitzheim's and his tosses also. But here he slacked, and Froitzheim at once took courage. He rushed in, volleyed and smashed and drove with fierce vigor. He captured the third set, and led, 5/1, in the fourth. Brookes here made an effort and reached 4/5 by tennis as good as at first. At 5/4, however, the German had the service with the sun behind him and in Brookes' eyes, and won the game clearly, making two sets all.

Again a struggle ensued, but now each man seemed at his best. Brookes led at 7/6, Froitzheim serving, but the former now had the sun behind him, and evidently realized it was his best chance. By three forehand lift drives of the greatest pace, that landed within a yard of the base line, he won or compelled Froitzheim to answer weakly. But he put his backhands over the line in trying too much for depth. He at last gained a match point, and, intercepting a backhand alley drive, scored clean by a fine backhand volley almost on the base line.

When Brookes and Wilding met in the challenge round it was still hot. Wilding served and at the jump Brookes took the net on his returns which were finely played and well judged. As predicted, Wilding lobbed, but Brookes potted away steadily and won these rallies. Wilding drove and Brookes volleyed strongly. At 6/4 Wilding served and started by good length driving to swing Brookes from side to side. Brookes' court covering and recoveries of drives was superb, and his pace great. But Wilding outdrove him and took the game. In the next game the overspin and immense pace of Wilding's drives was too much for even Brookes. Score 2/4.

At this stage the play of each was superb, but Brookes placed the first two sets to his credit, and finally the third and match. The summaries:

World's Hard Court Championships

Anthony F. Wilding, confining himself to one event—the singles, in which he was the playing through title holder, repeated his triumph of 1913 in the world's championships on hard courts, which was held at the Stade Francais, in the park of St. Cloud, near Paris, beginning May 29.

Wilding's victory was rather a hollow one, as he lost only one set in the tournament and that in the early round. His opponent in the final was Count Salm of Austria, who played the best game of his career, and performed the feat of defeating F. G. Lowe and A. H. Gobert, the former in five and the latter in three sets. Against Wilding, however, he had but little chance in the first two sets, but in the third he led, 4/3. He threw away his opportunity by stopping to change his shoe. The scores were 6/0, 6/2, 6/1. In the doubles, France against England, Decugis and Germot defeated Gore and Kingscote after four sets, 6/1, 11/9, 6/8, 6/2.

In the women's singles, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen won a notable victory, 6/2, 6/0. She lost only one set in the tournament. The mixed doubles was won by Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Max Decugis, an American-French combination, 6/3, 6/1. In the women's doubles Mlle. Lenglen, fourteen years old, and Miss Ryan, the California girl, won two love sets from the Amblard sisters.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Count Salm; the former at age of 14 is the singles and with Miss E. Ryan doubles champion of the world on hard courts.

Lawn Tennis in Australasia

Dr. Arthur O'Hara Wood, twenty years old, a pupil of Norman E. Brookes, won the Australasian championship of 1914, much to the surprise of the knowing ones, who expected Rod W. Heath, the conqueror of W. A. Larned in New Zealand in 1912, to defeat all comers. He had trained hard to win the title, for in the event of his winning this time he would become permanent possessor of the cup. He was put out, however, in the semi-final round by Patterson in straight sets. This brought the latter against Wood in the final round, and Wood won with the loss of but one set. He dragged Patterson in close to the net with short cuts and there found out the lad's weakness in close range volleying and deep overhead work. Then when Wood had victory well in sight he faltered for one set. Then again he found his game and ran out rather easily.

The doubles championship was from the first clearly a contest between Campbell and Patterson and Heath and Wood. These two pairs met in the final, and the former combination won with some ease. They knew of the weakness of Heath overhead and fed him with tosses, which he netted with consistency. Wood also failed, often through his liking for half-volleys from the service line. Campbell was very clever with short drop ground strokes which frequently got to the feet of their opponents, and Patterson served and smashed with great ferocity.

In the women's events, Miss Stewart won a triple crown by annexing all three championships open to women. She won the singles, doubles, and with Campbell the mixed doubles. It was the second time she scored a triple win, and on the previous occasion in Sydney, Campbell was also her partner.

Longwood Singles and Eastern Doubles

Maurice E. McLoughlin became Longwood champion, and Karl H. Behr and Theodore Roosevelt Pell Eastern doubles champions, at the twenty-fourth annual tournament held on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, Mass., from July 20 to 28.

A large and high class entry list was received for both events, the weather excellent on all but two days, the playing for the premier honors was keen, and the management was, as usual, competent and deserving of much praise.

It was McLoughlin's success that, more than any other cause, deprived the singles event of much of the interest that marked previous meetings. His going through the tournament, and his successful challenging of the titleholder, William M. Johnston of San Francisco, was regarded as a foregone conclusion. He did not lose a set during the tournament.

The draw in the singles was top heavy, most of the best men being in the upper half. It was the fate of N. W. Niles and W. J. Clothier to meet M. E. McLoughlin and R. N. Williams, 2nd, respectively, in the second round, when each made his exit. In this half also were F. B. Alexander, T. C. Bundy, A. S. Dabney, Irving C. Wright, G. P. Gardner, Jr., W. M. Washburn and S. H. Voshell. There was good class in the lower half, however. In getting to the final round R. L. Murray was obliged to dispose of W. F. Johnson, Elia Fottrell and F. C. Inman, while other players of note in this section were E. H. Whitney, Robert LeRoy, R. C. Seaver and J. D. E. Jones.

In the semi-final round of the singles McLoughlin appeared against Williams with determination written all over him, and seldom has he played a fiercer match. He kept the usually aggressive Williams on the defensive after the first three games, and the latter was driven to frequent errors by the American champion's great speed. It was the fourth tournament encounter of the two leaders of tennis in this country, the first taking place at Bay Ridge in 1912, when Williams, after dropping the first two sets, came back with a flash and lost only in five sets. The second, also a five set match, was fought at Newport that same month; the third was the final in 1913 at Newport, in which McLoughlin needed four sets to dispose of his brilliant antagonist. In view of these matches McLoughlin's straight set triumph in the 1914 tourney at Longwood was not expected.

The final round brought McLoughlin and Murray together. It was the latter's ambition to be the first player in the tournament to win a set from the champion. Strive as he might, Murray could get no more than three games in the first two sets. In the third he redoubled his efforts, and by the fastest kind of work got a lead of 5/2. The set seemed to be within his grasp. He strove with might and main to capture the necessary game, but McLoughlin was awake. By speeding up he managed to draw level, and seemed to be out of danger. But Murray was not done yet. With the energy of despair he fought on, determined to win the coveted set, but failed.

There was a pretty general opinion that Johnston would not win a set from McLoughlin in the challenge round. The titleholder was confident, however, that he would be able to make a good showing. For two sets Johnston almost held his own. McLoughlin's game was an open book to him, and all that was needed was to bring against it the strokes that would win. Johnston almost proved equal to the emergency. He did what no one else had been able to do in the tournament, that is, got to the net and held his own against the fierce drives of his opponent. McLoughlin made a Garri-son finish in the third set. He called on the reserves which had not been needed, and cut loose with a vengeance. His speedy shots caused Johnston to err, at first narrowly but afterward by wide margins. One game was all that Johnston could win.

Fast tennis was the order in the doubles. The match between Hackett and Alexander and Clothier and Gardner was one of very fast tennis, especially after the first set. Alexander was the hero of the match, and his close-quarter work was astounding. He and Hackett won after five sets. The best contest of the doubles, however, was in the semi-final round, when Hackett and Alexander defeated Fottrell and Murray in a four-set affair.

In the final round, Hackett and Alexander showed a reversal of form against Behr and Pell, and lost the match in straight sets. Hackett was very slow, and Alexander drove the ball in the net on the slightest provocation. His short center shots did not clear the barrier as they did in earlier matches. His service, usually powerful, was ineffective. He won only three games out of seven on his service; Hackett won four and lost four; Pell won four and lost four; while Behr alone served effectively for a win of seven out of eight service games. Western Championships

In a tournament that broke all former records for entries in the singles events and for attendances in Western tennis, Alex Squair of Chicago, a student at the University of Chicago, became the new Western champion, in the twenty-seventh annual competition for the title, held on the courts of the Onwentsia Club of Chicago from July 25 to August 4. In the doubles, George M. Church and Dean Mathey of Princeton University defeated the title holders, Walter T. Hayes and J. H. Winston. Squair's victory was the big feature of the tournament, including as it did successive wins over James H. Winston, R. B. Powell, Paul E. Gardner, Joseph J. Armstrong and Clarence J. Griffin. As in the tournament in 1913, Armstrong was the runner-up in the final round. The first set was very close. Both men were playing beautiful tennis and were doing their utmost to win. Every point was hard fought and many of the games ran to deuce. Squair, however, held the edge throughout and ultimately ran out at 8/6. In the next set Armstrong started out with a burst of speed and took the first three games. Squair, however, answered this attack by taking the net on every occasion and literally ran the Harvard man off his feet. The exhibition shown by Squair was one of the best of the year seen in Chicago up to that time, and he took five straight games and the set at 6/3. In the third set both men fought stubbornly for every point and the games were all close. Squair, however, always had the edge and ran out at 6/4, taking the match. This victory brought Squair to face Griffin in the challenge round. In the first set Squair held a comfortable lead and never was in danger of losing. In the second set Squair led at 3/2, but in the sixth game Griffin played the best tennis he showed in the match and by breaking through Squair's service tied the score at 3-all. This was the critical game of the set, for had Squair won his own service the set would undoubtedly have been his. Thereafter Griffin led and, by breaking through Squair's service on the twelfth game, scored the set at 7/5. The winning of this set, however, proved costly to Griffin for the reason that Squair had literally run the Californian off his feet and Griffin was visibly tired while Squair, as usual, was as fresh as when he began. The third set was Squair's all the way. The fourth and last set of the match was merely a romp for Squair. Griffin was badly off his own game while Squair was invincible. The men's doubles, with fifty-three teams, was the biggest event of its kind ever held in the West. Of these teams six stood out as the "class" of the field and the draw was fortunate in separating the best of these. The first set of the final round was Church and Mathey's all the way. In the second set things were pretty much reversed and Byford and Burdick led all of the way, running out at 6/3. The third set was close and a point or two might have changed the whole complexion of the match. All four men were playing splendid tennis, but Church and Mathey seemed to have the most in reserve and took the set at 6/4. The fourth set was a veritable battle-royal. Nearly every game went to deuce and each point was fought out to the limit. First one side and then the other had the advantage and both tennis teams had several splendid chances to win, but Church and Mathey were again the steadiest when the points counted most and took the set at 14/12 and with it the match. The women's singles also brought out a large entry. The final round brought together Miss Mary Browne, the national champion, and Mrs. Robert H. Williams. Fine tennis was shown, but Miss Browne had a shade the better of it all the way and won in straight sets. As Miss Gwendolyn Rees the holder of the title failed to appear, Miss Browne became champion by default. In the women's doubles, Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams had more or less of a walkaway, while in the mixed doubles, Miss Browne and Horrell won in straight sets. The summaries:

Forstall, promoter of the new Chicago Tennis Club; 3, Young and, 4, Todd, winners of the A. A. Toy Town Tournament.—Fred H. Harris of Brattleboro, Vt., won a second victory for the challenge cup in the second annual tournament held on the courts of the Toy Town Tavern, Winchendon, Mass., August 17 to 22. In the final round of singles, C. H. Colleston defeated H. Taylor, 6/3, 3/6, 6/3, 7/5, but in the challenge round Harris had the better speed and was better at the net. He defeated Colleston, 6/4, 3/6, 6/2. Colleston and Porter won the doubles, and Miss Williams and J. Richards the mixed doubles.

Tri-County Championship.—W. S. McElroy of Pittsburgh won the singles and paired with Dr. T. W. Stephens took the doubles in the tournament for the Tri-County championship, comprising the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland and Fayette in Pennsylvania, which was held on the courts of the Trafford Tennis Association. McElroy reached the final with the loss of only one set, and in that round defeated J. C. Mackrell, Jr., 6/2, 6/4, 6/3. McElroy and Dr. Stephens met Gage Hoag and Mackrell, the former winning, 3/6, 6/1, 6/3, 6/2.

University Heights Tennis Club Tournament.—The fourth annual open tournament of the University Heights Tennis Club of New York City, was the most successful the club ever held. Play began on July 4, but the doubles was not completed until August 9, due to the fact that the finalists were prevented from the earlier playing of the match. The singles was won by Arthur Lovibond of the Hamilton Grange Club, in a four-set final match with his clubmate, James O'Neale, the Columbia Base Ball pitcher. O'Neale, who, by his free, hard hitting style, had defeated such men as W. M. Fischer, the former title holder, and A. D. Hammett, and had been picked by many to defeat Lovibond, was outgeneraled by his older and more experienced opponent. Lovibond played his best tennis of the tournament. The score was 6/3, 6/4, 7/9, 8/6. Last year's winner, Charles Chambers of the Kings County Club of Brooklyn, lost a hard three-set match to Harry Steinkamp of the Bedford Park Club. Chambers won the first set at love, and after losing the second was three times within a point of the third set, which was finally won by Steinkamp at 12/10. The doubles was won by Lovibond and Steinacher, both of the Hamilton Grange Club. They won from Steinkamp and Drake in the finals in three straight sets, 6/3, 6/2, 6/3. Probably the best match was in the round before the semi-finals between Steinkamp and Drake and Chambers and J. Mersereau, last year's winners. This match, started on Friday, July 10, was set-all, four-all, when darkness overtook the contestants. It was then agreed that the match would continue with the understanding that if it went to five-all the entire match would be played over the next day. Chambers and Mersereau ran the score to 5/4 40-15 and looked all over winners, but finally lost. The match played over the next day was won by Steinkamp and Drake after two hard sets.

1, William M. Johnston, Pacific Coast champion and winner of numerous tournaments throughout the country; 2, George M. Church, Princeton, intercollegiate champion.

Pacific Coast Championships

BY CARL R. GARDNER.

William M. Johnston of San Francisco, successfully defended his title in men's singles, in the twenty-seventh annual tournament for the championship of the Pacific Coast, held on the courts of the Naglie Park Tennis Club, San Jose, Calif., June 22 to 29. The tournament was well conducted and a complete success. The Chamber of Commerce of San Jose and the local Merchants' Association offered liberal prizes to the contestants. On his way to the championship, Johnston encountered his first serious oppositon from Carl R. Gardner, with whom he clashed in the second round. It was not until the middle of the third set that Johnston appeared to find himself, and his fierce driving improved very noticeably, with the result that he scored three straight games in short order and won the match. In the semi-final round Johnston met Clarence Griffin, who had played exceptionally well in the previous rounds and was expected to call out the champion's best, which he did. After dropping the first set Johnston showed the most brilliant stretch of volleying ever seen on the coast. He killed one clever return after another, and as his network became sure, he seemed to double his control of all his strokes and his driving and smashing were almost faultless. By these methods, he thoroughly demoralized his opponent, winning eleven straight games after dropping one, and pressed into the final round by taking the match. In the final match Johnston opposed Elia Fottrell and met the stiffest competition of the tourney. Hot as the pace was in the first set, Johnston seemed still able to lift it in the second just as he had done with Griffin in the semi-finals. His all-round play became more severe than ever, and though he did not specialize in volleying in this match, he made no errors in that department, and his fast driving from the back court was so perfect that he scored, mainly by it, thirteen straight games from his weakening opponent and won the title. The women's singles championship was won by Mrs. H. A. Niemeyer, a steady and even baseline player, who has improved steadily during the past four years. The women's doubles championship was won by Miss Carmen Tarilton and Miss Eleanor Tennant. These young women played remarkable tennis, taking the net together and defending the position well. The mixed doubles championship was won by Miss Carmen Tarilton and A. C. Van Vliet, from a field which included Miss Anita Myers and Elia Fottrell, Miss E. Tennant and J. C. Rohlf, and Miss I. Norman and William M. Johnston.

With Griffin, Johnston took the special doubles event, encountering their only dangerous opponents in Fottrell and Gardner in their first match. The superior team work of Johnston and Griffin, however, pulled them through to a well earned victory. They decisively defeated Johns and Roberts in the final, 6/2, 6/2, 7/5.

H. V. D. Johns won the junior title, defeating his old, or rather young, rival, Roland Roberts, in the semi-final, and Leon Strauss in the final. The latter match was the longest of the tournament, and both boys were completely fagged at the finish. With Roberts, Johns also won the doubles. The summaries:

Pacific Coast Doubles

W. M. Johnston and Clarence Griffin dropped jauntily in at the Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, Cal., on July 1, and four days later emerged twice as jauntily, with the title and privilege of representing the Pacific Coast at Lake Forest, Ill. The Los Angeles tennis contingent had laid several mines for the San Francisco invaders in the teams of Claude Wayne and Nat. Browne, W. Mace and Simpson Sinsabaugh, Clifton Herd and Ward Dawson, Hal Braley and John Duncan, F. Adams and Robert Variel, Gerald Young and Charles Rogers, L. Freeman and Kenneth Newell, McCormick and Barber, and others of less danger. But some of these blew up their brethren and the others were very skilfully rendered harmless by the Northern combination. In the semi-final round, McCormick and Barber bit the dust to the score of 6/1, 6/0, 6/1, hardly giving Johnston and his stubby partner a try-out. In the same round Mace and Sinsabaugh were treated roughly by their neighbors, Browne and Wayne. The brilliance shown by the former pair when they eliminated Herd and Dawson was lacking and the path for their opponents was one of roses, as the score, 6/1, 6/3, 6/3, indicates. The final round brought forth some excellent tennis, but in this case the aggressive game, which was at the same time a steady one, showed to distinct advantage over the defensive game. Browne and Wayne played Griffin two-thirds of the time, but that gentleman was right at the top and simply ate up all that came his way. Johnston, too, was deadly and the outcome was never in doubt from start to finish of the match. The summaries:

Volley from California

"Maury" McLoughlin returned from the East a bit "fed up" with tennis. This we know, because he turned to golf immediately, much as Alexander the Great might have taken a hand at pinochle to clear his head after a battle. Incidentally "Mac" is no mean hand at the "gentler" game. He often gets round under 85, but expects to do much better when he grows too aged and rheumatic for tennis. His tennis season will begin earlier than usual this year, as he will compete in the exposition tournament before going East, and will need to be in practice.

In spite of the long siege of tournaments "Lin" Murray battled in last summer, he returned full of ginger and booting all ideas of staleness. Business of being an "agricultural chemist" (whatever that is) has given him little time for tennis, however. He is now assistant head chemist for the Pacific Coast Borax Co., at Oakland, Calif.

Murray has competed in one tournament since returning—the Bay Counties championship, at San Francisco. He reached the finals and met John Strachan, when, after losing the first set, 5/7, and two games in the second, he sustained a severe twist of his instep, which necessitated his defaulting.

The season of Eastern tennis has improved Murray's game, beyond doubt, toning down the rough parts and adding to his headwork. He has learned the value of conserving his energy, and, better still, he gives his opponent a few chances to miss.

About a month after their return, McLoughlin and Murray were dragged out to make a Roman holiday for the public, in an exhibition doubles match with Johnston and Strachan. The latter team, being in good practice, did give a fair impersonation of the lions, while the other pair, being sadly out of trim, fell readily into the role of the Christian martyrs and were eaten alive. The lions gagged a bit in the third set, when the martyrs proved somewhat tough, and lost at 3/6. However, they finished the feast with a final gulp and took the match, 7/5, 6/3, 3/6, 6/2.

Johnston and Strachan look very formidable—on paper—and their chances for challenging McLoughlin and Bundy for the title next August seem good. However, there are several "ifs, buts and ands" to be considered, so we can't make rosy prophecy at this early date.

John Strachan came on steadily during the past year, in spite of the fact that he had not the advantage of the Eastern season's play. He competed in only the State and Bay Counties championships, but won in both singles and doubles. With a straight set win over Johnston, an easy defeat of Griffin and a lead on Murray when the latter injured his foot, his record is very impressing. "Doubles" is his long suit, and it isn't too flattering to predict that he will one day figure on the champion team.

"Billy" Johnston, disappointed and somewhat nonplussed by his comparatively poor showing in the East last summer, has had his rackets on the shelf for the past few months. It didn't take him long to decide that a complete rest would add to his keenness in the 1915 season. Johnston has played tennis almost continuously for nearly ten years, and, possibly, a vacation was needed.

"Eely" Fottrell is learning to coax crops out of the soil up on his father's extensive ranch. If "Eely" turns out as good a farmer as he has a tennis player, ranching should prove profitable. Farm work hasn't taken every minute of his time, however, for recently he rode forty miles to Stockton, Calif., on his motorcycle (returning the same day) just for a few sets of tennis.

"Peck" Griffin, of clay court fame, is now associated with H. Taylor Curtis, who markets fine paintings. Rumor has it that after they have made an exceptionally profitable sale they hie them to the courts and there celebrate with a couple of sets of peppery tennis. Curtis is hardly in Griffin's class as a tennis player, but then Griffin is hardly in Curtis' class as a picture seller.

"Mell" Long, the former Internationalist, is now in a fair way to become an eminent "sawbones." Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, gave him his degree last June, since when he has secured his license to practice in the State of California. "Mell" is now an interne in the Buena Vista Sanitarium, which is owned by his father, Dr. S. F. Long. Local tennisdom has tried in vain to coax Long back to the game in the past six months. He is too wrapped up in his profession for the present, however, but we live in hopes.

San Francisco Championship

W. M. Johnston again won the San Francisco championship on the courts of the California Lawn Tennis Club last May when he defeated Roland Roberts in four well played sets in the final round. Johnston reached the final with ease and everyone expected to see him tread all over the sixteen-year-old Golden Gate Park Junior Club member. Roberts, however, seemed to find the older player's game to his liking, for he handily took a set and very nearly annexed two, forcing Johnston to the utmost to stave off defeat.

It was a pretty match, both hitting hard and clean, with the drive predominating.

Roberts, it will be remembered, came within a point of snuffing Johnston's ambitions at Del Monte the year before in the Pacific States championship. It was the closest call the latter had during the event.

California Intercollegiate Championships

The California intercollegiate championship is in reality nothing more than a meet between the two main universities of the State, California and Leland Stanford, Jr. But as these two have always had a monopoly of the best players, the question of propriety in giving the title of intercollegiate champion to the winner has never been raised.

As usual, the meet was held last Spring, and, as usual, California triumphed, taking all the matches. Had Lindley Murray, Stanford's best man, been able to compete, his university might have taken two of the five matches played. As it was, Stanford's case was hopeless and the best it could do was to win one set in eleven. The summaries:

Southern Championships

The Southern championship, held on the courts of the New Orleans Lawn Tennis Club, beginning May 25, was one of the most successful tournaments ever held in that section of the country. A field of fifty-two in the men's singles and half that number in men's doubles competed for championship honors, while the women were represented by twenty contestants in the singles, and eight teams. The final round of the singles brought together Irving C. Wright of Boston and Esmond Phelps of New Orleans. They furnished beautiful tennis for the first set. Phelps volleyed sharply, taking the net on every possible opening, and forcing Wright to cover an immense amount of territory in the back court. These tactics soon brought the score to 5/2, Phelps leading, but Wright again rose to the occasion, began placing more accurately, assuming the net himself when he had made a good opening, and won five straight games for the set. The next two sets were easy for the visitor, the scores being 6/1, 6/3. In the final match of the doubles the best tennis of the tournament was seen, and Wright and Adoue had to exert themselves to the utmost to defeat the younger pair, Bruns and Watters, both of whom are still in their teens. Middle States Championships

Karl H. Behr was the hero in the tournament for the Middle States championship, held on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, South Orange, N. J., beginning on June 22. He defeated T. R. Pell in the final round, the match going five sets, and in the challenge round overpowered Gustave F. Touchard for the title. In the doubles, Behr and Pell defeated George L. Wrenn and C. F. Watson, Jr., in the final round, the latter having a sprained ankle, and in the challenge round were successful against Touchard and W. M. Washburn.

Mrs. Louise H. Raymond won the women's singles and successfully challenged Miss Edith E. Rotch of Boston, for the title. Paired with Mrs. C. N. Beard she also won the doubles.

The final round between Behr and Pell was by far the best of the tournament. The first three sets were very close, neither man being more than a game ahead of the other at any time except at the end of the set. Behr started off by rushing the net at every opportunity and volleying back Pell's fast backhand shots very sharply. He did not especially try to force the latter's forehand, but time after time made him err off his backhand by hard, stinging volleys. By these tactics he took the first set at 10/8. The second set was as close as at first, but Pell proved the steadier in the pinches, winning at 8/6. The third set Pell got his hard first service working to perfection, forcing Behr, and making him pop up easy ones which Pell promptly proceeded to kill off. The latter played confidently, passing his opponent right and left, winning the set at 6/3. Play was resumed without resting and it looked like an easy victory for Pell. He made a great mistake, however, in letting up a little and Behr came with a rush, winning twelve out of the next thirteen games and the match.

The challenge round was very disappointing. Touchard simply could not get going and his poor play had such an effect on Behr that the latter took a bad slump in the third set, losing it at 6/4. Touchard plainly showed lack of practice, and Behr did all the forcing. The former, however, ended the match in great style with a perfect service ace down the middle.

The challenge round of the doubles, as was generally expected, resulted in a victory for the challengers. Touchard was short of practice, having played for the first time in months only the day before. Yet he and Washburn pressed their opponents to four sets. The first was hard fought and finally went to the challengers at 11/9. Touchard and Washburn won the next easily but dropped the third. A struggle ensued for the fourth, but at 7/6 against them Behr and Pell came with a rush and won the next three games. The summaries:

Rockaway Hunting Club Invitation Tournament.—The annual invitation tournament of the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, Long Island, N. Y., May 30 and 31, marked the opening of the grass court season in the New York district. William A. Larned made his reappearance in the singles, the first time since 1911, and by defeating W. M. Hall, C. M. Bull, Jr., and Robert Le Roy, advanced to the final round. His opponent was Dean Mathey. This match, however, was postponed for nearly a month, by reason of an injury to Larned's knee. Larned won the first two sets, but Mathey took the next three and the match. The doubles honors were captured by T. R. Pell and Karl H. Behr. In the final match Little and Inman played below their usual standard, while Pell and Behr played brilliantly. The summaries: Men's singles—First round—Robt. LeRoy d. Roy Pier, 6/0, 6/1; F. C. Metropolitan Championships

Robert Lindley Murray of Palo Alto, Calif., in a sensational match with Fred B. Alexander, three times winner of the title, won the Metropolitan championship in singles, and G. M. Church and Dean Mathey annexed the doubles against G. C. Shafer and King Smith, in the first tournament held on the new grounds of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y., June 13 to 20.

The entry list was large, but hardly as classy as some of the previous tournaments, while the weather conditions were good in the main. The day of the final match was beautiful, clear and cool, and the gallery was so large that it occupied all the valuable space about the championship court and on the club house porch and steps.

One of the surprises of the tournament was the defeat of Pell by Hugh Tallant on the opening day. The latter played good tennis, but his victory was due chiefly to the lapses of Pell, who was unable to play anything near his usual game.

In the final Alexander brought into use all of his wonderful craftiness and all of his old speed and daring. At times, and they were frequent, he made phenomenal shots, and his court covering and brilliance were remarkable. Murray was up against the struggle of his life, and he won because he refused to give up and because he tried for everything. He covered miles of court, and served like a whirlwind. At times he drove like Alexander, who sent the ball over the net so fast it could scarcely be seen.

The doubles final lacked the vim and snap of the singles final, but showed worlds of steadiness in all those concerned, and an ability to "get" and lob, which was remarkable. Church and Mathey won because of better team work. The doubles part of the tournament was remarkable for the large number of close and well played three-set matches and for the number of upsets.

Church and Mathey had a narrow escape when they pulled out from a 5/1 hole in the deciding set against Pell and Behr. The Princeton pair stuck to it with great perseverance and courage, and deserved much credit for their remarkable victory. The summaries:

Tri-State Tournament

BY W. GAGE HOAG.

The sixteenth annual open Tri-State tournament was held on the courts of the Indianapolis (Ind.) Tennis Association, during the week of July 6. It was the first year the tournament had not been played on Cincinnati courts. Owing to the efforts of the committee, of which Dr. Charles D. Humes was chairman, the largest entry list of any tournament ever held in Indiana was secured. The number of out of State players was not large, which was due to the fact that several other tournaments were held during the same week, both in the East and West.

J. C. Mackrell, Jr., of Pittsburgh, was picked to win. He met Charles P. Trask of Indianapolis in an early round and was eliminated in straight sets. Trask won his way into the finals in the lower half. In the upper half of the bracket, William G. Hoag, State champion, also won his way into the finals. His matches with William Fleet of Culver, Ind.; Captain McNagney of Columbia City, and John Darnall of Lebanon, were all hard fought and interesting.

In the final round, Trask started out in whirlwind style and took the first two sets. He had the third set, 4 to 1, before Hoag could stop him. The next three games went to Hoag, and finally the set. He also won the fourth set with a loss of but two points. The fifth and deciding set, and with it the premier honors in the tournament, was also won by Hoag.

William McElroy, winner in 1913, was on hand to defend his title in the challenge round. In this match some of the best tennis ever played on local courts was witnessed. The first two sets went to McElroy, both being hard fought, throughout. Hoag braced in the third set and won four straight games, and finally the set. In the fourth set, McElroy came back strong, resuming his net game, which, together with his brilliant service, completely baffled Hoag, and the set, match and tournament went to McElroy for the second time.

J. C. Mackrell, Jr., and Cullen Thomas had little trouble in winning the men's doubles, not losing a set during the tournament.

Miss Katharine Brown defeated Mrs. I. Watt Pugh in the final round of the women's singles, only to lose to Miss Ruth Sanders of Cincinnati in the challenge round. The summaries:

Intercollegiate Championships

The thirty-fourth annual intercollegiate championships, which were held on the grass courts of the Merion Cricket Club, at Haverford, Pa., from September 15 to 19, produced one of the most astonishing results. This was the defeat of Richard Norris Williams, 2nd, representing Harvard University, by George Myers Church of Princeton University, in the final, and this in spite of the fact that on September 1, Williams defeated the famous McLoughlin for the national championship of 1914. Conspicuously inferior to Williams in strokes, except overhead, Church excelled in control of the ball, in court generalship and strategy.

Eight institutions were represented in the tournament, namely: Harvard, Princeton, Yale, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, Amherst, Dartmouth and Haverford. Cornell also entered a team, composed of Charles O. Benton and Clifton B. Herd, but did not come on and was defaulted. The only colleges to win points on the new cup placed in competition 1913 were Princeton and Harvard, each being credited with 1 point for their victories in the singles and doubles events, respectively. As Harvard won both events in 1913 the tally is as follows: Harvard 3 points; Princeton 1 point.

The weather was nearly perfect, the courts in splendid condition, considering the long spell of dry weather, and affairs were capably managed.

The doubles final for two sets was one-sided. Williams and Harte hit hard and freely and worked together smoothly. Church and Kidder tried everything they knew without avail. In the third set the latter made their last stand, but Williams and Harte were not to be denied and they won the set and match. The summaries:

The doubles event was a toss-up between several teams of nearly equal ability, finally being won by Trinity, which college was well represented by Burgwin and Edsall. The summaries:

Interscholastic Championship

Leonard Beekman of Columbia University succeeded G. Colket Caner as interscholastic champion, the result of his winning the tournament held on the Casino courts, Newport, R. I., in conjunction with the national championship, August 26-28. In the final round Beekman was opposed by E. R. McCormick of the University of Southern California. The former played a medium paced, steady, consistent game, letting his husky opponent make the errors, and kept the ball coming. McCormick tried too hard and cramped most of his shots, really not doing himself justice, and lost. The summaries:

Seabright (N. J.) Invitation Tournament

By winning the singles honors in the annual invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, on the courts of the famous seaside resort, during the week of July 13, R. Norris Williams, 2nd., earned the right to have his name engraved on the Achelis Cup, a trophy highly prized by all tennis players. There was a splendid entry list, thirty-two players being drawn in the singles event and twelve pairs in the doubles event.

Williams' victory was clean-cut and well deserved. William M. Johnston was removed from his path by the unexpected victory of Robert Le Roy in the first round, overplay and a heavy court being chiefly responsible for the upset.

W. J. Clothier put Nat W. Niles out of the running, and then in turn succumbed to Williams, in a match which revealed the young Philadelphian at the top of his game. In the challenge round T. R. Pell made an unexpectedly good fight, carrying the match to full five sets and even leading at two sets to one.

The doubles combinations brought out two of the strongest teams in the country in M. E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy and T. R. Pell and K. H. Behr. Both of these teams drew byes in opposite halves of the tourney. Hackett and Inman took the first set from Pell and Behr in the second round, largely because of the latter's errors and Hackett's cleverness in making the openings. Clothier and Gardner, who had won their first round match in two close sets against Prentice and G. L. Wrenn, defaulted to Church and Mathey.

Johnston and Tallant sprung somewhat of a surprise when they won from Niles and Dabney in a three-set match in the second round, the winners pairing finely together. Pell and Behr then took Johnston and Tallant into camp in two sets. In the semi-finals Pell was sweeping his backhand short across the court on the forehand side, this shot giving the losers no end of trouble, and Behr was rushing the net at every opportunity.

The final match, between McLoughlin and Bundy and Pell and Behr, was won by the former pair, but only after the hardest kind of a five-set struggle.

Southampton Invitation Tournament

The annual invitation tournament of the Meadow Club at Southampton, Long Island, during the week of August 17, was productive of an abundance of good play, some very close contests and a number of upsets, conspicuous among the latter being the defeat of W. M. Johnston by W. M. Washburn, and of Elia Fottrell by A. S. Dabney.

R. Lindley Murray met Washburn in the final round of the singles and defeated him in straight sets. The doubles honors resulted in a victory for McLoughlin and Bundy, their opponents in the final round being Norman E. Brookes, the Australasian, and W. A. Larned. The first set of this match was fairly close, each side winning on service up to 5-all, when Larned was broken through. The latter fired in the second set, which was easy for the champions. Tennis in Kirk Park, Syracuse, N. Y.—According to Hazen Charles Kelley, supervisor of tennis, the game in 1914 had its best season since the municipal courts were opened four years ago. In Kirk Park there are six clay courts and these are not enough to supply the demands of the tennis lovers in this section of the city. The tournament of 1914 brought out a large entry list in each of the events. The men's singles was won by G. R. Granbow, who promises to give city champion Raleigh a fight for honors next season. The men's doubles went to Granbow and Norton, who play a very steady game. Miss Pratt and Mr. Wisner won the mixed doubles. Three teams from Kirk Park, consisting of McClure and Hogan, Listman and Barth, and Kelley and Kelley entered the city championships, held at the Sedgwick Farm Club, and made an excellent showing. A large amount of credit for the fine season enjoyed on the municipal tennis courts is due Thomas F. Keane, superintendent of playgrounds.

Sleepy Hollow Invitation Tournament

By F. B. ALEXANDER.

The first invitation tennis tournament held by the Sleepy Hollow Country Club on June 6, 7 and 8 was one of the best ever held on clay courts.

R. L. Murray won the singles after defeating F. B. Alexander, Karl Behr and W. Merrill Hall on the same day, a truly wonderful exhibition of tennis tactics and stamina.

The conditions of play were perfect and reflected the highest credit on the committee, headed by Messrs. Mahony, Douglass and Plummer. The summaries:

Country Club of Westchester Tournament

The week of July 6 was a memorable one at the tennis courts of the Country Club of Westchester, just outside of New York City. It was the club's invitation tournament and was altogether successful. The courts were in splendid condition, and the fame of the contestants brought out large and enthusiastic galleries. A doubles tournament on the first three days of the week was played on the miss and out plan, instead of a round robin, as is customary at Westchester. On Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday a singles event on the same lines was held. The changes in the tournament were made chiefly to give the Davis Cup committee a line on the possibilities for the team. There was little of an encouraging nature in the doubles, for Theodore Roosevelt Pell and Karl H. Behr, who defeated G. M. Church and Dean Mathey in the final round, continued the good work they had been doing all spring, while Richard Norris Williams, 2nd, and R. L. Murray, who played together for the first time, showed little to warrant their selection as the much-needed team to defend the cup. In the singles, however, there was much to gratify the committee, Williams, Johnston and Behr, who were looked upon at the time as having the best chance to be bracketed with McLaughlin, revealing tennis of international quality. In the final round, which was changed to the best two out of three sets on account of the heat, Williams defeated Johnston after dropping the first set. The summaries:

Seventh Regiment Defeats Yale.—The annual winter match, Seventh Regiment T. C. versus Yale University, was played at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, on the afternoon of Washington's Birthday. The collegians were very rusty; few of the members of the team had handled a racket since October, and as Seventh Regiment had out a strong aggregation of players, headed by W. M. Hall, the contest was altogether one-sided. The visitors not only failed to win a match but their total of sets was only two. The summaries: Singles—Walter Merrill Hall (7th R.) d. W. New England Championships

The thirteenth New England championship tournament, which was held on the courts of the Hartford Golf Club, Hartford, Conn., during the week of June 8, was featured by excellent tennis weather, a large entry list, a willingness on the part of the contestants to play their matches on schedule time, and an efficient committee.

R. L. Murray, the clever young left-handed player of Leland Stanford University at Stanford University, Calif., had no difficulty in winning the singles. He came through the tournament, defeating F. W. Cole in the final round, and A. H. Man, Jr., former Yale player, in the challenge round.

The doubles event brought out some good playing, although the favorite, C. C. Burgwin and J. L. Richards, and R. L. Murray and H. L. Hahn had no difficulty in coming through their respective halves. In the final Murray and Hahn won in straight sets. The summaries:

Missouri Valley Championships

BY JOHN TEN BROECK.

The Central Western classic, which is held yearly under the name of the Missouri Valley Championship for men, began on the courts of the Kansas City (Mo.) Athletic Club, August 4. An innovation in the way of charging admission was tried, and the financial success achieved has induced the Kansas City tennis contingent to make a strong bid for the clay court championships as soon as suitable quarters can be secured. The class of the tourney consisted of Armstrong of St. Paul, Hoerr of St. Louis, and Cannon, the local pride. The dope ran true to form, although Wester nearly brought about an upset by playing Hoerr a three-set match and leading on the final set, 5/3. Cannon also sent the hopes of his admirers soaring by going after the veteran Armstrong in aggressive style and outplaying the Harvard crack in the first two sets. Only an attack of unsteadiness changed the tide and enabled the Minnesota champion to win. The team of Armstrong and Hoerr was too strong for the balance of the field, that team winning the doubles in impressive style. The summaries:

Missouri Valley Women's Championships

One month after the Missouri Valley men's tournament came the championships in women's singles and mixed doubles. While the field was not so large as in the Central West, the play was much faster. Miss Marion Sowle of Kansas City, upset all the dope, going to the finals in impressive style, defeating the only foreign entry, Miss Prendergast of St. Louis, but losing to Mrs. Yager, also of Kansas City, in the finals in a heartbreaking contest, after having match point in the third set. Miss Marjorie Hires and Jack Cannon were the victors in the mixed doubles over Miss Marion Sowle and Arthur H. Seddon in a three-set match. The summaries:

State Championships

New York State Championships

Maurice E. McLoughlin won the singles title, and Harold H. Hackett and Fred B. Alexander the doubles honors in the tournament for the New York State championship, held on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., from July 29 to August 8. It was one of the most interesting and successful tournaments ever held under the auspices of the Crescent A. C.

Upsets and reversals were frequent during the competition, and an American marathon record was set up by Hoffman Nickerson and E. R. McCormick in the fourth round of the singles, the former running the score up to 19/17 in their second set, thus eclipsing all previous long distance tournament records.

Touchard and J. S. Cushman played a long three-set match in the first round, the former winning the third set at 6/3. Bundy started play against H. K. Sturdy, Jr., in the second round and he was in such excellent form that his opponent got but two games. Inman had an unexpectedly easy time winning from A. H. Man, Jr.

The Alexander-Washburn match of the third round attracted a large gallery and was replete with sensational shots, but after losing the first set Alexander came back strong and won the second and third sets quite easily.

Fottrell faced McLoughlin in the third round and made the famous Californian extend himself to his utmost to win. Bundy sprung a surprise by defeating Touchard with ease, and when Merrill Hall succumbed to the Davis Cup player, many thought that Bundy would reach the semi-final, but in this they were mistaken as he was defeated very handsly by Inman.

McLoughlin, showing very brilliant form, disposed of Inman in three sets in the semi-final match, but the other semi-final proved to be the best contest of the tournament. It was a meeting between Murray and Alexander, who had met twice before during the season and in both instances Murray was declared the victor. This last match at once resolved itself into a contest of furious speed and brilliancy. Murray had the speed, the dash and the stamina, while Alexander had the head and tennis strokes.

Murray won the first set by breaking through the veteran's service, and pulled out the second after being behind at 5/3. He lost the third after Alexander had point set on him eight times. The Californian played well in the fourth set and ran into a lead of 5/2, only to be caught again by Alexander in a wonderful spurt at 5-all. An extra kick to his serve enabled Murray to run out the set at 8/6 and with it the match.

The final match between McLoughlin and Murray, played on August 26, resulted in a victory of straight sets for the former. McLoughlin started with wonderful speed, while Murray was a bit nervous and off his game. McLoughlin ran off the first four games of the first set, and then Murray took the fifth, his only one of the set, on errors by McLoughlin. The latter then ran out the next two games for the set. The second and third sets found a great improvement in Murray's play, especially in serving. McLoughlin found the twisting ball very difficult to handle, but took the serve just often enough to keep comfortably in the lead at all times.

The surprise of the doubles tournament was the unexpectedly brilliant showing of Claude Wayne and Nat Browne, national clay court champions, who forced Hackett and Alexander to five hard sets before they bowed to superior speed and generalship.

The final round found Hackett and Alexander facing Palmer and Throckmorton, who had won the lower half from an inferior field. As was expected, the former national champions won in straight sets, Alexander with his unbeatable serve and Hackett with his persistent steadiness and accuracy proving too strong a combination. The summaries:

Florida State Championships

Theodore Roosevelt Pell of New York, retained his title as champion of Florida in the fifth annual tournament held by the Palm Beach Tennis Club, on the Royal Poinciana courts, from February 28 to March 7. New York was further honored by the victory of Artemas Holmes and F. C. Inman in the doubles. In the women's singles Mrs. Ramson Wood, who defaulted to Mrs. Haight in the first round in the 1913 tournament, was returned the winner, while Miss L. G. Witherbee and Miss C. Roberson won the doubles in straight sets.

The list of entries was a remarkable one, and the tournament itself recorded an advance over the high standard already created. The attendance daily was large, and the playing generally was of a high order of excellence.

The result of the final round of the singles between Inman and Dabney was quite a surprise. As the latter had played wonderful tennis up to this time it was fully expected that the match would be close and exciting, with the chances about even. Inman, however, accomplished what really was a runaway, winning in straight sets, 6/1, 6/3, 6/4.

In the challenge round Inman and Pell were brought together. A better match has rarely been seen anywhere. The conditions were perfect. To the great surprise of everyone, Inman won the first two sets with the loss of but two games in each set. The pace, however, began to tell on Inman and he lost the third set as easily as he had won the first two. He showed great recuperative powers in the fourth and fifth sets, but lost both by a small margin.

Holmes and Inman and Dabney and Pell met in the final round of the doubles. This was looked upon as sure to be a close match, with the odds slightly in favor of Dabney and Pell. The wise ones, however, proved poor guessers, as Holmes and Inman won in straight sets.

In the women's singles there was also a large entry and some excellent tennis. The finals brought out an exhibition of hard hitting and brilliancy on the part of Miss Holmes against the more steady Mrs. Rawson Wood. The first and second sets were equally divided, each winning one. In the final set each contestant came within a point of winning several times and each was thoroughly exhausted at the finish. Mrs. Wood finally won at 8/6. The summaries:

Maryland State Championships

Theodore Roosevelt Pell displaced Wallace F. Johnson as Maryland champion in the annual tournament held on the courts of the Baltimore Country Club during the week of May 14. Pell was also successful in the doubles, paired with Charles M. Bull, Jr. The mixed doubles was won by a Baltimore pair, Miss Susanne White and Clarence Fisher.

In the final round of the singles, the best J. A. C. Colston could do against Pell was to force the score of the third set to 7/5. The New Yorker was in good form and his shots had plenty of sting. In the challenge round against Johnson he got revenge for his defeat at Chevy Chase the previous week. The summaries:

Iowa State Championships

Roland M. Hoerr outplayed Fred Bradley, last year's winner, in the final round of the men's singles, and Bradley, with Olin Sweet as partner, annexed the doubles in the Iowa State championship tournament, held on the courts of the Des Moines Golf and Country Club from July 27 to August 2. Mrs. D. B. Foster of Kansas City had a walkover in the women's singles, and the Misses Denman and Scribner triumphed in the mixed doubles.

The final round of the singles was a disappointment, as Bradley sprained his ankle following the city tournament, and was in no form to give Hoerr a match. Mr. Felt of Kansas City gave complete satisfaction as official referee. The summaries:

Championships of the Carolinas

W. G. Stacy of Texas, treated players and spectators to the surprise of their lives at the tournament for the championship of the Carolinas during the week of June 22. An utter stranger to the Carolinas, and showing up just as the tournament started, the Texan, without much effort, won through to the finals in both singles and doubles. With Coffin as a partner he lost in the doubles, but in the singles defeated J. O. Erwin, last year's winner, in a four-set match.

By her win in the women's singles, Mrs. Ralph Johnston became the permanent possessor of the Ladies' Singles Cup. The summaries:

Washington State Championships

The twenty-fourth annual tournament for the championship of the State of Washington, held on the grounds of the Seattle Tennis Club, beginning August 10, was marked by the largest entry list in its history, 98 in men's singles, 12 in women's singles, 54 teams in men's doubles, 28 in women's doubles, 45 in mixed doubles and 25 entries in junior singles, and also by the large number of long and hard fought matches.

The final round of singles brought together H. V. D. Johns and H. C. Breck, two Californians. The former played the same careful and steady game that he had shown throughout the tournament, and this resulted in a straight set defeat of his more brilliant but less steady opponent.

In the doubles, Breck and Johns defeated S. L. Russell and R. W. Fulton, but it was a much closer and more exciting match than was expected, being easily the most interesting match of the week. Russell and Fulton started out by taking the first set, 6/3, but Breck and Johns came back strong and won the next set, 6/2. The third set took twenty-six games to decide, the Californians finally winning, 14/12. Not discouraged in the least, Russell and Fulton came back and took the fourth set, 6/4. Breck and Johns then won the fifth and deciding set, 6/4, by their superior team work.

In the women's singles Miss Livingstone of Seattle, who had already won the Oregon State and Pacific Northwest championships, was fortunate in the draw and went through easily, her hardest match being with Mrs. Northrup of Portland. In the doubles, Mrs. Bragdon and Miss Miller, who won last year, were again triumphant in straight sets, losing only fifteen games in five matches, and having only one close match, the semi-final with Miss Fording and Mrs. Northrup of Portland, which they won 6/3, 7/5. In the mixed doubles, Miss Livingstone and Kelleher defeated Mrs. Lyell and Cardinall in the final round. The summaries:

Massachusetts State Championship

Nat W. Niles again won the Massachusetts championship in the annual tournament held on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, beginning June 11. R. C. Seaver, the former champion, defeated J. J. Armstrong in the final round of the tournament, 6/4, 3/6, 6/0, 3/6, 6/4. In the challenge round Niles triumphed over Seaver in three straight sets, 6/4, 6/1, 6/2.

From a not particularly large but distinctly good draw, Seaver, E. H. Whitney, captain of the 1913-14 Harvard team; J. J. Armstrong of St. Paul, one of its members, and A. S. Pier of the Longwood C. C., emerged as semi-finalists. Pier had several close calls on the way up, playing an exceedingly long match with D. S. Niles in the third round, and losing the second set at love in the fourth round against Lawrence Curtis, one of the substitutes of the Harvard team.

An intensely conservative game was that between Seaver and Whitney in the semi-finals. Both men played from the back court, taking few chances at the net, and in those few cases faring ill. Seaver was a little the more accurate and the more aggressive, enough so to turn the trick. In the first set he ran to a 3/1 lead, only to be caught up with and passed. With Whitney leading at 4/3, Seaver pulled up and added three straight to his pile. In the second set all Whitney could annex was the fourth game, the final score being returned as 6/4, 6/1.

The surrender of experience to youth was not realized in the final, from which Seaver came forth as tournament winner and Niles' challenger. It was endurance largely that told the difference between Seaver and Armstrong in a five-set battle which lasted over three hours. In every set Armstrong outplaced Seaver, but his error column was never small. Seaver had the requisite material for each crisis and showed that his 1914 form was as good as that of a few years ago.

That Niles had learned to solve his old master's game was demonstrated beyond doubt in the challenge round. After he had settled down the champion won as he pleased, passing Seaver every time he tried to take the net, and outplaying him in driving, when both were back. Niles served in most effective fashion, enabling him to take the offensive with little opposition. The summaries:

Massachusetts State Doubles

Nat W. Niles and W. M. Washburn became Massachusetts State doubles champions in the tournament held on the courts of the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, on May 31. They defeated H. C. Johnson and E. H. Whitney, former champions, in one of the longest and most stubbornly contested battles in the history of the competition, 6/1, 4/6, 7/5, 2/6, 6/4.

Whitney started poorly, but improved after the first set, which he and Johnson lost, largely due to Washburn's fine play. The second was bitterly fought, finally going to Johnson and Whitney. They fought hard for the odd one, but were nosed out, 7/5. Again the champions came from behind and won the fourth set at 6/2. The last was touch and go up to the final game, in which Johnson made fatal errors. The summaries:

Kentucky State Championships

By GEORGE BIGGERS, LOUISVILLE, KY.

The fourth annual Kentucky State championship tennis tournament was held on the courts of the Audubon Country Club, Louisville, starting September 1, and it was one of the most successful competitions, in every way, ever conducted in the State. The entry list was unusually large. It was the first time the tournament had ever been held in Louisville, the metropolis of Kentucky, hence it was given more publicity and the results reached more tennis enthusiasts throughout the State than usual. Previously, Estill

Springs had a monopoly on this event. The tournament was brought to a close on September 7, after one week of continuous play and perfect weather. On the last day, Shelton Arterburn won the championship from Harry Grinstead, a promising young player who had been recognized the year before as the best that the State had produced. Arterburn is no youngster on the courts in Louisville, having participated in many tournaments and has been within a reaching distance of several championships, only to fall down at the crucial moment. He won the Kentucky title from Grinstead after five hard fought sets, the scores being, 6/4, 4/6, 5/7, 6/2, 6/4. Grinstead was way off the form he displayed the previous year. He made 145 errors, 36 placements, and was guilty of six double faults. Arterburn played a consistent game, and his cannon ball shots, placed accurately, chased Grinstead until a defeat was a happy relief from the grind. Grinstead had been out of form all season. In the Falls Cities tournament, held earlier in the summer, Grinstead was defeated by Jimmy Means, a fairly good player, who was noted for his ability to play good tennis and his inability to defeat anyone. Arterburn's victory was a popular one, for he had been the runner-up so often that the tennis fans wanted to see him gain a title. With his brother, Lovington, Shelton held the State doubles championship several years ago. Shelton Arterburn and Kenneth Bixby defeated Harry Grinstead and Sid Appel in the men's doubles, the scores being, 3/6, 6/4, 6/0, 6-8, 6/2. Miss Mary Shreve Lyons and Harry Grinstead won the mixed doubles title from Miss Mary Mason and Shelton Arterburn, 6/2, 6/4, 5/7, 6/4. Miss Madelle Lyons won the women's singles honors from her sister, Miss Mary Shreve Lyons, by default.

Illinois State Championships

The biggest field that ever participated in any tennis contest in the West has entered in the Illinois State tournament, which began on the courts of the Wanderers' Club, Chicago, July 11. The programme showed that there were 132 men and 24 women entered, exceeding the entries of 1913 by over fifty. Playing conditions were perfect, and all the twenty-five grass courts were in use. The greensward resembled velvet, and the ground under it was as hard as cement. In the singles, Alex Squair annexed the championship by defeating Ralph Burdick in the final round in a long five-set match, and in the doubles, W. T. Hayes and J. H. Winston defeated Weber and Green in the final round in three straight sets. Mrs. C. N. Beard won the women's singles, defeating Miss Mary K. Voorheis in the final round, and in the doubles, Miss Steever and Mrs. Beard defeated Miss Neely and Mrs. Brewer in the final round. W. T. Hayes, who needed only one victory to gain permanent possession of the trophy, was defeated in his semi-final match with Ralph Burdick. The first two sets went to Burdick and he led the next all but one point, when Hayes rallied and took the game, evening the set and finally winning, 7-5. In the next set Burdick never got a game. The latter, however, came back strong and won the final set and match. When the final round between Squair and Burdick was called a large gallery lined the sides of the court, which the players declared was in excellent condition. Squair started off by taking the first set, his well placed in court shots keeping his opponent guessing. Both players served well, and Burdick's back court work was especially brilliant. The next set went to Burdick. Although Squair played the better tennis he was unable to handle the balls that were volleyed at him from the back court by his opponent. Both players were after the points in the next set and played a careful game, making every shot tell. Nearly every game in this set went to deuce, with Squair winning. Burdick evened up the match by taking the next set in whirlwind fashion, having abandoned his slow but sure tactics and relying on taking his opponent with a rush, which he did. With the match all even and one set to play, the two men settled down to the slow, careful game again. Squair proved himself the better at this style and soon had Burdick, 5/1. He dropped the next game. The deciding game was a long drawn out affair, which finally went to Squair, giving him the set and match. In the men's doubles both Hayes and Winston and Weber and Green played good tennis from the start. The first set was the most stubbornly fought match that had been played during the entire tournament, and it was necessary to complete twenty-six games before the result was decided in favor of Weber and Green. Every man played the best tennis that he knew. The back court work of both sides was perfect, and when they volleyed the ball to each other at the net the spectators were breathless as to the outcome. The summaries:

Virginia State Championships

In one of the most successful State championship tournaments ever held at Norfolk, Va., Neil Stevens of New York won the Virginia title, thus obtaining his first leg on the challenge cup which has been in competition for fourteen years. He defeated Nat Thornton in the final round and then challenged Nat Bundy, the 1912 and 1913 title holder, and conquered him in a hard five-set match. In the fourth set of the final round Thornton sprained his ankle and defaulted the fifth set.

The tournament was held on the courts of the Norfolk Country Club from June 8 to 13, and the entry list was unusually classy. In addition to Stevens the out-of-town players included Irving Wright of Boston, Nat Thornton of Murry Cross, Ala., and McKee Dunn of Richmond. The summaries:

New Hampshire State Championships

For the second successive year, James Nowell of Boston, Mass., won the White Mountains and New Hampshire State championship in singles, defeating King Smith, winner of the tournament, in the challenge round, on the courts of the Crawford House Tennis Club, Crawford Notch, N. H., beginning July 30. In the doubles, Nowell and C. B. Wilbar were defeated by Smith and Dr. P. B. Hawk in straight sets.

Thirty entries from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Lowell made an auspicious list of contenders. The play as a whole, however, was not up to the high average of 1911 and 1912, still the semi-finals in singles found four good men on hand. In the final between Smith and L. H. Martin, the former dropped the second set, but thereafter won as he liked. In the challenge round Smith showed his best form in the second set, which he won, but from the middle of the third set to the end he was completely outplayed.

The doubles did not furnish any unusual tennis until the final round, which was limited to three sets. Smith and Hawk started off like a whirlwind, taking the first set, 6/2. Changing courts, the winners went absolutely to piece even as Nowell and Wilbar seemed to find themselves. The result was a 6/1 win for the Boston team. The third set was for blood, and though Hawk and Smith came through at 6/3, the fight was much closer than the score indicates. The summaries:

Pennsylvania State Championships

Richard Norris Williams, 2d, won the singles in the Pennsylvania State championship tournament, held on the courts of the Meriou Cricket Club of Philadelphia during the week beginning June 15. The doubles went to Wallace F. Johnson and Alexander D. Thayer.

The big surprise of the tournament was the victory of S. W. Pearson over W. F. Johnson, the winner in 1913, and whose three consecutive successes gave him the old cup outright.

Williams' opponent in the final round was William T. Tilden, Jr., who was defeated, 6/4, 6/0, 3/6, 6/2.

Play in the doubles was not so interesting as in the singles matches. When Johnson and Thayer defeated Williams and Carpenter in the third round of play the State champions disposed of the most likely aspirants for the cup. Their opponents in the finals were P. B. Hawk and Robert H. Hervey, but the latter were defeated in straight sets. The summaries:

Rhode Island State Championships

The tournament for the championship of Rhode Island, held on the courts of the Agawam Hunt, East Providence, R. I., beginning August 1, was featured by the playing of Elia Fottrell of California, who secured one leg on the beautiful championship bowl for the winner of the singles.

In the semi-finals Fottrell defeated Whitney, last year's champion, quite easily, and in the other half H. A. Mackinney and Russell N. Dana had a battle royal. With the set 2-all and the games in the fifth set 8/8 the two probably set a precedent. Because of the intense heat and the fact that both players were nearly exhausted by their efforts, it was agreed to turn a racket to decide who should play Fottrell for the championship. Mackinney called "rough" and lost. In the doubles Jones and Henshaw, who have been winning the title for years, again were returned the victors. The summaries:

Texas State Championships

The twentieth tournament for the championship of Texas, held on the courts of the Texarkana (Ark.) Tennis Club during the week of June 22, produced new champions in both singles and doubles. Semp Russ of San Antonio, Tex., supplanted Harvey MacQuiston in the singles, and J. B. Adoue, Jr., and J. H. Shelton of Dallas dethroned the men who defeated them in 1913, the MacQuiston brothers.

The final match was a contest between Russ, an experienced general, and Adoue, who had improved greatly in the past year. Russ finally broke up Adoue's driving game by continually forcing his far backhand and taking the net, where his volleys were safe and sure.

Sixteen teams were entered in the doubles event, which was won by Adoue and Shelton with the loss of but one set. Their play was far superior to that of all their opponents and they had a wide margin in every match. The summaries:

New Mexico State Championships

The first annual tournament for the championship of New Mexico was held on the courts of the Roswell Tennis Association, October 20 to 23. Unfortunately the weather was unfavorable on account of rain, and the attendance was thereby affected, but the courts were kept in good condition, and the playing as a rule was excellent. N. A. Ferguson of El Paso, proved himself to be the class of the tournament. He played fifty-five games in the singles and lost only one. In the final round he defeated Major E. P. Spencer.

In the doubles the closest match was that between Simpson and Harlow and Lynch and Browning in the first round, the latter winning by 9/7, 3/6, 6/2. Baker and Herring came through the lower frame rather easily, but were defeated for the title by Ferguson and Jette. The summaries:

Wyoming State Championships

Without the loss of a set, Dr. Herbert T. Harris won the singles championship, and Dr. Chester Harris and Julian Snow the doubles title of Wyoming, in the tournament held on the courts of the Basin Tennis Club of Basin, Wyo., during the week of July 26.

While the entry list was smaller than usual—twenty-four in the singles and twelve teams in the doubles—it was regarded as the most successful tournament ever held in the State. Fine weather prevailed, and the hard courts were in excellent condition.

The final round of singles brought together Dr. H. T. Harris and Julian Snow, the former winning an interesting match, 6/1, 6/3, 6/4. In the doubles, Dr. Chester Harris and Julian Snow won the championship in a hard fought match from William C. Snow, former State champion, and Dr. Harris, 6/4, 3/6, 7/5, 4/6, 8/6.

Colorado State Championships

Brooke Townsend won the championship of Colorado at the tournament held on the courts of the Denver Country Club, beginning September 1. It was his second successive victory for the title and the Walsh challenge trophy. He defeated Don Harker in the final round, chiefly because of his greater steadiness and endurance, coupled with the ability to speed a bit in the pinches.

John Morey and Bill Graham, two of Colorado's veteran stars, captured the doubles in the final match with Eugene and Tyson Dines. By their victory, Morey and Graham became permanent possessors of the Country Club challenge cups. The summaries:

Oklahoma State Championships

The eighth annual tournament for the championship of Oklahoma was held in Oklahoma City, August 10 to 14 inclusive, under the auspices of the Oklahoma City Golf and Country Club. The four cement courts, dark green in color, used for the first time by many of the players, proved very satisfactory, and the majority of those present favored making Oklahoma City the permanent meeting place for the state tournament.

The tournament was efficiently handled by Referee A. U. Thomas of McAlester. On the evening of August 11 the annual meeting of the State Lawn Tennis Association was held, the following officers being elected: President, A. U. Thomas, McAlester; Vice-President, Charles T. Speice, Kingfisher; Secretary-Treasurer, Charles K. Boardman, Oklahoma City; Executive Committee, the above officers and A. B. Walker, Fairview, and T. L. Bouscaren, Tulsa.

Roland M. Hoerr of St. Louis, again carried off the honors, defeating Charles T. Speice of Kingfisher, in the final of the singles. This gives Hoerr a second leg on the handsome Spalding trophy, upon which the following names have been inscribed: John T. Bailey, Albion, Okla., 1910; Charles T. Speice, Kingfisher, Okla., 1911; John T. Bailey, Albion, Okla., 1912; Roland M. Hoerr, St. Louis, Mo., 1913; Roland M. Hoerr, St. Louis, Mo., 1914.

Hoerr's play throughout was strong and steady and he always seemed to have plenty of reserve force. He lost but one set to Paul Darrough of Hugo, Okla., who was runner-up in the 1913 tournament.

W. A. Horrell of Pasadena, Cal., played an excellent game, his match in the semi-finals against the local champion, Charles T. Speice of Kingfisher, being one of the features of the tournament. Other notable matches were between Horrell and Richardson of Oklahoma City, Monnett of Norman and Brown of Anadarko, McNeill and Wooten both of Chickasha, Walker of Fairview and Davis of McAlester, Cook of Pawhuska and Williams of Oklahoma City, and Frank Staley of Fairview and Richardson.

Hoerr and Horrell carried away the title of State champions in doubles, defeating Charles T. Speice and R. E. Conger, the 1913 title holders, in the finals. The consolation singles was won by the interscholastic champion, C. C. Parsons of Oklahoma City, and teamed with Prosper of Oklahoma City, also won the consolation doubles. The summaries:

West Virginia State Championships

By R. A. JOHNSON, PARKERSBURG, W. VA.

In spite of the heavy rain which held up play for fully a day and a half, the ninth annual invitation tennis tournament, which began on Monday, August 10, and continued through the week, was one of the most attractive and brilliant events ever held on the beautiful grounds of the Parkersburg Country Club. "Tennis Week" proved to be one continuous round of gaiety for the players and friends. The large park dance on Monday evening, followed by the annual stag banquet and informal dance on Tuesday, and the brilliant club dance on Wednesday were the social features of the week, while many informal parties served to keep this jolly crowd of tennis enthusiasts busy every minute. The meet was marked by sterling tennis of the highest class. Again Parkersburg was successful in carrying off the championship in singles by the heady and consistent play of R. A. Johnson, who won his way through the singles by the cleverest kind of racket work. The doubles championship was taken by Hugus and Beattie of Wheeling, after a brilliant five-set match with R. A. Johnson and Benton Beatty of Parkersburg, who were last year's holders of the title. It looked as if Parkersburg would also take this event as Johnson and Beatty won the first two sets with comparative ease, but at this point in the contest the Wheeling players again struck their gait and came back strong for the last three sets and match. Minnesota State Championships

By FREDERICK U. DAVIS, FARIBAULT, MINN.

The thirteenth annual tournament of the Minnesota State Lawn Tennis Association for the championship of the State was held on the clay courts of the Tatepaba Country Club, Faribault, beginning Saturday, August 1, and continuing through the following week. J. J. Armstrong, the 1913 champion, did not play in the tournament, and it was generally expected that the 1914 title would go to either John Adams or Selforde Stellwagen. However, F. R. Albright of St. Paul, by brilliant and consistent work, played successfully through the tournament, defeating Adams in the semi-finals, in a spectacular match, and winning in the final over Stellwagen in straight sets.

In the doubles, Albright and his teammate, J. C. DeCourcy, were defeated in the final by Stellwagen and Trafford Jayne, in the most exciting match of the tournament, by the score 4/6, 6/3, 3/6, 6/3, 6/4.

The special championship singles, open to all men living outside St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, was won by A. P. Hubbell of Mankato, defeating S. W. Kinyon of Owatonna, in the final round.

In the women's events, Miss Marguerite Davis of St. Paul, won the singles championship, defeating Miss Alice Drake in the final. Mrs. Gardner and Miss Roberta Ritchie of Duluth won the doubles over Miss Curtis and Miss Drake.

In the final of the mixed championship doubles, Miss Davis and Mr. Kinyon defeated Mrs. Gardner and Mr. Stellwagen. The summaries:

Nebraska State Championships

The third annual tournament of the Nebraska State Tennis Association for the championship of the State was held on the courts of the Wayne Tennis Club, August 4 to 8. Perfect courts, good weather and the hospitality of the Wayne people all helped to make the tournament a great success, in fact, the best in the history of the association. Hard fought matches were the rule. Sixty players actually took part, although there were seventy-one entries. Harry A. Koch of Omaha, again won the singles event, for the third consecutive year, by defeating Frank Garey of Fairmont, in the challenge round, three sets to one. Garey's playing was the feature of the competition, it being his first appearance at any of the tournaments of the association. Davis and Ellis of Beaver City, won the doubles championship through superior team work and the sensational work of Ellis at the net. They defeated McKillip and Rankin three sets to one in the challenge round. One of the most noteworthy matches in doubles was that between McKillip and Rankin and Stiehm, the University of Nebraska coach, and Morgan. The first set went 15/13, and lasted over two hours. After this set McKillip and Rankin ran away with the other two. Ellis of Beaver City, won the consolation singles, and Madden and R. Powell of Omaha, the consolation doubles. The summaries:

California State Championships

By CARL R. GARDNER.

For the third successive year the State tournament was held on the three asphalt courts of the Claremont Country Club, Oakland, but took place at a later date than ever before, starting October 24. In the men's events new champions came into vogue. John Strachan, who has played second fiddle to "Billy" Johnston for several years, severely trounced his rival in the fourth round. Johnston's condition was none too good, and after putting a world of "pep" into the first four or five games and leading at 4/1, the pace told and he crumpled under the heavy driving of Strachan. The latter ran ten successive games and eventually won at 6/4, 6/2. His play in this tournament was an improvement on anything he has ever shown, and he handled Griffin, in the semi-final, and Bowie Detrick, in the final, about as he pleased, taking the championship without the loss of a set.

Detrick's work was most commendable, his defeats of Roberts and Batkin, en route to the final, being better than any previous accomplishment. He was completely at the mercy of Strachan in the final, however, and could make no headway in any department, as the score of 6/1, 6/1, 6/3 would suggest.

Strachan and Johnston took the doubles, lolling through to the final, where they dropped a set to Roberts and Batkin. They seemed a bit too certain of victory, and, after taking the first set at love, relaxed and were defeated, 6/4, in the second. After that Roberts and Batkin played high class tennis and nearly won the third set, which finally went against them, 7/5. The fourth set and match was won by Strachan and Johnston, 6/3.

Mrs. Wood (nee Sarita Van Vliet), for the third time, won the women's title, encountering strenuous opposition from Miss Helen Baker, whom she defeated in the semi-final round. Consistency told, however, as it did in the final, when she defeated Mrs. Niemeyer, 9/7, 6/2. Mrs. Niemeyer is pretty long on consistency herself, but Mrs. Wood is the originator of the term—its very personification—and she would not be denied a victory.

As usual, the handicap doubles was won by Nelson Welburn and one of his several partners—Faulkner. Handicaps are Welburn's legitimate prey. Miss Herron took the women's handicap singles, defeating Mrs. Kullman, in the final. The summaries:

New Jersey State Championships

The tournament for the championship of New Jersey, held on the courts of the Englewood Field Club during the week of June 8, attracted an unusually large number of entries, including many of the leading players of the metropolitan district.

G. Carlton Shafer, by defeating S. H. Voshell in the final round, annexed the singles, and, paired with Wylie C. Grant, also won the doubles. In his match with Voshell, Shafer was at the top of his game. His opponent did not have enough opposition in his matches, and had not worked up the combination of severity and steadiness that would have been necessary to win from Shafer.

The doubles provided some exciting matches. The final could not be finished on June 13, though Shafer was playing strong. When the match was finally played off some days later in a drizzle, Grant and Shafer won in four stubborn sets, after having lost the first, 7/9. Baggs and Voshell were within a point of taking the third also when an unexpected pick-up from Grant's feet sailed between them. The summaries:

Pennsylvania and Eastern States Women's Championships

Mrs. Edward Raymond of New York, carried off the premier honors in the Pennsylvania and Eastern States championship for women on the turf court of the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, Pa., beginning June 1. Duplicating her form of 1910 and 1911, Mrs. Raymond won three titles—singles, double and mixed doubles.

In the singles Mrs. Raymond found a worthy opponent in Miss Marion Fenno of Boston, who won the first set and forced the second to a 9-7 score. In the doubles, Mrs. Raymond's partner was Miss Edna Wildey of Plainfield, N. J., and the pair won rather easily from Miss Fenno and Miss Eleanor Sears. In the mixed doubles Mrs. Raymond and W. T. Tilden, Jr., were forced to three sets by Miss Sears and former champion W. A. Larned.

The weather was hot, although otherwise all that could be desired, play being interrupted only once by rain. The summaries:

Bay Counties Championships

BY CARL R. GARDNER, SAN FRANCISCO.

The eleventh annual Bay Counties championship, held, as usual, on the courts at Golden Gate Park, under the management of James A. Code (or the Golden Gate Park Tennis Club) was brought to a successful close, at least, so far as the doubles were concerned, in October. The singles progressed to the final round, John Strachan and R. Lindley Murray being the last two combatants. This match was started on October 24, but in the second set Murray sustained a badly twisted instep. He tried to go on, and even played out the set, but in the third game of the third set he had to withdraw. Strachan was leading, 7/5, 6/2, 2/0, but when the match is resumed the coming season Strachan will be credited with only the first set. Both Strachan and Murray reached the final round without serious opposition, although Strachan dropped a set to Ray Greenberg in the semi-finals. Of the two finalists, Strachan played in better form, Murray being on hard courts for the first time in several months. William M. Johnston and Strachan won the doubles rather easily, in spite of the fact that they lost a set to Johns and Roberts in the semi-final round. This was due largely to overconfidence and a disinclination to take matters seriously. The youngsters, Johns and Roberts, played well and deserve credit for taking the only set lost by the winners of the tournament. Griffin and Batkin met Johnston and Strachan in the final round and put up a good fight in the second set. They were defeated, 6/3, 9/7, 6/2. The summaries:

Central New York Championships

The Central New York championships reached the high water mark of success in the tournament held on the courts of the Yahnundasis Golf Club, Utica, N. Y., beginning July 13. S. Howard Voshell came through the tournament after a thrilling five-set match with E. H. Whitney of Boston, in the final, and as Fred H. Harris did not defend, he became champion of Central New York. In the doubles Voshell and F. C. Baggs had an easy path to the final round, where they defeated Herbert Hahn and E. R. McCormick, the young Pacific Coast players, in a close four-set match. Eastern New York Championships

For the second successive year S. Howard Voshell won the Eastern championship of New York State, in singles, on the dirt courts of the County Tennis Club of Westchester, at Hartsdale, beginning May 30. The final round between Voshell and R. L. Baggs was disappointing. It was thought that Baggs, after his fine five-set match against Shafer in the New York T. C. finals, would at least make a hard fight. But after losing the first set at 6/4 he went to pieces and appeared to be listless and outplayed. F. B. Alexander and A. Bassford, Jr., won the doubles. In the final round against Voshell and Baggs, Alexander dominated the match, and although Baggs and Voshell attempted to keep him out of the play, he would often cross over on Bassford's side to make the kill. Voshell's service was always difficult to handle. The summaries:

Pacific Northwest Championships

The Pacific Northwest championship titles, which have been held by practically all of the great California players, were again won last season by a contingent from that State, Van Dyke Johns, of San Francisco, taking the singles, and, with Henry Breck, of the same city, also captured the doubles. Miss Sara Livingstone, of Seattle, who played a more brilliant game than in 1913, when she won the coveted singles honors, was successful in annexing the title again, and also won the doubles, with Miss Annie Greene, of Seattle, as a partner. Not content with these two victories, Miss Livingstone added a third in garnering the mixed doubles, with Brandt Wickersham, of Portland, Ore., as a partner. The tournament, as usual, was played on the courts of the Tacoma (Wash.) Lawn Tennis Club, from August 3 to 8. The absence of many noted players made the matches better balanced, unlike former years, when foreign celebrities romped away from the local entrants. The final round of the singles between Johns and Breck was the feature of the week. Breck looked like a sure winner for the first two sets, which he won, 6/2, 6/3. Johns, however, retaliated, the next two sets going to his credit, 6/0, 6/1. The deciding set brought out the finest tennis of the tournament. Johns finally winning the set, match and championship. The final round in the men's doubles attracted much attention. Johns and Breck were opposed to Pierre Denton and James Lyons, both of Tacoma. The latter proved no match for the San Francisco team, and were defeated in straight sets, 6/2, 6/2, 8/6. Miss Livingstone met Mrs. W. J. Northrup, of Portland, in the final round of the women's singles, and the former won the championship another year, 6/3, 6/3. In the doubles, Miss Stella Fording and Mrs. Northrup were the opponents of Miss Livingstone and Miss Greene, but the latter were the stars of the match and won, 6/1, 8/6. In the mixed doubles, Miss Livingstone and Brandt Wickersham defeated Mrs. Northrup and W. J. Andrews in straight sets, 6/1, 6/2. The Chester Thorne trophy and the Pan-American cup, which are now held by Johns, have been frequently contended for. The Thorne prize will become the permanent property of the player winning it three successive years. The Pan-American cup is to be awarded in 1915, according to the highest score. It was offered by John Barrett, former commissioner of the Canal Zone, 1915 being set for the final awarding of the trophy, to be in conjunction with the San Francisco Exposition.

(1) UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS TEAM—1, J. Thomas, Mgr.; 2, S. Thomas; 3, Stacy, Capt.; 4, Broad; 5, Buddy. (2) UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO TEAM, Rocky Mountain Conference doubles champions—1, Matt Axelrood; 2, Richard Scott. (3) OTTERBEIN UNIVERSITY TEAM, Westerville, O.—1, Ross; 2, Sechrist; 3, Bandeen; 4, Converse, Capt.; 5, Gifford; 6, Zuerner.

Central States Championships

Roland M. Hoerr became the new Central States champion in the seventh annual tournament, held on the courts of the St. Louis Amateur Athletic Association, beginning June 27. He defeated C. Drummond Jones, winner of the title in 1912 and 1913, in the semi-final round, 6/2, 6/2, 6/1, and in the final round won from Van Rippert, 6/3, 6/3, 6/0. In the doubles, Hoerr and Jones gained permanent possession of the challenge cup through their third win of the title.

Western Pennsylvania Championships

In connection with the annual tournament of the Altoona Cricket Club, held on the club's courts at Altoona, Pa., August 25 to 28, the doubles championship of Western Pennsylvania was decided. H. J. and J. H. Rendall successfully defended their title in the challenge round by defeating N. W. Swayne of George School, Pa., and Joseph Replogle in straight sets. In the club's tournament Swayne was the victor in the final round over R. L. Thompson. The summaries:

Central West Women's Championship

BY JOHN TEN BROECK.

The week following the Greater Kansas City championship, the Ivanhoe Club of Kansas City staged a classy event in the Central West women's championship. Although Miss Rees, 1913 champion, did not appear to defend her title, the entries of the Misses Prendergast, LeBeaume and Geresche, from St. Louis, and Miss Voorheis of Chicago, secured the necessary interest in the tourney and put the local talent on their mettle to defend their city from the invaders. Upon the shoulders of Miss Marjorie Hires and Mrs. W. W. Yager fell the burden of defense and they stood to their guns in true military style. Miss Hires defeated Miss Prendergast and Mrs. Yager won from Miss Voorheis in the semi-finals, and the final match between Mrs. Yager and Miss Hires brought out some of the finest tennis ever seen in the Missouri Valley. Miss Hires finally winning in three sets. The summaries:

In the semi-final round Barker defeated T. C. Bundy, who showed the effect of a lay-off of nearly a year. Baggs disposed of Dr. William Rosenbaum in a hard fought match and after losing the first set. In the final round Anderson was successful after five gruelling sets.

Manhattan Doubles and Open Singles

The Manhattan Doubles and Open Singles comprised the programme of the annual open tournament of the New York Lawn Tennis Club during the week of May 23.

G. Carlton Shafer of New York, who was runner-up in 1913, took the singles honors. S. H. Voshell, the 1913 winner, being defeated by Louis Graves before the semi-finals were reached. Ralph Baggs was Shafer's opponent in the final round, and before Shafer was returned the winner the full five sets were played.

Several things combined to deprive the Manhattan Doubles competition of its usual interest. King Smith and Shafer retained the title almost without a struggle. Baggs and Voshell had entered, but passed up the opportunity of getting revenge for last year, and defaulted. Wylie Grant and Julio Steinacher reached the finals after defeating Lovibond and Rosenbaum with the loss of a set and then almost losing to Fitzpatrick and Henderson. Against Shafer and Smith they made no headway. The summaries:

Old Dominion Tournament

The Hermitage Challenge Cup, emblematic of the Old Dominion Championship, and which has been in competition since 1906, was won for the second time by Theodore Roosevelt Pell, at the tournament held at the Country Club of Virginia, Richmond, beginning June 1. After playing through the tournament Pell successfully challenged Nat Thornton, last year's winner. Paired with Wylie C. Grant, also of New York, Pell won the doubles honor, too, the pair thus obtaining permanent possession of the cup.

Miss Marie Wagner of New York carried off the honors in the women's singles, successfully challenging Mrs. Willard Sullivan of Richmond, Va. The latter was triumphant in the doubles, being paired with Miss C. B. Neely of Chicago. In the mixed doubles, Miss Clare Cassel of New York and Beals C. Wright were the victors.

A record set was played in the second round of the singles, James Tyler defeating O. C. Shaner, 6/1, 22/20. The summaries:

Philadelphia and District Championships

Richard Norris Williams, 2nd, won the singles and E. and J. Thayer the doubles, in the twenty-first annual tournament for the championship of Philadelphia and District, on the turf courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, during the week of June 22.

Williams paired with J. R. Carpenter, Jr., in the doubles, advanced as far as the semi-final round, where they lost to Wistar and Pearson. The biggest upset in the event was the defeat of Wallace F. Johnson and Alexander Thayer by the Thayer brothers, Edmund and Joseph, in the semi-finals. This brought the latter pair in the finals against Wistar and Pearson, and in a five set match the Thayers won. The summaries:

Chevy Chase Tournament

Wallace F. Johnson annexed the singles championship and T. R. Peil and C. M. Bull, Jr., the doubles title, in the seventh annual invitation tournament of the Chevy Chase Club, held on the club courts, just outside of Washington, D. C. Miss I. E. Pendleton captured the women's singles, and Mrs. W. Sullivan and Miss Meredith of Richmond, Va., the doubles. The mixed doubles honors were taken by Mrs. Sullivan and W. F. Johnson.

The final round of the men's singles between Johnson and Peil was by far the best of the tournament, going the full limit of five sets. Johnson had everything, and, when necessary, rushed Peil off his feet. The conditions favored the New Yorker, for he was used to dirt and Johnson had just come off of grass. The challenge round between Johnson and C. M. Bull lasted only three sets, being won by the former, but the play was exceedingly close throughout, and both men were in rare form. The summaries:

CHALLENGE ROUND—Mrs. Sullivan and Johnson d. Miss Baker and Doyle, 8/6, 6/2.

Hot Springs (Va.) Tournament

Fred C. Inman, of New York City, got his second leg on the challenge cup in the third annual open tournament of the Hot Springs Tennis Club, Hot Springs, Va., beginning October 12. The cup was not defended by Wallace F. Johnson, last year's winner, and in the final round of the tournament Inman defeated John A. Allen, the old Yale player, in a hard fought five-set match. The final round of the doubles went by default to Inman and Edgar Scott, partly owing to rain and the enforced departure of Morris L. Johnston.

There was a good entry list in each of the events and although the rain, which prevailed the greater part of the week, was a severe handicap, the play was almost uniformly good. The summaries:

Halsey Wood, the present captain of the New York Tennis Club, defeating W. C. deMille, the 1912 and 1913 champion, in straight sets. The former champions in doubles, W. C. deMille and William J. Clarke of the West Side Tennis Club were also eliminated in the second round by Von Steenberg and Rockwood of Williams College, the winners of this event, after apparently having the match well in hand when the first day's play was stopped by rain. Dayton Open Tournament

Clarence J. Griffin, after coming through the tournament of the Dayton Country Club of Dayton, Ohio, beginning July 18, defeated Clifford Lockhorn in the challenge round in a four-set match. Paired with Horrell he also won the doubles. Miss Lyons won the final round of the women's singles, but was defeated in the challenge round by Miss Marjorie Dodd. In the women's doubles, Miss Dodd and Miss Lyons were easily triumphant.

The tournament was entirely successful, thanks to the able manner in which it was conducted by the Country Club, of which G. S. Blanchard and E. C. Reynolds, two prominent business men of Dayton, are the leaders. The game has taken a strong hold in Dayton, and it is not believed that Messrs. Blanchard and Reynolds will be contented to rest with the success of local tournaments, but will make strenuous efforts to hold a national competition in the near future. The summaries:

Hamilton County Tournament

The second annual tournament for the championship of Hamilton County was held at the Norwood Tennis Club, August 29 to Sept. 7. This event, which is sanctioned by the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association, is intended primarily to promote local interest in the sport and develop the younger players. It was quite successful in these respects, 72 players entering in the men's singles, many of whom were making their first appearance in tournament play. New champions were crowned in both singles events, as T. O. Dunlap and Miss Ruth Sanders, the 1913 winners, did not play through this year.

In the men's singles, Dan Kiefer, Jr., an eighteen-year old lad won out, after defeating in handy style a number of older and more experienced players. In the final round he was opposed to C. M. Sherwood, an old Cornell player, but won without much trouble, taking three out of four sets. Kiefer is looked upon as a comer.

In the women's singles, Dr. Helen Ratterman won, defeating Miss Lillian Werk in the final round, in an interesting match. Dr. Ratterman, paired with Miss Helen McLaughlin, was also successful in the women's doubles, winning from the Misses Lee and Gessing.

The men's doubles resulted in a victory for Furste and Zimmerman of the Norwood Club, who defeated Allgaier and Kiefer. The summaries:

Ohio Lawn Tennis League

The Saturday Afternoon Tennis League, composed of clubs in and around Cincinnati, had a most successful season in 1914. The Westwood Club again won the championship, but the race was close, Westwood barely nosing out Cincinnati, winning by the narrow margin of three sets. Cincinnati captured a big majority of the sets actually played, but lost out through defaults. Westwood and Norwood were the only clubs to play out every scheduled match.

The surprise of the year was the showing of the Clifton Club, a newcomer to the league. Clifton finished very strong, mainly through the efforts of Dan Kiefer, Jr., the eighteen-year old lad who won the Hamilton County championship at Norwood. Kiefer is looked upon as one of the most promising players in Cincinnati.

The League will be continued in 1915, with the possible addition of the Evanston Club. The final standing of the 1914 race follows:

	Sets Won.	Sets Lost.	PC.		Sets Won.	Sets Lost.	PC.
Westwood	39	21	.650	Clifton	29	31	.483
Cincinnati	36	24	.600	Wyoming	21	34	.400
Norwood	29	31	.483	Madisonville	23	27	.383

Stockbridge (Mass.) Golf and Tennis Club Tournament.—The annual tournament of the Stockbridge Golf and Tennis Club, beginning August 28, was the most successful ever held by the club. Hoffman Nickerson, formerly of the Harvard 'varsity team, defeated Edwin S. Chase of Springfield, Mass., in the final round of the singles, 8/6, 6/1, 6/4. In the challenge round, however, Nickerson was defeated by W. S. Cushing, the 1913 winner, 6/4, 4/6, 6/2, 6/3. The doubles was won by Chase and C. F. Cutler, who defeated A. Doty and G. S. Keyes of Boston, in the final round, 6/4, 6/0, 7/5. Miss Mollie Johnson of Great Barrington, Vt., won the women's singles, and Mrs. Rice and Mrs. Garrett the doubles. The mixed doubles was taken by Mrs. Rice and W. S. Cushing.

South Jersey Tournament.—Ocean City's distinguished tennis player, Harvey Y. Lake, retained the championship of South Jersey in the tournament held at Ocean City, beginning September 1. Edward Catlett came through the tournament, defeating L. Tremaine in the final round, by default, but in the challenge round Lake emerged the winner, 6/2, 6/0, 6/1, and for the twelfth time secured the South Jersey title. In the doubles Catlett and J. Kerr defeated R. M. Brookfield and L. Tremaine in the final round, 6/1, 6/2, 7/5, and the winners followed up their success in the challenge round by defeating Lake and Landy Brown, 4/6, 6/4, 2/6, 6/4, 9/7. Mrs. M. H. Kerbaugh won the women's singles, defeating Miss J. Sparks in the final round, 6/4, 6/3, and Miss Elizabeth Remington in the challenge round, by default.

Southwestern District Tournament.—As showing the growing enthusiasm for lawn tennis, more than forty entries were received for the Southwestern District tournament, held on the courts of the Dallas Lawn Tennis Club, Dallas, Tex., May 17 to 21. All conditions worked favorably for the success of the tournament. The preliminary matches uncovered nothing worthy of especial comment. In the first round Hogue defeated Adone, the Arkansas State champion, after losing the first set, while in another match, Rye of Dallas was credited with winning the only set of the tournament from Hoerr, who finally became champion and thus gained a second leg on the Elmer Scott Cup. Hoerr's opponent in the final round was Rees, the former winning, 7/5, 6/4, 6/3. The final round of the doubles brought together Hoerr and Horrell against Hogue and Blacklock, the former winning, 4/6, 6/3, 6/3, 9/7.

Lawn Tennis in Kansas City

BY JOHN TEN BROECK.

Probably a very small portion of the tennis playing public realize that at the junction of the Big Muddy and the Kaw there thrives one of the tennis centers of the United States. Fully twenty thousand players, more or less proficient, took part in this sport during the season of 1914. Four tournaments were held, all of them successful in the number of competitors and in point of attendance. In fact, so large were the crowds at the city championships that it was decided to charge admission to the remaining tournaments, which was done. This resulted in making them a financial success, and assures to Kansas City the ability to expend large sums in the future in arranging high class tournaments. There were four open tournaments, three being held by the Kansas City Athletic Club, which at present is the largest organization of its kind devoted to tennis, having four fine clay courts and three grit or gravel courts. The other tourney was held under the auspices of the Ivanhoe Tennis Club on its four fine gravel courts. With the interest manifested in this popular summer game, the season of 1915 will no doubt see the inauguration of an exclusive, high class tennis club in Kansas City. The first tournament held was the Greater Kansas City championships, and although its title represents a local championship it has always been an open tournament. The competition was won this year again by Jack Cannon from a fine field, among whom were Walter Newell, the Missouri Valley interscholastic champion; Dix Teachenor of Kansas University, R. A. Wester, the Missouri University champion, and Kenneth Uhl of the crack Leland-Stanford, Jr., University team. Interest centered in the semi-final match between Cannon and Uhl, which the local champion won, allowing the Californian only two games. With the present growing interest in tennis in Kansas City, even the successful season of 1914 no doubt will be surpassed in 1915, as it is planned to send the local talent into foreign fields for the purpose of bettering their standard of play and securing high class talent for the local tournaments.

Women.

Although two separate committees were selected in 1914 to rank the best ten men and women tennis players in Greater Kansas City, the task was a hard one, as many of the players' records were so even as to cause heated debate. In only one instance was the choice unanimous and that was in the selection of John Cannon as the best player among the men. He was considered as being a full point superior to any other player in Kansas City. The debate was strenuous, however, as to whom should fall the coveted honor of first rank among the women. Of course, the argument was between the respective merits of Mrs. Yager and Miss Hires, but in the final analysis it was decided the former was clearly entitled to be ranked "The best woman player in Kansas City." The rules laid down by the National Lawn Tennis Ranking Committee were followed. Only players participating in two tournaments in Kansas City or vicinity were ranked. Only tournament competition was considered, and late season play was given greater weight than early competition. Among the men, after Cannon was given No. 1, his diminutive partner, Teachenor, was ranked No. 2, although several of the committee thought Wester should rank above the Kansas University champion. Then too, a controversy arose as to whether Newell should not be ranked above Wester, having defeated the Missouri University champion in the city championships early in the season, but as it was the opinion of all that Wester's fight against Hoerr in the Missouri Valley tourney was the best tennis shown by any of the younger talent during the season, he was ranked above the interscholastic champion. The players who showed the greatest improvement last season were Newell, Poteet and Holcomb. Last year Newell was ranked seventh and Poteet was not given enough votes to gain a footing in the first ten, while Holcomb was not even considered. All three of these players should improve the coming season. Among those unranked who were given earnest consideration were Harry Durall, Jimmie Elwell, Otto Dubach, Paul Kygerand and Dr. C. S. Parker. In ranking the women, only those players who participated in the Central Western and Missouri Valley tournament were considered. The records of Miss Hires and Mrs. Yager were nearly equal, Miss Hires having won the Central West, defeating Mrs. Yager in the final round, while Mrs. Yager won the Missouri Valley, a later tournament Miss Hires having lost in the preliminary round. Practically, the same conditions existed between the Misses Sowle and Ewins.

Scranton (Pa.) Championship.—This event, held on the three clay courts of the Scranton Tennis Club, proved such a success that it has been planned to make it an annual competition. Forty-seven players started for the "Paar" Cup. The trophy was won by Roland von Maur, who defeated Robert B. McClave in a five-set match 6/4, 4/6, 6/0, 1/6, 6/2.

Saratoga versus Hoosick Falls.—Teams of the Saratoga Golf Club of Saratoga, N. Y. and of the Hoosick Falls Country Club of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., met on the courts of the Saratoga Golf Club, August 22, with the result that the Saratoga players were victorious by eight matches to one. The only victory by Hoosick Falls was secured by B. Homer Hall, who defeated John P. Wemple, 6/4, 6/2. In the return engagement, however, at Hoosick Falls, September 12, the home team won by five matches to one.

Sippican Tennis Club Tournament.—The annual open tournament of the Sippican Tennis Club of Marion, Mass., beginning September 5, resulted in the success of Nat. W. Niles in the singles and of Niles and A. S. Dabney in the doubles. Niles defeated J. Wheelwright in the final round of the singles, 6/4, 6/1, 6/3, thus securing permanent possession of the Chapman Challenge Cup, and in the final round of the doubles Niles and Dabney defeated H. C. Johnson and H. A. Mackinney, 4/6, 6/4, 7/5, 6/8, 6/4.

Seattle (Wash.) Tennis Club Interscholastic Tournament.—The competition of 1911 was a marked improvement over the affairs of the two previous years, especially in the quality of the tennis shown. Ross Williams repeated his success of 1913 in the singles, and so gained permanent possession, for the Queen Anne High School, of the Treat Cup. Williams' opponent in the final round was Ralph Miller, the former being returned the winner, 7/5, 6/3, 6/2. In the doubles it looked as if Williams and his partner, Leo Lagerstrom, would also win, but Waller and Morimitsu of the West Seattle High School, captured the honors in a five-set match, 3/6, 4/6, 6/3, 6/4, 7/5.

Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Tournament.—University of Colorado representative won both singles and doubles in the 1914 Rocky Mountain intercollegiate tournament played Saturday, May 23, on the City Park courts in Denver. In singles the Colorado men had things all their own way. Matt Axelrood and Richard Scott, the two University of Colorado players, were thrown in different halves of the draw, and both played through the tournament without the loss of a set. In the final round both were physically exhausted from their efforts earlier in the day, and after Axelrood had taken the first set, 9/7, Scott defaulted, relinquishing the title to his teammate. The doubles were more hotly contested. Hammond and Drummond, the Colorado School of Mines team, met Axelrood and Scott in the finals and won the first set, 9/7, by consistent, steady playing. The Colorado men showed marked improvement in the last two sets and won, 6/2, 6/1. Besides the University of Colorado and the School of Mines, University of Denver and Colorado College were represented in the tournament. The University of Utah was also entered, but the team did not arrive in time for the matches.

Lawn Tennis in Milwaukee

BY DR. N. A. GODDARD.

It can truthfully be said that at last lawn tennis has come into its own in Milwaukee. The year 1914 showed tremendous increase both in the number of competitors in tournaments and in pastime playing. The State tournament was held at the Town Club in August, and, as usual, the Chicago contingent won both the singles and doubles events, but doing so by a narrower margin than in years past, due to the excellent showing of some of the younger Milwaukee players. Although the State tournament arouses much enthusiasm among the players in and about Milwaukee, it is not the event that the name implies, inasmuch as few players from other parts of the State participate. This failure of up-State players to enter the State tournament may be due to the fact that Milwaukee is not centrally enough located, but the impression is that they remain out through fear of the prowess of the Chicago players. The proposition has again and again arisen in regard to holding a State tournament for Wisconsin players exclusively, but this arrangement has its drawbacks and the question still remains a debatable one as to the advisability of such a procedure.

The City tournament in 1914 was held at the Blue Mound Club, and although there were fewer entries than in the previous year, an enjoyable time was spent, both by players and the gallery, due to the lavish hospitality of the club and the excellence of the courts. The singles championship was won by R. Hamilton, Milwaukee. No doubles were played.

The new organization, the Milwaukee Tennis Association, held its first series of inter-club matches, which were an unqualified success. The Association is composed of the following clubs, with their representatives: Allis-Chalmers Tennis Club, H. V. Nye; East Side Tennis Club, Dr. N. A. Goddard; Kilbourn Tennis Club, H. O. Kuechenmeister; Washington Park Tennis Club, E. L. Lipman; Cutler-Hammer Tennis Club, L. A. Watson; National Tennis Club, R. B. Roehr; West Side Tennis Club, E. R. Benson; Pirates Tennis Club, R. Hamilton. The total membership is three hundred. This Association has filled a long felt want in furnishing inter-club matches, and has developed an interest in the sport that could not have been aroused in any other way. The Washington Park Club won the singles and doubles championship trophies as well as the club trophy, the National Club being second.

The Washington Park boys have a reason to feel elated. Their team, with two exceptions, is composed of youngsters who have played the game at the most for only three years, and who never had the advantages of being taught by veterans. Bertram L. Thelen and Louis J. Recheygl are the only players on the team whose membership dates back prior to 1911.

Not only in their own tournament have the Park boys shown their mettle, but they have lived up to their reputation as being the gamest and steadiest in other matches. In the State tournament, through the efforts of Recheygl and Lipman, Milwaukee won four out of the eight cups which were given as prizes; Recheygl won three out of the four Milwaukee cups, the other four going to Chicago. It was the first year for a long time that the Chicago players did not win the majority of prizes. The work of Stuckert and Thelen in this tournament should not be passed without comment. Stuckert gave Al. Lindauer of Chicago, a fine battle and had him all but defeated. In doubles, he and Bert Thelen gave Hayes and Lindauer a fine run in a semi-final match. In view of the fact that only one Milwaukee player, Reg. Hamilton, advanced any further in singles and that no team got further than the semi-finals in doubles, the Washington Park boys made a creditable showing.

In the Milwaukee Tennis Association the Washington Park Club finished first. It defeated Kilbourns, 7/0; West Side, 6/1; Allis-Chalmers, 7/0; Pirates, 4/3; Cutler-Hammers, 6/1; Nationals, 5/2, and East Side, 7/0. The Goddard trophy, which is a challenge cup donated by Dr. N. A. Goddard, president of the association, for the player who did not lose a match throughout the entire season, also went to Washington Park. At the end of the season only three players of the seven clubs in the association remained undefeated—Lipman, Stuckert and Thelen—all from the Parks. The Goddard cup was played for by these three and was won by B. L. Thelen, who becomes owner of it for one year. Only four double teams fought their way through without being defeated. They were Lowe and Puls, Lipman and Thelen, Stuckert and Riley, of Washington Park, and Benson and Seefeld of the West Side. In the play-off, Lipman and Thelen of the Washington Park Club, were victorious, thereby winning the doubles championship of the association for 1914.

The National Tennis Club traces its organization from the old Longwood Tennis Club, which had only a single court on private property from 1900 to 1903. The Longwood Club at that time had just four members. The following year the club shifted the scene of its activities from Roehr's residence to its present location, National Avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Avenues, combining with the old Glenwood Club members. Since then the organization has always been known as the National Tennis Club.

In 1904 the club boasted a membership of six. Since that time its membership has constantly grown as the interest in the game of tennis was manifested and developed. In 1908 the membership reached such a number as to warrant the building of two new courts. In that year the National Club took over again the members of the old Courtland Tennis Club. We now enjoy a membership of from twenty to twenty-five men, among them some of the best players in the city, namely, Lowe, E. J. Thelen, O. Puls, Graebner, E. Puls, Reuss and Kleinow.

Inter-club matches with other local independent organizations have been played regularly from year to year, and we have had much success in defeating most of our opponents. In 1914 we were members of the Milwaukee Tennis Association, which comprises the local independent clubs. A schedule was arranged, and matches with all clubs in the association were played. We finished in second place after a strenuous campaign.

This association bids fair to enliven the interest in tennis during 1915, even more so than in 1914, and the National Tennis Club will again be in the field contending for championship honors.

At the end of the season, a banquet was given by the association at the Pfister Hotel, at which the cups were presented. The season of 1915 promises to be the best in tennis that the city has ever enjoyed, and the sport has certainly taken a permanent position as the cleanest and the best of all outdoor athletics.

Junior Championships

First Junior Metropolitan Championships

One of the features of the tennis season of 1914 was the innovation sprung by the West Side Tennis Club in holding the first annual junior metropolitan championship for boys under eighteen years old. The competition was decided on the dirt courts of the club at Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y., during the week of September 14.

Ninety-six future champions responded to the call in singles and twenty-eight pairs in doubles. The boys who showed the greatest promise were Harold Throckmorton of Seward, N. J., the winner; H. W. Forster of New York, the runner-up; Charles Garland of Pittsburgh and C. M. Sneed of Beaumont, Tex.

The player who made the greatest hit in the tournament was C. Donaldson, twelve years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Although hardly higher than the net itself, young Donaldson wielded a 14½ ounce racket like a veteran.

The best match of the tournament was in the semi-final round between Throckmorton and Garland. It was anybody's affair in the first two sets until the superior age and strength of Throckmorton told.

In the doubles Selig and Wolff, both of Long Island, came through without the loss of a set. Their team work gave them the advantage over the individual brilliancy of the others.

A record was established in the running of the tournament in two days and two afternoons of play. The summaries:

Metropolitan Junior Indoor Championships

The first tournament for the Metropolitan Junior Championship, held by the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club, at the armory of the regiment, New York City, December 28 to 31, was entirely successful. The entry list, restricted to boys under eighteen years old, brought out eighty-three in the singles and thirty-two pairs in the doubles.

Herbert L. Bowman of Mount Vernon High School won the singles, defeating L. M. Banks of Adelphi School in the final round, while the doubles was taken by R. S. Goldman and J. W. Wolff of the Ethical Culture School.

At the start of the tournament it was believed that either H. W. Forster, runner-up to Harold Throckmorton in the Metropolitan Junior Championship at Forest Hills, L. I., in the fall, or R. B. Haines would get to the final round in their half, but Banks defeated them both in straight sets. Bowman got to the final in a very easy manner, and then won from Banks after a hard fight.

The doubles did not produce nearly so good tennis as the singles, except that the winners, Goldman and Wolff, played a heady game and teamed splendidly. The summaries:

The matches were under the jurisdiction of the South Parks, and were superintended by Herbert G. Reynolds, who is also connected with the above organizations. Forty-two teams were entered in the singles and twenty-five teams in the doubles. Practically the best match in the morning was between Parmalee and H. Borroughs from Ridge Park, the former winning. Bermuda's Second Annual Championship.—Under unfavorable and very unusual weather conditions the second annual tournament for the championship of Bermuda was brought to a successful conclusion on the cement courts of the Hotel Hamilton on March 9. Many Americans competed, including Henry W. Slocum, A. J. Ostendorf, R. L. Baggs and Howard A. Plummer of New York, among the men, and Miss Marion Cresswell of Philadelphia and Mrs. F. L. Belin of Scranton, Pa. Captain A. Berger had but little trouble in retaining the singles title which he won the previous year. In the challenge round he was opposed by Ostendorf, the tournament winner, who defeated Russell Colgate in the final round by default. Captain Berger won the first two sets from Ostendorf, 6/2, 6/1, but in the third set the latter slipped and had to default the match. Ostendorf had defeated Plummer in the second round in a close and well played match, 7/5, 6/4, and in the semi-final won from R. L. Taken as a whole, the tournament was a disappointment to tennis lovers of the city, and did not come up to the standard of former tournaments. Morgan Park (Ill.) Academy Interscholastic Tournament.—The Morgan Park Academy interscholastic tennis tournament was held on May 1, 2 and 4, and proved to be a strong attraction for the pupils of the different high schools and academies. Entries were sent in from a distance, some of those being Plumbe and Emerson from Interlaken, Vogel from Racine, Calfin from Wheaton, and Reps from Cedar Rapids. The tournament was one of the best provided during the season of 1914 for the high school and academic tennis enthusiasts. There is no question about the supremacy of Arthur Hubbell, who won the singles championship. He was also academy champion in 1913. The doubles honors went to Carver and Tarrent of Hyde Park High School of Chicago. These boys played a consistent game during the season, and not only covered themselves with glory in the above tournament, but also won the City high school doubles championship for 1914. Carver, who also entered in the singles of the Morgan Park tourney, was unfortunate in meeting Hubbell, the winner, in the matches and was put out. Had he been able to go a few more rounds he might have made a better showing, inasmuch as he probably was the next best player to Hubbell entered in the tournament. In the semi-final round of the singles Kittelman defeated Frankel, 6/0, 4/6, 6/1, and Hubbell won from Fromherz, 6/0, 6/1, 6/3. In the final round, Hubbell defeated Kittelman, 5/7, 6/2, 6/4, 6/2. The final round of the doubles brought together Carver and Tarrent against McLaughlin and Lyons, the former pair winning.

Annual Meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association

After a hard fight, which was truly national in character, the delegates to the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, held at the Waldorf-Astoria February 5, voted to hold the national all-comers' tournament on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, L. I. The fight for the tournament was centered on Forest Hills and Newport. The vote, which was followed with the closest interest by the delegates, resulted in favor of the West Side Tennis Club, by 129 to 119.

After the announcement of the vote, Secretary E. F. Torrey moved that the vote be made unanimous. This was done after Palmer E. Presbrey seconded the motion.

Henry W. Slocum led those who favored keeping the championship in Newport, explaining that many improvements had been made in the Casino grounds. Others who spoke for Newport were G. P. Gardner, Jr., W. J. Clothier, Richard Norris Williams, 2d, E. F. Torrey and James S. Cushman. A determined opposition to Newport developed, many of the most prominent devotees of the game favoring a change. Karl H. Behr led those in favor of changing to New York. R. D. Little, Holcombe Ward and Harold H. Hackett also favored New York. President Julian S. Myrick of the West Side Tennis Club presented the advantages of his club.

The women's singles, doubles, and mixed doubles were awarded to the Philadelphia Cricket Club. As last year, the indoor men's and women's singles and doubles were assigned to the Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., as well as the junior national indoor championship. To the Pittsburgh Athletic Association was awarded the clay court championship tournament for 1915.

The report of the Davis Cup Committee was read, and it was unanimously decided not to send a challenge to Australia for 1915, owing to the war.

In the election for the officers of the association Raymond D. Little of New York withdrew from the delegates-at-large, and Holcombe Ward and W. M. Washburn tied with 150 votes each, and Ward withdrew.

The following officers of the association were elected: Robert D. Wrenn, New York City, President; A. L. Hoskins, Philadelphia, Vice-President; E. F. Torrey, Jr., Clinton, N. Y., Secretary; Richard Stevens, Hoboken, N. J., Treasurer. Executive Committee—New England, Palmer E. Presbrey, Boston; Tri-State, R. W. Holterhoff, Cincinnati; Northwestern, Ward C. Burton, Minneapolis; Southwestern, E. L. Scott, Van Vleck, Texas; Pacific, Dr. Sumner Hardy, San Francisco; Middle States, C. Frederick Watson, New York City; Middle Atlantic, E. C. Colston, Baltimore; Southern, L. D. Scott, Atlanta, Ga.; Western, L. H. Waidner, Chicago; Inter-Mountain, O. J. Salisbury, Salt Lake City. The following were elected delegates-at-large—W. A. Larned, New York City; W. M. Washburn, New York City; W. J. Clothier, Philadelphia; Craig Biddle, Philadelphia; George T. Adey, New York City; Clinton L. Childs, Pittsburgh.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, held March 19 and 20, 1915, at New York, it was decided to make the national championship tournament at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., a real open tournament, to send a team of Eastern players to the Pacific Coast and to admit no new sectional doubles tournaments except the Northwestern.

When it was voted to move the national championship from Newport at the annual meeting of the national association it was realized that the entry list probably would break all records for this country and might prove unwieldy. Motions were made to restrict the entries to ranked players, but these were all defeated on the ground that it would be un-American to make such a restriction and that furthermore many a coming star might remain undiscovered.

A resolution was passed that the national singles championship for 1915 shall be an open event, as heretofore, with the following provisions:

1. That all entries must be made through the secretary of the club or sub-association of which the applicant is a member.
2. That the entry list shall close at least ten days before the opening of the tournament.
3. That the entrance fee of each player shall be at least equal to the amount charged for a season ticket (covering admission and reserved seat) to members of clubs or sub-associations belonging to the U. S. N. L. T. A.

The committee found a very strong sentiment in favor of retaining the national championship as an open event, but feels that the provisions laid down will eliminate the danger of having too large an entry list. The committee feels that in endeavoring to obtain this result it will receive the hearty co-operation not only of the secretaries of the clubs but of all the tennis players throughout the country.

It was further voted to give members of clubs or sub-associations belonging to the U. S. N. L. T. A. the privilege of obtaining tickets for the national championships at special rates and that the president of the association be empowered and instructed to appoint a sub-committee from the executive committee, of which he shall be chairman, to make such arrangements regarding details in connection with the national tournament as seem advisable.

The report of the committee to consider the question of increasing the sectional doubles, referred at the annual meeting to the executive committee with power to act, was adopted.

This report stated that the New England, Middle States and Middle Atlantic sections were now properly represented by the Eastern Doubles and should not be broken up into separate sections. Of the sections qualified under the report to apply for sectional doubles, the Northwestern alone made application and was admitted, so that the teams eligible to compete in 1915 are: Pacific States, Western, Eastern, Southern and Northwestern.

In connection with the sectional doubles it was decided that the executive committee would frown in the future upon the practice of a team playing in the doubles championship in a section in which neither member of the team resides.

The executive committee recommends that the various clubs giving tournaments seriously consider including an event for juniors in conjunction with their other events. The motion to make this recommendation was put to a vote and unanimously carried.

In view of the fact that invitation tournaments have been growing in number from year to year and because these frequently hamper smaller clubs in holding open tournaments, the executive committee voted to recommend that all clubs holding such tournaments turn them into open events in 1916.

The reports of the committees on balls, association colors and standard medals for national champions were adopted. With regard to the medals, it was decided to award gold tennis balls to all winners of the men's and women's national championship singles and doubles since these events were inaugurated and in the future.

It was decided to send a team to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition tournament. This team is to be composed of not more than four men, and all expenses are to be paid by the national association. This is an innovation for the national association, but the executive committee feels that it is not establishing a precedent, in view of the fact that the event in conjunction with the exposition is really of international importance and should therefore be handled the same as Davis Cup matches. The picking of the team was referred to the committee on international affairs, the same committee that picked last year's Davis Cup team.

Regulations for the International Lawn Tennis Association Davis Cup

Revised and Adopted by the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Austria and Australia, 1906.

1. The competition shall be called "The International Lawn Tennis Championship," and shall be open to any nation which has a recognized Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization; and, for the purposes of the Regulations, Australia, with New Zealand, the British Isles, British South Africa, Canada, India, Sweden and Norway, and the United States of America shall, amongst others, be regarded as separate Nations.

2. The Nation for the time being holding the International Lawn Tennis Championship shall hereinafter be termed "The Champion Nation."

3. The Competition shall take place in accordance with the following regulations, and, except in so far as may be agreed upon by the competing Nations for their own Tie, with the Laws and Regulations of the game for the time being sanctioned by the Champion Nation.

4. The management of the Competition shall be entrusted to a Committee, hereafter termed "The Committee of Management," which shall be appointed annually by the Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization of the Champion Nation.

5. The Committee of Management shall make all arrangements for the preliminary Tie or Ties (if any) of the Competition where such preliminary Tie or Ties are to be played in the Country of the Champion Nation, and also for the Challenge Tie, and its decision in respect of all such arrangements shall be final. The Committee of Management shall also have power to depute to others, in any preliminary Tie or Ties, the making of all or any such arrangements as may be deemed necessary.

6. Any Nation wishing to compete shall give notice to the Secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization of the Champion Nation, so that it shall reach him not later than the first Monday in March of the year, in which the Competition is to take place. Should more than one Nation challenge, they shall compete among themselves for the right to play the Champion Nation in the Challenge Tie. The Draw, at which each Challenging Nation may be represented, shall be made by the Committee of Management on the day following the first Monday in March, and particulars shall be notified to the respective Secretaries for the time being of the Lawn Tennis Associations or Corresponding Organizations of the several competing Nations, with an intimation of the latest date by which the Tie or Ties shall be concluded. Failure to conclude a Tie by the date fixed by the Committee of Management shall render both Sides liable to be scratched, unless in the opinion of the Committee of Management, the weather or other unavoidable hindrance, shall have made completion impossible. Competing Nations shall arrange among themselves for the playing of their respective Ties upon a ground or grounds, and upon a date or dates convenient to those concerned; but, in the event of an agreement not being arrived at, the preliminary Tie or Ties shall be played in the country of the Champion Nation upon a ground or grounds, and upon a date or dates, to be fixed upon by the Committee of Management.

7. When gate money shall be taken, one half of the profit shall belong to the visiting Nation; or, in the case of a Tie being played on neutral ground, one third each to the visiting Nations, and the remaining fraction of profit in each case shall go to the Nation in whose Country the Tie shall be played.

8. The Challenge Tie shall be played in the country of the Champion Nation at a date and upon a ground to be agreed upon by common consent. In the event of an agreement not being arrived at, the fixing of the date and ground shall be submitted to Arbitration.

9. A player shall be qualified to represent a Nation, if he shall have been born in that Nation, or shall have resided therein for at least two years immediately preceding a Tie, provided always that he be a bona fide Amateur; but, no one shall be entitled to play for more than one Nation in this Competition during the same year. During the time that a player may be qualifying to play for a Nation under the residential qualification, he may play for the Nation for which he shall have been last previously qualified.

10. The Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization of each of the Nations concerned shall appoint a Captain of its Side. In default of such appointment a Side shall choose its own Captain.

11. For each Tie a Referee, from whose decision there shall be no appeal, shall be appointed by common consent of the Captains of the competing Sides. He shall have power to appoint Umpires. He shall decide any point of law which an Umpire may profess himself unable to decide, or which may be referred to him on appeal from the decision of an Umpire by the players. He shall decide, if he be called upon to decide by the Captain of either Side, whether or not a Match or Matches shall be stopped owing to the state of the courts, the state of the weather, darkness, or other unavoidable hindrance.

12. (a) Each competing Nation shall, twenty-one days before the date fixed for the commencement of a Tie, nominate to the Committee of Management not more than four players, without specifying who shall play in Singles and Doubles. Different players, however, may be nominated by a Nation for different Ties.

(b) Each Captain shall, twenty-four hours before the time fixed for the commencement of play in each Contest, give notice of the composition of his Team to the Executive Committee, and his Team shall be selected from the four players previously nominated for the Tie. Such selection by the Captain, however, shall be regarded as solely for the convenience of the Executive Committee, and may be varied by him before the commencement of play.

(c) For the Second Round of the Singles Contest in any Tie, the Referee may sanction the substitution of another of the players nominated by a Nation for that Tie in the place of any player, who, in the opinion of the Referee, is incapacitated by illness, accident or other unavoidable hindrance; provided that such substitute shall not be the player who has already competed in the Singles Contest.

13. The time of cessation of play shall be fixed before the commencement of each day's play by the Captains of the opposing Sides, or by the Referee if they shall disagree. It shall be the duty of the Referee to stop play when this time arrives; provided, nevertheless, that he may extend the time with the consent of the Captains of the opposing Sides. A player shall not be called upon to play more than one Match a day, except with the unanimous consent of the Captains of the opposing Sides and the majority of the Executive Committee.

14. Each Tie shall be decided by the combined results of Singles and Doubles, and the Side which shall win the majority of Matches shall be the winner of a Tie.

15. In the Singles, each Team shall, subject to Regulation 12, Clause c, consist of two players, who shall play each against each of the opposing Team the best of five advantage sets. The order of play and courts shall be decided by lot. In the Doubles, each Team shall consist of two players, who shall play against the opposing Team the best of five advantage sets.

16. Unless otherwise arranged by the unanimous consent of the Captains of the opposing Sides and the majority of the Executive Committee, the Doubles shall take place between the two rounds of the Singles Contest. If, however, a player be chosen for both the Singles and Doubles Contests, and if, by a change in the above arrangements, he be called upon to play his two Singles' Matches on consecutive days, then there shall be an interval of one day between the second and the third day's play. Provided, nevertheless, that if there be an interval between the first and second day's play, either from postponement, arrangement, or the interval of a Sunday, there shall not be an interval between the second and third day's play.

17. If any player be absent when called upon to play by the Referee, the opposing Side shall be entitled to three love sets.

18. Any Competing Nation whose Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization, or whose Representatives shall fail to conform to the above Regulations, may be disqualified by the Committee of Management in respect of the Competition for the year wherein such failure shall occur.

19. Winners of a preliminary Tie shall notify the result without delay to the Committee of Management, by telegram, which shall be confirmed by letter.

20. For purposes of correspondence and the giving of notices required by these Regulations, the Secretary for the time being of the Lawn Tennis Association or Corresponding Organization of the Champion Nation shall be regarded as representing the Committee of Management.

21. The above Regulations shall be binding upon the Nations concerned, and shall not be altered except with the consent of two-thirds of the Associations or Corresponding Organizations whose Nations shall have from time to time competed and who shall record their votes.

NOTE.—In the above Regulations, one Nation playing against another is regarded as a "Tie"; Singles and Doubles are regarded as separate "Contests"; and the best of five advantage sets is regarded as a "Match". The players in Singles and Doubles are regarded as separate "Teams"; and the players in the combined Contests as a "Side".

Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

NAME.

- (1) Clubs.
- (2) Active Associations.
- (3) Allied Associations.

Allied associations shall consist of associations of schools or colleges, but such associations, if they so desire, may become active associations by notifying the Secretary of the National Association and paying the dues for an active association. Active associations shall consist of all associations other than allied associations and in each case the limits of an active association shall necessarily exclude to that extent the limits of every other such association.

SEC. 2. An association in either (2) or (3) shall consist of five or more individual clubs, any one of which may or may not be itself a member directly of the National Association. Each club shall at all meetings be entitled to one vote. Each active association shall be entitled to two votes and to one additional vote for every five clubs or fraction thereof members of it over ten. Allied associations shall not be entitled to any vote. No club being itself a member of the National Association shall be counted as a member of an active association in determining the number of votes which may be cast by such association.

SEC. 3. On or before the first day of January in every year each sub-association shall send to the Secretary of the National Association the names and addresses of its secretary and treasurer and a list of clubs belonging to it on December 1st preceding, and each club directly a member of the National Association shall send to the Secretary of the National Association the names and addresses of its secretary and treasurer, holding office on December 1st preceding. The secretary of each association shall notify the Secretary of the National Association of any changes in its membership immediately upon their occurrence.

ARTICLE III.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS.

Where the applicant is an association, the names and addresses of each of its members shall be given with the application, together with a statement of the limits that it desires to represent.

SEC. 2. The Executive Committee shall have full power to elect candidates for membership, except that no association shall be deemed a member whose limits shall conflict with those of any other association until its election be confirmed by a two-thirds vote at the annual meeting of the National Association, or the associations upon whose limits it encroaches consent to such encroachment. The election to membership of such an association automatically decreases the limits of other associations to such an extent as shall preclude a conflict of limits.

SEC. 3. Dues, etc.—The annual dues to the National Association, in the case of clubs, shall be ten dollars ($10) and the case of active associations shall be thirty-five dollars ($35), except that where any such association is composed of more than ten clubs its annual dues shall in addition be fifteen dollars ($15) for every five clubs or fraction thereof above ten. Allied associations shall not be required to pay any annual dues. No club or association shall be allowed the privilege of a member until after its first annual dues have been paid and no club shall be entitled to a vote at the annual meeting of the National Association unless it was a member thereof for the preceding fiscal year. The fiscal year of the National Association shall begin February 1st. All dues for the ensuing year are payable on or before May 1st.

SEC. 4. Limits of Payments, etc.—Any club or association which shall fail to have paid its annual dues on or before June 1st may be debarred from the privileges of a member by the Executive Committee until the same are paid, and, at their discretion, may be dropped from the roll.

ARTICLE IV.

RESIGNATIONS, EXPULSIONS, ETC.

SECTION 1. Resignations, etc.—Any member wishing to resign must do so in writing, addressed to the Secretary; and the resignation cannot be accepted until all dues for the current fiscal year are paid. Resignations must be received before February 1st to relieve the member from payment of dues for the ensuing year.

SEC. 2. The Executive Committee of the National Association, herein-after provided for, shall have the power to suspend or expel any member which may neglect or refuse a strict and honorable compliance with its Constitution, By-Laws, etc., or which shall, by its conduct, bring reproach or disgrace upon the National Association; or which shall, being itself an association, retain as one of its members any club objected to by notice in writing by the Executive Committee, subject to the right of any member, if expelled, to appeal to the National Association, at its next annual meeting, for reinstatement.

ARTICLE V.

OFFICERS.

SECTION 1. The affairs of the National Association shall be conducted by an Executive Committee composed of the President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer and sixteen other members, ten of whom shall represent stated sections of the country as provided in Section 2 of this article, and shall be called Sectional Delegates. The remaining six shall be called Delegates-at-large.

Laws of Lawn Tennis

THE COURT.

1. The Court is 78 feet long and 27 feet wide. It is divided across the middle by a net, the ends of which are attached to two posts, A and B, standing 3 feet outside of the court on either side. The height of the net is 3 feet 6 inches at the posts, and 3 feet in the middle. At each end of the court, parallel with the net, and 39 feet from it, are drawn the base lines D E and F G, the ends of which are connected by the side lines D F and E G. Halfway between the side lines, and parallel with them, is drawn the half court line I I, dividing the space on each side of the net into two equal parts, the right and left courts. On each side of the net, at a distance of 21 feet from it, and parallel with it, are drawn the service lines K L and M N.

THE BALLS.

2. The Balls shall measure not less than $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, nor more than 2.916 inches in diameter; and shall weigh not less than 1.15-1.6 ounces, nor more than 2 ounces.

THE GAME.

3. The choice of sides, and the right to serve in the first game, shall be decided by toss; provided that, if the winner of the toss choose the right to serve, the other player shall have choice of sides, and vice versa, or the winner of the toss may insist upon a choice by his opponent. If one player choose the court, the other may elect not to serve.

4. The players shall stand on opposite sides of the net; the player who first delivers the ball shall be called the server, and the other the striker-out.

5. At the end of the first game the striker-out shall become server, and the server shall become striker-out; and so on alternately in all the subsequent games of the set and following sets.

FOOT FAULT RULE.

6. The server shall before commencing to serve stand with both feet at rest behind (i. e., further from the net than) the base line and within the limits of the imaginary continuation of the half court and side lines, and thereafter the server shall not run, walk, hop or jump before the service has been delivered, but the server may raise one foot from (and, if desired, replace it on) the ground, provided that both feet are kept behind the base line until the service has been delivered.

Official Interpretation of Law 6:

If a foot be lifted and replaced, there must be no change of position that can possibly be considered a step.

7. The service shall be delivered from the right and left courts alternately, beginning from the right in every game, even though odds be given or owed, and the ball served shall drop within the service line, half court line and side line of the court which is diagonally opposite to that from which it was served or upon any such line.

8. It is a fault if the server commit any breach of Law 7, or if the service be delivered from the wrong court, or if the ball served drop in the net or beyond the service line, or if it drop out of court or in the wrong court. If the server in attempting to serve miss the ball altogether, it does not count a fault; but if the ball be touched, no matter how slightly, by the racket, a service is thereby delivered, and the laws governing the service at once apply.

9. A fault cannot be taken.

10. After a fault the server shall serve again from the same court from which he served that fault, unless it was a fault because he served from the wrong court.

11. A fault cannot be claimed after the next service is delivered.

12. The server shall not serve until the striker-out is ready. If the latter attempt to return the service, he shall be deemed ready.

13. A service or fault delivered when the striker-out is not ready counts for nothing.

14. The service shall not be volleyed, that is, taken, before it has touched the ground.

15. A ball is in play on leaving the server's racket, except as provided for in law 8, and remains in play till the stroke is decided.

16. It is a good return, although the ball touch the net; but a service, otherwise good, which touches the net shall count for nothing.

17. The server wins a stroke if the striker-out volley the service, or if he fail to return the service or the ball in play, or if he return the service or the ball in play so that it drops outside of his opponent's court; or if he otherwise lose a stroke, as provided by law 20.

18. The striker-out wins a stroke if the server serve two consecutive faults; or if he fail to return the ball in play; or if he return the ball in play so that it drops outside of his opponent's court; or if he otherwise lose a stroke as provided by law 20.

19. A ball falling on a line is regarded as falling in the court bounded by that line.

20. Either player loses a stroke if the ball touch him, or anything that he wears or carries, except his racket in the act of striking; or if he touch the ball with his racket more than once; or if he touch the net or any of its supports, or the ground within his opponent's court, while the ball is in play; or if he volley the ball before it has passed the net.

21. In case a player is obstructed by any accident, not within his control, the ball shall be considered a "let." But when a permanent fixture of the court is the cause of the accident, the point shall be counted. The benches and chairs placed around the court shall be considered permanent fixtures. If, however, a ball in play strike a permanent fixture of the court (other than the net or posts) before it touches the ground, the point is lost; if after it has touched the ground, the point shall be counted.

22. On either player winning his first stroke, the score is called 15 for that player; on either player winning his second stroke, the score is called 30 for that player; on either player winning his third stroke, the score is called 40 for that player; and the fourth stroke won by either player is scored game for that player, except as below. If both players have won three strokes, the score is called deuce; and the next stroke won by either player is scored advantage for that player. If the same player win the next stroke, he wins the game; if he lose the next stroke the score returns to deuce, and so on until one player wins the two strokes immediately following the score of deuce, when game is scored for that player.

23. The player who first wins six games wins the set; except as below: If both players win five games the score is called games all; and the next game won by either player is scored advantage game for that player. If the same player win the next game, he wins the set; if he lose the next game, the score returns to games all; and so on, until either player wins the two games immediately following the score of games all, when he wins the set. But the committee having charge of any tournament may in their discretion modify this rule by the omission of advantage sets.

24. The players shall change sides at the end of the first, third and every subsequent alternate game of each set and at the end of each set, unless the number of games in such set be even. It shall, however, be open to the players by mutual consent and notification to the umpire before the opening of the second game of the match to change sides instead at the end of every set until the odd and concluding set, in which they shall change sides at the end of the first, third and every subsequent alternate game of such set.

*25. In all contests the play shall be continuous from the first service till the match be concluded; provided, however, that at the end of the third set either player is entitled to a rest, which shall not exceed seven minutes, and provided, further, that in case of an unavoidable accident, not within the control of the contestants, a cessation of play which shall not exceed two minutes may be allowed between points; but this proviso shall be strictly construed, and the privilege never granted for the purpose of allowing a player to recover his strength or wind. The referee in his discretion may at any time postpone the match on account of darkness or condition of the ground or weather. In any case of postponement, the previous score shall hold good. Where the play has ceased for more than an hour, the player who at the cessation thereof was in the court first chosen shall have the choice of courts on the recommencement of play. He shall stay in the court he chooses for the remainder of the set. The last two sentences of this rule do not apply when the players change every alternate game as provided by law 24.

26. If a player serve out of his turn, the umpire, as soon as the mistake is discovered, shall direct the player to serve who ought to have served. But all strokes scored before such discovery shall be counted. If a game shall have been completed before such discovery, then the service in the next alternate game shall be delivered by the player who did not serve out of his turn, and so on in regular rotation.

* All matches in which women take part in tournaments held under the auspices of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association shall be the best two in three sets, with a rest not exceeding seven minutes after the second set.

27. The above laws shall apply to the three-handed and four-handed games, except as follows:

THE THREE-HANDED AND FOUR-HANDED GAMES.

28. For the three-handed and four-handed games the court shall be 36 feet in width; $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet inside the side lines, and parallel with them, are drawn the service side lines K M and L N. The service lines are not drawn beyond the point at which they meet the service side lines, as shown in the diagram.

29. In the three-handed game, the single player shall serve in every alternate game.

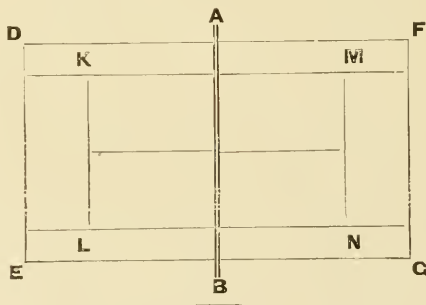

30. In the four-handed game, the pair who have the right to serve in the first game shall decide which partner shall do so, and the opposing pair shall decide in like manner for the second game. The partner of the player who served in first game shall serve in the third, and the partner of the player who served in the second game shall serve in the fourth, and the same order shall be maintained in all the subsequent games of the set.

31. At the beginning of the next set, either partner of the pair which struck out in the last game of the last set may serve; and the same privilege is given to their opponents in second game of the new set.

32. The players shall take the service alternately throughout the game: a player cannot receive a service delivered to his partner; and the order of service and striking out once established shall not be altered, nor shall the striker-out change courts to receive the service, till the end of the set.

33. It is a fault if the ball served does not drop between the service line, half-court line, and service side line of the court, diagonally opposite to that from which it was served.

34. It is a fault if the ball served does not drop as provided in law 33, or if it touch the server's partner or anything he wears or carries.

The Sixths System of Handicapping.

In the case of received odds:

(a) One-sixth of fifteen is one stroke given in every six games of a set in the position shown by the annexed table.

(b) Similarly, two-sixths, three-sixths, four-sixths and five-sixths of fifteen are respectively two, three, four and five strokes given in every six games of a set in the position shown by the table.

Cases and Decisions

BY JAMES DWIGHT.

Officially recognized by the U. S. N. L. T. A.

I. A player standing outside the court volleys the ball or catches it in his hand, and claims the stroke because the ball was certainly going out of court.

Decision.—He loses the stroke. It makes no difference where he was standing. The return is presumed good until it strikes the ground outside of the court.

II. A player is struck by the ball served before it has touched the ground, he being outside of the service court. How does it count?

Decision.—The player struck loses the stroke. The service is presumably good until it strikes in the wrong court. A player cannot take the decision upon himself by stopping the ball. If it is going to be a fault, he has only to get out of the way.

III. The service is delivered before the striker-out is ready. He tries to return it and fails. Is he entitled to have it played over again?

Decision.—No. If he attempts to return the service he is deemed ready.

IV. The striker-out calls "not ready," for a second service. The ball strikes beyond the service line, and the striker-out claims that the fact that he was not ready makes no difference, since a fault cannot be returned, and, therefore, that two faults have been served.

Decision.—The second service goes for nothing. A player cannot call "not ready," and then have the service count, or not, as suits his interests.

V. A ball having been played over the net bounds back into the court from which it came. The player reaches over the net and plays it before it falls. Has he a right to do so?

Decision.—Yes, provided he does not touch the net. He has a right to play the ball at any time from the moment it crosses the net into his court until it touches the ground a second time.

VI. A ball is played into the net; the player on the other side, thinking that the ball is coming over, strikes at it and hits the net. Who loses the stroke?

Decision.—It is simply a question of fact for the umpire to decide. If the player touch the net while the ball was still in play he loses the stroke.

VII. Can a player follow a ball over the net with his racket, provided that he hits the ball on his own side of the net?

Decision.—Yes, the only restrictions are that he shall not volley the ball until it has crossed the net, and that he shall not touch the net or any of its supports.

VIII. A player's racket slips out of his hand and flies into the net. Does he lose the stroke for hitting the net?

Decision.—Yes, if the ball be still in play. It does not matter if the racket be in a player's hand or not.

IX. A player's racket leaves his hand, but meets the ball and returns it over the net. Is it a good return?

Decision.—Yes. There is no law requiring a racket to be in a player's hand when the ball is returned. It would unquestionably be a good return if the racket were held against the ground by a player's feet, and the ball bounded back off of it.

X. A single match is played with a double net and inside posts. A player touches the net beyond the inside posts, and claims that he does not lose the stroke because there should be no net more than three feet outside of the court.

Decision.—He loses the stroke. The net where he touches it is part of the supports of the net. He might, perhaps, have objected to the arrangement of the net before the match.

XI. A player returns the ball, and, finding that he cannot stop himself before reaching the net, jumps over it. Is it a good return?

Decision.—Law 4 requires that "the players shall stand on opposite sides of the net," and therefore the player invading his opponent's court loses the stroke.

XII. A ball passes outside the post of the net and strikes in court. Is it a good return?

Decision.—Yes.

XIII. A ball going out of court hits the top of the posts of the net and bounds into the opposite court.

Decision.—It is a good return.

XIV. The service or the ball in play strikes a ball lying in the court. Can it be returned?

Decision.—Yes, if it is clear to the umpire that the right ball is returned.

XV. The server claims that the striker-out must stand in the court. Is this necessary?

Decision.—No. The striker-out can stand wherever he pleases on his own side of the net.

XVI. A bystander gets in the way of a player who fails to return the ball. May he then claim a let?

Decision.—Yes, if, in the umpire's opinion, he was prevented by an accident beyond his control. For instance, if the ropes or the seats are allowed to be so near to the court that a player is interfered with by them, the stroke should not be played again, because the ropes and seats form part of the arrangements of the ground. If, however, a spectator passes in front of those seats, or places a chair nearer than the original line, and so interferes with a player, the stroke should be played again.

XVII. A player is interfered with as above, and the umpire directs the stroke to be played again. The server had previously served a fault. He claims the right to two services.

Decision.—The fault stands. A let does not annul a previous fault.

XVIII. A return hits the umpire, or his chair or stand, the player claims that the ball was going into court.

Decision.—Stroke is lost.

XIX. A player receiving fifteen serves from the left court. His opponent claims a fault.

Decision.—It is a fault. The service starts from the right court under all circumstances.

XX. At fifteen-all the server by mistake serves from the left court, he wins the stroke and serves again (a fault), the mistake is then discovered. Is he entitled to the previous fault? From which court should he serve next?

Decision.—The previous stroke stands. A fault cannot be claimed after the next service, good or not, is delivered. The next service should be from the left court, the score being thirty-fifteen, and the server has served one fault.

XXI. A player serves from the wrong court, he loses the stroke, and then claims that it was a fault.

Decision.—If the stroke was played in his first service it is simply a fault, but if he serves twice into the wrong court he has served two faults, and lost the stroke.

XXII. The score is five games all, and the umpire directs the players to play an advantage set. The advantage game has been won, when it is discovered that no advantage sets are to be played. What is to be done?

Decision.—The set is won at the eleventh game. It is no part of the umpire's duty to decide on the conditions of the matches.

XXIII. A player serves. He hears the umpire call, but cannot hear what he says. He knows that the only two things that the umpire should call are "fault" and "let," and that in neither case can the ball be in play. He, therefore, does not return it, only to find that the umpire has called "play." Has he any redress?

Decision.—No.

XXIV. The umpire calls "fault," and then instantly changes and says "play." The striker-out fails to return the ball, and he claims he was prevented by the umpire, and also that the umpire cannot change his decision.

Decision.—The umpire should call a let and the service be taken again.

XXV. A ball drops near a line, the player appeals, and the umpire calls "play." The player misunderstands the call and lets the ball fall. He then claims to have the stroke played again.

Decision.—The stroke stands.

XXVI. The ball strikes the ground close to a line; the scorer scores the stroke against the striker. On appeal to the linesman, the latter decided that the ball was not out. Which decision stands?

Decision.—The scorer has no right to consider a ball out until the linesman has called to that effect, therefore, the decision of the latter must be accepted. The decision of a linesman affecting his own line is final.

XXVII. A return strikes the cord running along the bottom of the net and bounds over. Is it a good return?

Decision.—Yes.

XXVIII. During play a ball is thrown into court, and the ball in play strikes it or a player steps on it. May a let be claimed?

Decision.—Yes.

XXIX. The server's first service strikes his partner. Does he lose the stroke or is it a fault?

Decision.—A fault.

XXX. A player serves a fault and it is then discovered that it is his partner's service. Does the fault stand?

Decision.—Yes.

XXXI. In a four-handed competition one player does not appear in time to play, and his partner claims to be allowed to play single-handed against the opposing pair. May he do so?

Decision.—No.

UNOFFICIAL DECISIONS ON DOUBTFUL POINTS.

(From Lawn Tennis.)

Both of the opponents of the servers in doubles are strikers-out alternately during a game. It is optional with them which shall serve first, but they must serve alternately throughout each set.

A player does not lose a stroke for striking at a ball that ultimately falls outside his court, providing he does not touch it in doing so.

If one partner of a double team strikes at a ball and does not touch it, his partner still has the right to return it. A player or different member of a team may strike at a ball as often as they please; it is still in play until lit.

A served ball is only a "let" if otherwise good, falling in the proper court; a fault cannot be a "let."

The server must stand behind the base-line, within the limits of the side-lines of the court in which he is playing.

There is no limit to the number of "let" balls that may be made on the service, and the server continues serving in the same court until a good service is delivered or two faults are made.

The server must wait until the striker-out is ready for the second service as well as the first, and if the striker-out claims to be not ready and does not make any effort to return the second service, the server cannot claim the point, even though the service was good.

If a player's racket touches the net after the ball has struck the net, he does not lose the point. The ball is dead and the point has been won and lost as soon as the ball strikes the net, and nothing which happens afterward can affect that point. If the ball knocks the net against the player's racket the same decision holds good; it is simply a question for the referee to decide which touches the net first.

In doubles partners must receive throughout each set on the same sides of the court which they originally select when the set begins. The first server is not required to receive in the right court; he may select either side at the beginning of the set, but must hold this to the end.

A ball served with a sharp cut that bounds back over the net after having struck in the right court is a good service. The point counts in favor of the server if the striker-out fails to return it. The latter may reach over the net to return the ball, but loses the point if he touches the net in doing so.

A return made from one side of the court that passes outside of the net and posts without going over them is still good if the ball falls in the proper court.

The ball is always in play until it has struck the ground outside of the court, or the net, or has touched the ground twice. The player loses a point if the ball touches him or his clothing while still in play, no matter whether he is standing outside of the court when the ball hits him, or not.

An officially recognized decision has been rendered that makes any support of the net—the posts, the guy-ropes, or the centre fork—a part of the net itself, and any ball hitting one of the supports and still striking the right court is considered a good return (except on the service). The posts are required to stand outside of the court, and yet a ball being returned at a sharp angle from outside might well be going in and still touch one of the posts.

A ball is dead the instant it has touched the ground outside of the court, and the point must be scored at once against the other side, no matter what happens after the ball touches the ground.

Consolation matches in America are always open to any player beaten in his first match actually played. Winning by default before defeat in the first actual match does not disqualify a player from the consolation event.

The services must always come alternately from the right and left courts; if the server delivers the ball from the wrong court it is a fault.

A fault cannot be played, and the striker-out has no option in the matter; it does not make the service good if he returns it.

7. The Referee shall, during the Tournament, be ex-officio a member of the Committee.

8. The Committee shall help to keep order on the ground, and shall consult and decide upon any question arising out of the competition, if summoned for that purpose by the Referee or by any two of their number; and they shall have power, when so convened, the misconduct of a competitor having been reported to them by a member of the Committee or an Umpire, to disqualify the offender, and further to order him off the ground, should his misconduct appear to them to justify such action, but before such action shall be taken, an opportunity of offering an explanation shall be afforded to the competitor whose misconduct has been reported to them.

9. It is the duty of an Umpire—

(a) To ascertain that the net is at the right height before the commencement of play, and to measure and adjust the net during play, if asked to do so, or if, in his opinion, its height has altered.

(b) To call the faults (subject to Regulation 10) and lets unless he delegates such power.

(c) To call the strokes when won, or when he is asked to call them, and to record them upon the Umpire's scoring sheet. (See example below.)

(d) To call the games and the sets at the end of each, or when asked to call them, and to record them on the Umpire's scoring sheet.

(e) To direct the Competitors to change sides, in accordance with Law 24.

(f) When appealed to during a rally, whether a doubtful ball is "in play" or not, to call "play," and at the conclusion of the rally to give his decision (subject to Regulation 11) or direct the competitors to play the stroke again.

(g) To decide all doubtful or disputed strokes, and all points of law (subject to Regulations 10 and 11), and to be responsible for the proper conduct of the match.

Example:

The strokes are scored by means of pencil marks in the spaces beneath the word "STROKES," thus:

Game.	Initials of Players.	STROKES.												Game won by
1	A. B.	1	1		1	1

	C. D.			1		1

	A. B.	1		1			1		1

The Scoring Sheet shows that in the first game the score ran, and would have been called, thus: "15—love, 30—love, 30—15, 40—15, 40—30, game (A.B.)." In the second game: "Love—15, 15 all, 15—30, 30 all, 40—30, deuce, advantage (C.D.), deuce, advantage (A.B.), deuce, advantage (C.D.), game (C.D.)."

The score of the Server should be called first.

NOTE—At the end of each game the games should be called with the name of the player who is in advance, thus: "2 games to 1, B wins" or, "B leads." If the games are level the score should be called thus, "three games all," or as the case may be. At the end of each set the sets should be called in like manner.

(h) In handicap matches to call the odds at the commencement of each set.

(i) To sign the Umpire's scoring sheets, and to deliver them at the conclusion of the match to such person as the Committee may authorize to receive them.

Provided, that no omission of any of the foregoing duties on the part of an Umpire shall of itself invalidate a game or match.

10. It is the duty of the Linesman to call faults and to decide strokes relating to the line or lines to which he is assigned and to said line or lines only, and such decision shall be final. Should the Linesman be unable to give a decision, the Umpire shall decide or shall direct the stroke to be played again.

11. The decision of an Umpire shall be final upon every question of fact, and no competitor may appeal from it; but if an Umpire be in doubt as to a point of law, or if a competitor appeal against his

In scoring handicap matches, the odds received should be marked by crosses on the right of the first perpendicular thick line before the commencement of each game, thus:

Game.	Initials of Players.	STROKES.						Game won by
1	A. B.	—
	C. D.
2	C. D.
	A. B.	+	+
3	A. B.	+

	A. B.	—	+
5	A. B.	—
	C. D.
6	C. D.
	A. B.	+	+

Here A. B. is receiving 15 and 3-sixths of 15.

decision on such a point, the Umpire shall submit it to the Referee whose decision shall be final.

NOTE—A question of fact relates to events that actually happened. A question of law is the construction and application of the laws of the game to be admitted facts.

12. The Referee shall not bet on a match nor shall an Umpire or Linesman on the match to which he is assigned. An infraction of this rule shall be followed by the immediate removal of the offending Referee, Umpire or Linesman on the complaint of any competitor.

13. No competitor may transfer his entry to another player.

14. Competitors shall have a right, by themselves or their deputies, to be present at the draw.

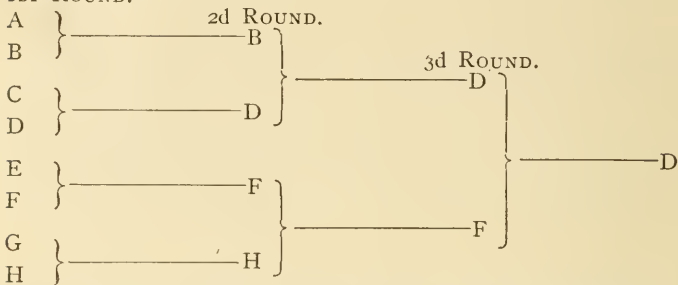

15. The draw shall be conducted in the following manner: Each competitor's name shall be written on a separate card or paper, and these shall be placed in a bowl or hat, drawn out one by one at random, and copied on a list in the order in which they have been drawn.

When odds are owed, they should be marked on the left of the first thick perpendicular line before the commencement of each game, thus:

Game.	Initials of Players.	STROKES.						Game won by
	C. D.
2	C. D.
	A. B. 1

4	C. D.
	A. B. 1
5	A. B. 1
	C. D.
6	C. D.
	A. B. 1

16. When the number of competitors is 4, 8, 16, 32, 64 or any higher power of 2, they shall meet in pairs, in accordance with the system shown by the following diagram:

1ST ROUND.

and should be crossed off one by one when the player owing wins a stroke, thus:

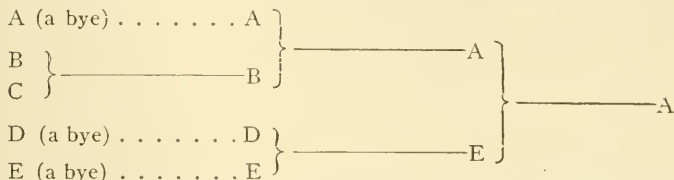

Game.	Initials of Players.	STROKES.								Game won by
1	A. B.	+	+

4	C. D.
	A. B.		+
5	A. B.		+
	C. D.
6	C. D.

Here A. B. owes 15 and 2-sixths of 15.

17. When a number of competitors is not a power of 2, there shall be byes in the first round. The number of byes shall be equal to the difference between the number of competitors and the next higher power of 2, and the number of pairs that shall meet in the first round shall be equal to the difference between the number of competitors and the next lower power of 2. The byes, if even in number, shall be divided, as the names are drawn, in equal proportions at the top and bottom of the list, above and below the pairs. If uneven in number, there shall be one more bye at the bottom than at the top. Thus—

SERIES I.

And so on with larger numbers in the same manner.

18. If a competitor be absent when called on to play, or shall refuse to play (unless he has been formally excused for a definite period by the Referee), or shall have given previous notice to the Referee, or a member of the Committee that he cannot play in his next round, his adversary shall win in that round.

19. In handicap matches the competitors shall be handicapped by the Committee, or by a Handicapper appointed by the Committee.

20. The method of handicapping shall be by classes as follows:

GIVEN ODDS.

Class O—(Scratch).

Class	1	receives	1-sixth of 15.
"	2	"	2-sixths of 15.
"	3	"	3-sixths of 15.
"	4	"	4-sixths of 15.
"	5	"	5-sixths of 15.
"	6	"	15.
"	7	"	15 and 1-sixth of 15.
"	8	"	15 and 2-sixths of 15.
"	9	"	15 and 3-sixths of 15.
"	10	"	15 and 4-sixths of 15.
"	11	"	15 and 5-sixths of 15.
"	12	"	30.
"	13	"	30 and 1-sixth of 15.
"	14	"	30 and 2-sixths of 15.
"	15	"	30 and 3-sixths of 15.
"	16	"	30 and 4-sixths of 15.
"	17	"	30 and 5-sixths of 15.
"	18	"	40.

When two players in different classes below scratch meet, the superior player shall start from scratch, and the odds received by the inferior player are as shown by the annexed table No. 1. To use the table, find in the diagonal line of figures the number representing the class of the superior player, then travel along the horizontal column until the vertical column is reached which bears at the top the number of the class of the inferior player. The odds specified at the intersection of the two columns are the odds required.

Example.—If class 3 has to meet class 9, start from the figure 3 in the diagonal line of figures, and look horizontally until the vertical column is reached headed by the figure 9. The odds given at the point of intersection of the two columns (viz. 15 and 1-6 of 15) are the odds required.

When the difference between the best and the worst players entered in great (say more than 30), it is desirable to handicap the best players at owed odds. The players above scratch (i. e., owing odds) should be classified as follows:

OWED ODDS.

Class	1	owes	1-sixth of 15.
"	2	"	2-sixths of 15.
"	3	"	3-sixths of 15.
"	4	"	4-sixths of 15.
"	5	"	5-sixths of 15.
"	6	"	15.
"	7	"	15 and 1-sixth of 15.
"	8	"	15 and 2-sixths of 15.
"	9	"	15 and 3-sixths of 15.
"	10	"	15 and 4-sixths of 15.
"	11	"	15 and 5-sixths of 15.
"	12	"	30.
"	13	"	30 and 1-sixth of 15.
"	14	"	30 and 2-sixths of 15.
"	15	"	30 and 3-sixths of 15.
"	16	"	30 and 4-sixths of 15.
"	17	"	30 and 5-sixths of 15.
"	18	"	40.

When the two players in different classes above scratch meet, the inferior player shall start from scratch, and the odds owed by the superior player are as shown by the annexed table, No. 2.

This table is to be used in the same way as the former, the class of the superior player being looked for in the horizontal line of figures at the top, and the class of the inferior player in the diagonal line of figures.

Example.—If class 12 (owe 30) meet class 7 (owe 15 and 1-6 of 15), the former must owe the latter the odds of 4-6 of 15.

21. In Championship matches and handicaps by classes, as above, advantage sets shall be played throughout.

22. The Committee may, whether appealed to by any competitor or not, postpone the meeting or any match or part of a match if, in their opinion, the state of the weather, or of the light, or the condition of the ground, or other circumstances, render it advisable to do so. In cases of postponement, Law 25 must be strictly observed.

23. In all tournaments sanctioned by the Association the use of spikes longer than one-quarter of an inch is prohibited.

Fifteen and three-sixths (15.3 or half-thirty) is two strokes given on the same games as for three-sixths, and one stroke on each of the others.

Fifteen and four-sixths (15.4) is two strokes given on the same games as for four-sixths, and one stroke on each of the others.

OWED ODDS.

Owed (or minus) odds can also be used in exactly the same quantities, the chief difference being that the better player is required to earn the owed strokes before he begins to score, while, in the case of given odds, the poorer player is given his handicap before play starts. These owed odds may be used either in conjunction with the given odds

HANDICAPS. TABLE No. 1. (Received Odds.)

When two players, both in receipt of odds, meet, the player receiving the smaller odds is put back to scratch. The following table shows the point at which the other should then start. The number at the left of the horizontal columns denotes the player who goes back to scratch, those at the head of the vertical columns the player who still receives odds; and the numbers within the columns show the odds to be received by the player whose number stands at the head of the column.

This table has been calculated upon the following data:—

In the case of owed odds—

The average value of 1-6 is .2158
" " " 2-6 " .3929
" " " 3-6 " .5188
" " " 4-6 " .6448
" " " 5-6 " .7975

" " Length of a game is 4,6250 strokes.

In using this table supply throughout the word "owe" before the odds specified.

or separately. In order that the handicaps may occur as seldom as possible in the same games, when two players meet, one of whom owes odds and the other receives them, the games on which owed strokes are paid differ from those on which the given strokes are taken. Here is the table for owed odds.

One-sixth (1-6) is one stroke owed on the first, seventh, thirteenth and every subsequent sixth game in each set.

Two-sixths (2-6) is one stroke owed on the first, third, seventh, ninth and corresponding games in each set.

Three-sixths (3-6 or one-half) is one stroke owed on the first, third, fifth and every other alternate game in each set.

Four-sixths (4-6) is one stroke owed on the first, third, fifth, sixth and corresponding games in each set.

Five-sixths (5-6) is one stroke owed on the first, third, fourth, fifth, fifth and corresponding games in each set.

Fifteen (15) is one stroke owed on each game.

Fifteen and one-sixth (15.1), fifteen and two-sixths (15.2), fifteen and three-sixths (15.3 or half-thirty), fifteen and four-sixths (15.4), fifteen and five-sixths (15.5), thirty (30), thirty and one-sixth (30.1), thirty and two-sixths (30.2), thirty and three-sixths (30.3 or half-forty), thirty and four-sixths (30.4), thirty and five-sixths (30.5) and forty (40), correspond to the fractions of fifteen, as do the larger handicaps in the table for given odds correspond to the fractions of fifteen in that table.

The simplest method for handicappers to pursue is to sort out the entries for the event they are to handicap into classes according to the relative skill of the players. Then select the class with the greatest number of players in it and place them on scratch, handicapping all of the other players either behind or in advance of scratch by owed or given odds, so as to make all even at the odds.

In deciding upon each player's handicap, his ability as compared with the scratch men should first be considered, and then as compared with his nearest and furthest rivals in the tables of odds. Each player might meet any of the others, and the object of handicapping is to give him an exactly even chance, no matter whom his opponent may be.

It should be remembered that it is easier to owe 15, or any fraction of it, than it is to give it, and when odds of 30 are given, the poorer player's score has already reached pretty near the end of the game, and the difference between him and the best men must be very great to give the latter an even chance, should they meet.

It is very unwise to give even the poorer players over 30.3 (half-forty), and very seldom is it safe to make the given odds run higher than 30. If the difference between the best and the poorest players is very great, place the latter as far as necessary behind scratch, but do not advance the former to more than 30, or 30.3 in the most extreme cases.

HOW TO CONDUCT A TOURNAMENT.

A tournament committee should first of all be selected, with not less than five men, and as many as possible practical workers who have the time and inclination to closely look after the interests of the club. At its first meeting, the committee should decide upon all details of the meeting. In selecting a date, it is advisable to choose one immediately before or after some established tournament in the neighborhood, for then the entries of those who are to play in the other event can generally be secured.

Application should be made to the national governing body for official sanction for the tournament, stating dates and other particulars. If any championship events are to be on the programme, official recognition must be applied for before these titles can be of any value.

A printed circular should be issued by the tournament committee, which should state plainly—(1) the name of the club and the location of the courts; (2) the date of the meeting and the hours of play; (3) the list of events, and the championship titles (if any) to be competed for, with the prizes offered for each event; (4) the amount of the entrance fees, and place and date for closing the list of entries; (5) the name of referee, handicapper and tournament committee; and (6) the time and place of the draw.

The draw should always be made by the committee in public and due notice of the time and place be given to the competitors, so that they may be present or represented when the draw is made. The draw should always be made by the Bagnall-Wilde system. (See "Tournament Regulations.")

No money or its equivalent in any form should be offered as prizes, for this would disqualify the players from future competition as amateurs. Prizes should be silver, gold, cut glass, objects of art or other souvenirs of this kind that can be marked or engraved as trophies. It is preferable to have them marked before the tournament, although lawn tennis prizes are frequently bought with the privilege of exchange, and therefore not engraved until after the tournament.

The committee should select a referee, either from among their number or outside of it. If handicaps are to be held, the referee may also be the handicapper, or a sub-committee may be appointed for this purpose. Should the referee be also a competitor, a substitute should also be appointed to act for him while he is playing.

It is important to have enough balls, and only the best quality of tournament balls should be used for matches. It is the custom at most tournaments to allow three new balls with each match, but in playing on dirt courts, the same balls can sometimes be made to do service twice. Unless there are back-stops close behind the courts, it is also well to have some small boys handy to act as ball-boys and "shack" the balls for the players.

The lines of a tournament court should be marked out fresh every day and if easily obliterated, also between matches on the same day. The courts should always be laid north and south so that one player will not get more than his share of the glaring sunlight in his eyes. There should never be a tree within shadow distance of a tournament court either, particularly on the south side of the court.

Facilities must be provided for the players to dress, and it is a good plan to appoint one member of the committee to attend to these accommodations, and to entertain the visiting players and see that their wants are attended to.

The draw should always be posted in a conspicuous place on the grounds, where the spectators as well as the players can inspect it. If possible a programme for each day's play should be made out in advance, and due notice of all the matches of the day be posted up by the draw each day. The courts should be numbered, and a certain court and hour set for each match. One member of the committee ought also to be assigned to getting umpires for the matches and seeing that they are properly started.

It is customary to exhibit the prizes for a tournament at the club grounds during the tournament, and it generally proves an attractive feature to have them displayed on a table on the grounds, all duly labeled so that spectators can see which events they are to be given for. A refreshment tent is also an attractive feature at a tournament and the prizes are then displayed under this tent on the same or a nearby table with the punchbowl. Lemonade, or tea, crackers, cakes and sometimes small sandwiches are generally served to the players and spectators under such refreshment tent.

How to Build and Keep a Court

Nothing is more important for the full enjoyment of lawn tennis than a satisfactory court, and none of the other accessories of the game offers a wider variety. Many important considerations come up even after the kind of court to be built, and the cost, have been decided upon. No matter how much is to be spent on the ground, nor what the surface is to be, the most important things to consider first are space, light and drainage.

The back-stop nettings should never be nearer than fifteen feet to the lines, and if good players are expected to use the court, particularly if tournament matches are to take place on it, the space behind the base-line should be 21 feet at each end. At the sides at least 6 feet, if possible 12 feet should be allowed beyond the side-lines for doubles of each court. A well-appointed court for tournament play should be centered in an unobstructed space of not less than 60 x 120 feet. Wire back-stop netting 10 or 12 feet high should surround it at these distances from the lines. If there are two or more courts together, there should be at least 12 feet between their side lines, and one netting can surround all.

In selecting a site for a court, a spot should be chosen where there is always plenty of sunlight, and where at no time of the day does any shadow cross the ground on which the court is to be laid. Green or black is a preferable background to play against, but any dark and even color will do. A court should never be laid out with any very light background within a short distance at either end, or close at either side. Nor should a site be selected with a badly mixed or moving background. Shade trees are useful near a court, only if their shadow is a solid one, not constantly checkered by flecks of sunlight glittering through moving branches, which constantly confuse the players. Never should they be allowed near enough to cast any shadows on the playing surface.

One more cardinal point should be remembered. The court should invariably be laid out north and south—never east and west. If this warning is disregarded, the player at one end or the other will be hopelessly blinded by the sun.

The question of drainage is one of the most important considerations in selecting a site of this kind. On the natural facilities depends largely the cost of laying out a good court. If the natural soil be sandy and well drained, or if it is on high ground which slopes away near by, artificial drain pipes will not have to be put in, and this saves much of the cost, but if it be thick clay that holds moisture long, or on low ground with neighboring slopes that drain toward it, the court will be useless for many hours after each rainfall unless artificial drain-pipes are put in.

After the site has been selected, it must be decided whether a grass or "dirt" court is to be built. If the natural sod is luxuriant and the soil favorable for its growth, or if the court is not to be used enough to wear off the grass, a turf court will generally be found preferable, but if the ground is to be constantly in use, the sod will wear off and become "bald" unless there is space enough on the lawn to shift the court frequently.

When good turf cannot be had or will not stand the wear, a substitute must be found, and sand or dirt courts are most often used. On well-drained land, one can sometimes cut away the top surface, level the ground and roll it until well hardened and the court is ready for use, but more preparation is necessary to build a permanent court that will not be constantly losing its proper level.

For such a court the earth should be cut away to a depth of one foot if no drains are required. After leveling it carefully with a spirit-level, to be sure that the grade is right, a layer of six inches of broken stone should first be laid and pounded down hard. Ordinary trap-rock used for macadamizing roads is perhaps the best for this purpose, but any broken stone, ranging in sizes from a walnut to an egg, will answer the purpose. This should be covered with a three-inch layer of coarse gravel or fine broken stone, which should be thoroughly pounded and watered for several days before being covered. Before any surface is put on the court, the greatest care should be taken to see that the foundation is perfectly level. Any holes or depressions that appear from rolling and pounding should be filled in before it is covered.

Every well built court should be graded either from end to end or from side to side to an extent of not over two inches, which will suffice to drain off rain water. If artificial drainage is necessary to keep the court dry, drain pipes can be laid in the foundations of the court about three feet outside the side and end lines, care being taken whereby the pipes will tilt, following the grade of the court as far as possible, thus allowing the water to run off. The best drain pipes are six-inch stone sewer pipe, cut in halves, or stone gutters used on tiled roofs, which should be sunk in the ground immediately under the foundation of broken rock and filled with pebbles or fine cracked stone.

The covering for a gravel or sand court should be not less than three nor more than six inches in thickness, and of sandy loam and clay mixed. The proportions depend on the quality of the clay. If it is very binding and sticky, one part of sand to four of clay are preferable, but for the average ingredients they should be mixed about eight parts of clay to one part of sand. When the court is finished, if it is found to be too soft but dry, more clay should be added; while if it drains poorly and stays muddy too long after rain, or its surface is too sticky for the player's feet, more sand should be added on the surface. When a court is finally covered, it should be thoroughly watered and rolled alternately twice every day for two weeks before it is played on at all, and any depressions or uneven spots corrected as fast as they appear from the settling. After the first heavy rain storm it should be gone over and leveled most carefully, for then it is most likely to develop new faults.

The fine seashore sand will seldom be found satisfactory for the surface of a court, for it works loose too quickly under the players' feet, and can only be made to bind when mixed with a larger proportion of clay, which will make the drainage more difficult, as water percolates very slowly through clay. If the soil upon which a court is being built is very rich and worms promise to work through to the surface above and injure the court, it is well to lay a layer of fine cinders, those from a railroad engine preferred, between the foundation and the sandy surface layer. These cinders effectually prevent worms from coming through to the surface. It is also well to use coarse sifted ashes mixed with the stones in the drain-pipes.

The construction of a grass court is less difficult, but varies much more in process. If cost need not be considered, it should be built by an expert, and will be laid on deep-laid foundations; if it is desired to build an economical court on an available lawn which is fairly level, the cost will not be heavy. The sod should first be carefully removed in squares of about eighteen inches, from a space at least 50 by 100 feet, cutting down to a depth of about six inches. The ground should then be turned with a spade to a depth of eighteen inches or two feet, and after all stones have been removed, and the earth carefully raked over and leveled, it should be packed and rolled with a heavy roller. It cannot have too much leveling and rolling, and the rolling should be kept up for several days with plenty of soaking by rain or hose-pipe. Any inequalities which the heavy pressure of the roller produces should be filled in or cut down before the sods are relaid.

After the ground has been rolled sufficiently the sods should be replaced. In doing this it is important to get the edges close together, so that no seams or open cracks can be found. These sods should be relaid in the afternoon and well drenched with water. The next day the ground should be rolled again; and this should be followed by alternate drenching and rolling for several days. Even when the ground finally appears firm and level, the court should not be played upon until new blades of grass appear in considerable numbers. If depressions appear, the sod at that spot should be lifted, fresh earth inserted to the proper grade and the sod replaced, watered and rolled till level and flat again.

Bad spots are often found where the grass is thin or where malignant weeds obstruct its growth, and in this case fresh sods should be bought or cut elsewhere and substituted. Sometimes large patches of ground must be renewed in this way, but it will be found much less expensive if all the turf is bad to sow the new court down with lawn seeds, and seeds will often help out thin spots in the grass if the court is not to be used too soon after the sowing. It is better to make a grass court in the fall whether it is to be sown with seed or sodded. The winter storms will then settle it thoroughly, and after a little releveling in the spring it will be ready for use.

Grass seeds should be sown between the middle of March and the first of May, or better yet, in the autumn, between the middle of August and the first of October. It takes about 20 pecks of good lawn seed to cover a space 60 by 120 feet. The sowing should be gone over twice, the second time at right angles to the first. Clover seeds should be avoided, as this grass does not wear well, and guano should not be used for fertilizing, for it tends to bring up coarse blades in patches.

As soon as the young grass is high enough to be topped, a scythe or sickle should be used, being at first better than the mowing machine. After the new grass is well hardened, however, the latter should be constantly in use, never less than once a week, and in moist warm weather nearly every day. With every precaution weeds are sure to appear, but these can generally be held in check by constant mowing. The more formidable weeds, however, must be cut with a knife one by one about an inch below the surface, and care being taken to remove as much of the root as possible. A pinch of salt dropped on the cut root will generally stop the growth. When the turf becomes worn in spots a small shift in the lines of the court will relieve the pressure and enable the grass to grow again; at the end of the season all of the bare patches should be resown.

There are several other kinds of courts sometimes built when turf cannot be had. Cinders, clay, concrete, cement and asphalt are also sometimes used, while board courts are built undercover for winter use.

Concrete and cement are open to many objections. They are very hard on the eyes and legs, and often make the player's feet sore; the surface generally wears out the balls and shoes quickly, and it is also liable to crack with frost. Cinder courts are cheap and easy to construct, but the surface is so gritty that it burns the feet of the players and soon uses up the balls. They are also very dirty. Asphalt courts are expensive and much affected by heat and cold, sometimes even cracking with the frost.

In Australia courts have been made of cracked blue-stone, while a cheaper substitute has been found in England in what is called a brick rubble court.

Once the court is finally built and ready for use, it must be properly marked out. In every case, unless it be of grass, and the lines are to be constantly shifted to prevent bare spots, net-posts should be permanently sunk in the ground. They should be not less than two feet under the ground nor forty feet apart.

A good dirt court should be swept, watered, rolled and freshly marked out after every eight or ten sets of play, and oftener in very dry weather. Instantly a depression is discovered it should be filled in and rolled down before playing is continued, for it is almost as dangerous for the players as the court to continue with it uneven. A court should never be rolled in the condition the players leave it after play. A player's heel raises a little lump; if the roller goes over this before it is swept down even again, a hard ridge results and the ball will bound unevenly from it. It should be swept over first, until all the lumps are leveled down, before the roller is allowed on its surface.

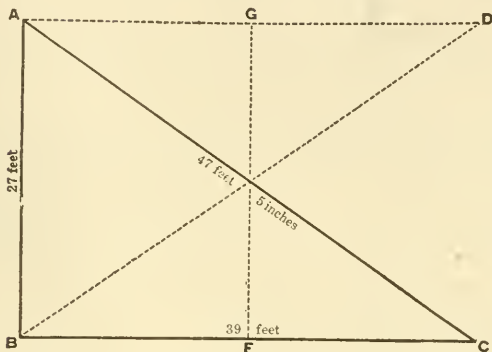

One of the best sweepers is made of a heavy joist of wood with a dozen thicknesses of old jute bagging or coarse cloth frayed out at the bottom edges, fastened to its bottom and trailing on behind it. This should be drawn over the court with a handle or rope several times. If it is pushed, the groundsman's feet will leave tracks after it; if he goes ahead the sweeper will erase them. Before the lines are marked out fresh, the old ones should always be swept off with a broom, but if the broom is constantly used along the lines in a parallel direction, it will gradually wear away little grooves in the court where the lines are and the balls will bound improperly from them. The sweeping should be done lightly across the court, at right angles with the lines.

A grass court cannot have too much care. It is advisable to wet it thoroughly several times a week and roll it as often. It should be watered at night, cut in the morning, and rolled after cutting and before watering. The best way to repair a bare strip of ground is to lay fresh turf, and this should be done in the fall or as early as possible in the spring. Good tough turf, laid in February or early in March, will be fit for use by the first of June. In the early spring grass roots both in new turf and old may be greatly benefited by a good dressing of manure well worked in, but regular manuring should also be done in the fall.

Worm casts are very bad for good tennis turf. Particularly in fertile ground or after a storm, the little mounds will appear on the sod, and if the roller passes over them or they are trodden down little hard lumps are formed which spoil the surface of the court. The turf should always be swept before rolling, and in rich soil every morning. This scatters the mounds effectually. Where it is necessary to get rid of the worms, lime water should be sprinkled on the ground. They will then come to the surface and can be swept away.

When a horse mowing machine is used it is well to have the horse's hoofs covered with soft pads to prevent their cutting into the turf and leaving prints that affect the bound of the ball. The groundsman at work on good lawn tennis courts, particularly when the turf is soft, and always on a sand court, should be required to wear rubber-soled shoes without heels.

How to Lay Out a Tennis Court

As a double court practically includes every line to be found in a single court, it is best to take first the measure for the latter. Having determined the position of your net, plant in the ground, in the line chosen, two pegs, 27 feet apart (at the points A and B in the diagram). Then take two measures and attach their respective ends to the pegs A and B. On the first, which will measure the diagonal of the court, take a length of 47 feet 5 inches; on the other 39 feet; pull both taut in such directions that at these distances they meet in a point C. This will give one corner of the court. At that point F, 21 feet from B, put in a peg to mark the end of the service-line. The other corner, D, and the other end of the service-line G, may be found by interchanging the measures and repeating the process. The same measurements on the other side of the net will complete the exterior boundaries of the court. By prolonging the base-line 4 feet 6 inches in each direction, and joining the four new points thus obtained, we can make the side-lines of a double court. It only remains to mark the central line. This is done by joining the middle points of the service-lines. If a double court alone be required, the interior side-lines need not be prolonged to meet the base-lines. Remember that in all cases the net-posts must stand at a distance of three feet from the side-lines.

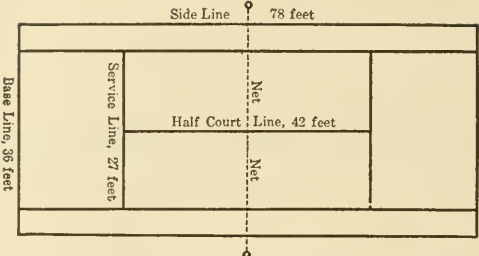

Diagram of Single and Double Court.

For a court where a single or double game can be played, the size is 78 feet in length by 36 in width, $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet inside the side lines, and parallel with them are drawn the service lines. See diagram above.

FOOT FAULT RULE.

Every effort to bring about the careful observance of this rule during the coming playing season will be used by the Executive Committee, who will welcome the cooperation of all club officers in connection with tournaments held under the sanction of the National body. If every club holding an authorized tournament will make a special effort to secure for their tournament a "Foot Fault Committee," and will have such committee carefully study and post themselves as to just what constitutes a foot fault and then rigidly enforce such rule, material good will be accomplished in connection with the legitimate interests of the game.

The Executive Committee especially requests that all clubs giving tournaments with the sanction of the U. S. N. L. T. A. include in their printed notices direct information that and copy such rule verbatim as a part of their tournament announcement.

What is New in Tennis

Since the introduction some years ago of the Spalding Gold Medal rackets, originally made in two models, it has been our constant aim to improve and expand this special line of rackets to meet the demands and requirements of what we might call the composite experience of experts from all over the States, Europe and Australia.

Practically every reasonable requirement that can be looked for in a racket—stringing, distribution of weight, playing surface, grip, shape—is present in the one or the other of the Spalding Gold Medal models, and until now we felt sure we had the “last word” in racket manufacture.

We did not sit back and rest on our laurels, however, content with what we had accomplished, but, as has always been the Spalding custom, strove to excel ourselves, and, in the new Spalding “Auto-graph” racket we feel sure that we have succeeded in producing an implement that is unquestionably the finest ever made. Reinforced inside the depressed throat with selected rawhide, and outside from the shoulders down into the very handle itself, it minimizes to the smallest degree the possibility of a broken frame. The upper part of the frame is beautifully beveled, and the handle made entirely of cedar. The stringing is of the finest grade of lambs’ gut, done by the most expert stringers in our shops. The racket is highly polished and finished in either brown or black. The brown style has brown throatpiece, brown rawhide reinforcement at shoulders and maroon trimming gut. All white stringing, in “expert” style. The black style has black throatpiece, black rawhide reinforcement at shoulders and black trimming gut. White vertical and black cross strings, in “expert” style. Handles are 5, 5¼ or 5½ inches in circumference. Price, including a waterproof cover, $10.00.

The “International” is the 1915 addition to our $8.00 Gold Medal models and rounds out the greatest line of high grade rackets ever offered to the public. Graceful lines, lots of playing surface and raised throatpiece, it gives the player confidence in his strokes as soon as he grasps it.

In addition to the “International,” the line of $8.00 rackets includes such favorites as the Gold Medal No. GMB, All-Comers, Olympic, Model H, and the ever-popular “Hackett and Alexander,” each with its own particular point of popularity. Excellent rackets, ones that were “championship” class only a few years ago, are Models GX, DH and EH, which sell at $5.00, while the “Tournament,” at $4.00; the “Slocum,” at $3.50; the Nassau and Lakeside, at $3.00; Oval, $2.50; Greenwood, $2.00; Geneva, $1.50, and Favorite, $1.25, are all representative of Spalding quality at their respective prices.

Speed on the court, ability to last, an all-around, well-balanced game are three qualities necessary to a good player. The Spalding Championship Ball has all these, and wherever it is used we are certain our judgment will be confirmed. Made in two weights of covers—No. OO for turf courts and No. OOH for hard courts. The latter ball has met with remarkable success on hard courts throughout the country, so much so that it is popularly known as the "Spalding Hard Court Ball," and was selected as the official ball of the Clay Court tournament of 1914, held at Cincinnati, and has been again officially adopted for the Clay Court championship of 1915, to be held this year on the courts of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, June 26 and following days.

Incidentally, it may be mentioned that the challenge match of the Davis Cup tournament of 1914 was played over a Spalding No. 9-O championship net.

For clubs holding tournaments, many articles are now absolute necessities that were unknown a few years ago. While nets, posts, and all the direct paraphernalia of the game itself must be correct and in good shape, the umpire's chair and a scoring tree are just as much a part of the setting nowadays as seats for the spectators, and for clubs holding tournaments a "club" racket press is most essential.

To have a favorite racket put out of commission by some "chair caner" has more than once caused the loss of a match, as many players can testify. We make a specialty of restringing rackets, using the best of materials, and, what is even better, brains. Our stringers are men who are employed continually throughout the year, not for a few months in the season only—and coming in contact with the leading players, who naturally go to Spalding's for their requirements, these men are in an unequaled position to obtain at first hand all the little niceties of stringing that experience has shown to be most effective and which goes to make up that "just a bit better" that distinguishes the expert from the ordinary player. All of which is at the command of our patrons.

Several players who found the glare of a semi-tropic sun on Southern courts most trying during the past winter took a leaf out of the base ball player's notebook and used a form of sun-glass invented by Manager Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgh National League base ball club for the use of outfielders. The arrangement, which is fastened to the player's cap or hat, is substantial but not cumbersome, and has a hinged attachment which permits the glasses to be turned up out of the way when not needed. They cost $10.

Another novelty is an improvement over the regulation sweatband. It consists of a sweatband and visor—or sunshade—combined, and sells for 50 cents.

Probably next to the racket a player's shoes are the most important part of his equipment, and necessarily so, for an ill-fitting pair is a handicap right from the start. A style that has found favor with many prominent players is the Spalding No. BBH, which is ideal for tournament play on turf courts, and fitted with officially approved blunt spikes in soles and heels. It is high cut, with finest quality kangaroo uppers, white oak soles and spring heels, and sells for $6.00 per pair.

For clay court use, No. AB is the most desirable style. It laces all the way down to the toe, being just high enough to give support to the ankle and yet not bind too tightly. High cut, drab calf, Blucher style, with heavy red rubber section soles. No. AB costs $5.00 per pair.

A canvas shoe much favored by players who desire something stronger than the ordinary type of "sneaker" for clay courts is the Spalding No. III, which is really a high "sneaker" with an extra heavy sole of best quality rubber. No. III costs $2.25 per pair, and low cut, of same quality—when it is known as No. II—costs $2.00 per pair.

In this connection it is well to call attention to the fact that we also resole rubber soled shoes of our own make, the work being done in the Spalding shoe factory where the shoes are made. This is a convenience that is obvious, and one that other dealers are unable to offer.

Tennis players who contemplate being present—either as contestants or spectators—at the clay court championships at Pittsburgh in June, or the National Championships, to be held this year on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, Long Island, in August, are invited to make use of the Spalding stores in both Pittsburgh and New York as their headquarters. A corps of specially selected stringers will be on hand and no effort will be spared to make Spalding service coequal with Spalding quality.

Standard Policy

A Standard Quality must be inseparably linked to a Standard Policy.

Without a definite and Standard Mercantile Policy, it is impossible for a Manufacturer to long maintain a Standard Quality.

To market his goods through the jobber, a manufacturer must provide a profit for the jobber as well as for the retail dealer. To meet these conditions of Dual Profits, the manufacturer is obliged to set a proportionately high list price on his goods to the consumer.

To enable the glib salesman, when booking his orders, to figure out attractive profits to both the jobber and retailer, these high list prices are absolutely essential; but their real purpose will have been served when the manufacturer has secured his order from the jobber, and the jobber has secured his order from the retailer.

However, these deceptive high list prices are not fair to the consumer, who does not, and, in reality, is not ever expected to pay these fancy list prices.

When the season opens for the sale of such goods, with their misleading but alluring high list prices, the retailer begins to realize his responsibilities, and grapples with the situation as best he can, by offering "special discounts," which vary with local trade conditions.

Under this system of merchandising, the profits to both the manufacturer and the jobber are assured; but as there is no stability maintained in the prices to the consumer, the keen competition amongst the local dealers invariably leads to a demoralized cutting of prices by which the profits of the retailer are practically eliminated.

This demoralization always reacts on the manufacturer. The jobber insists on lower, and still lower, prices. The manufacturer, in his turn, meets this demand for the lowering of prices by the only way open to him, viz.: the cheapening and degrading of the quality of his product.

The foregoing conditions became so intolerable that 16 years ago, in 1899, A. G. Spalding & Bros. determined to rectify this demoralization in the Athletic Goods Trade, and inaugurated what has since become known as "The Spalding Policy."

"The Spalding Policy" eliminates the jobber entirely, so far as Spalding Goods are concerned, and the retail dealer secures the supply of Spalding Athletic Goods direct from the manufacturer by which the retail dealer is assured a fair and legitimate profit on all Spalding Athletic Goods, and the consumer is assured a Standard Quality and is protected from imposition.

"The Spalding Policy" is decidedly for the interest and protection of the users of Athletic Goods, and acts in two ways:

First.—The user is assured of genuine Official Standard Athletic Goods.

Second.—As manufacturers, we can proceed with confidence in purchasing at the proper time, the very best raw materials required in the manufacture of our various goods, well ahead of their respective seasons, and this enables us to provide the necessary quantity and absolutely maintain the Spalding Standard of Quality.

All retail dealers handling Spalding Athletic Goods are requested to supply consumers at our regular printed catalogue prices—neither more nor less—the same prices that similar goods are sold for in our New York, Chicago and other stores.

All Spalding dealers, as well as users of Spalding Athletic Goods, are treated exactly alike, and no special rebates or discriminations are allowed to anyone.

This briefly, is "The Spalding Policy," which has already been in successful operation for the past 16 years, and will be indefinitely continued.

In other words, "The Spalding Policy" is a "square deal" for everybody.

A. G. SPALDING & BROS.

By A. G. Spalding.
PRESIDENT.

Standard Quality

An article that is universally given the appellation "Standard" is thereby conceded to be the criterion, to which are compared all other things of a similar nature. For instance, the Gold Dollar of the United States is the Standard unit of currency, because it must legally contain a specific proportion of pure gold, and the fact of its being Genuine is guaranteed by the Government Stamp thereon. As a protection to the users of this currency against counterfeiting and other tricks, considerable money is expended in maintaining a Secret Service Bureau of Experts. Under the law, citizen manufacturers must depend to a great extent upon Trade-Marks and similar devices to protect themselves against counterfeit products—without the aid of "Government Detectives" or "Public Opinion" to assist them.

Consequently the "Consumer's Protection" against misrepresentation and "inferior quality" rests entirely upon the integrity and responsibility of the "Manufacturer."

A. G. Spalding & Bros. have, by their rigorous attention to "Quality," for thirty-nine years, caused their Trade-Mark to become known throughout the world as a Guarantee of Quality as dependable in their field as the U. S. Currency is in its field.

The necessity of upholding the Guarantee of the Spalding Trade-Mark and maintaining the Standard Quality of their Athletic Goods, is, therefore, as obvious as is the necessity of the Government in maintaining a Standard Currency.

Thus each consumer is not only insuring himself but also protecting other consumers when he assists a Reliable Manufacturer in upholding his Trade-Mark and all that it stands for. Therefore, we urge all users of our Athletic Goods to assist us in maintaining the Spalding Standard of Excellence, by insisting that our Trade-Mark be plainly stamped on all athletic goods which they buy, because without this precaution our best efforts towards maintaining Standard Quality and preventing fraudulent substitution will be ineffectual.

Manufacturers of Standard Articles invariably suffer the reputation of being high-priced, and this sentiment is fostered and emphasized by makers of "inferior goods," with whom low prices are the main consideration.

A manufacturer of recognized Standard Goods, with a reputation to uphold and a guarantee to protect must necessarily have higher prices than a manufacturer of cheap goods, whose idea of and basis of a claim for Standard Quality depends principally upon the eloquence of the salesman.

We know from experience that there is no quicksand more unstable than poverty in quality—and we avoid this quicksand by Standard Quality.
